Cleaning Bagdad Rugs.

It is very difficult to wash a Bagdad couch cover or rug successfully. The colors are almost sure to run when treated in the ordinary way. Before beginning operations separate the strips. Then wash each one in a separate water. Use white soap and lukewarm water to which a little salt has been added after a suds has been raised by brisk stirring. Do not rub the strips on a washboard, but merely lip them into the water and stir them briskly, then quickly rinse them and hang them over a clothes horse in the kitchen away from the sunlight. Be careful when drying that the strips lo not overlap. When almost dry press out the wrinkles with a hot iron. If the middle strips have become alightly worn exchange them with those on the outside, when sewing the cover together again.

Chicago .- Anyone who wishes to regulate his natural altitude above sea level needs only to have his pituitary gland attended to. At least that is what Prof. Arthur Keith of London says, and his statements have been corroborated by a number of Chicago's foremost physicians. The pltuitary gland is the first in importance of the principal ductless glands of the body, which include the typhoid and adrenolin glands and a portion of the pancreas. The juices secreted by this gland, according to Chicago physiclans, largely control the growth of the bones of the body. When the secretion is plentiful the bones grow to an abnormal size, but when it is comparatively small in quantity the growth of the bones is retarded. When the secretion is caused to flow freely, say physicians, a rapid development of the bones is the result. Thus, when a boy or girl is ill for some time with a fever, the diseased condition of the body causes the pituitary gland to become unusually active, with the result that the sick person "grows like a weed."
