The Morrow county road crews have been pulled off, and it is the expressed purpose of the county court to pursue a different plan of road work. They have no idea of getting hold of a plan, however, that will suit all concerned, as most of the plans provided for in the law have been put to use, and all have been subject to criticism. We had hoped to see the present plan carried out as it is certainly the best that has yet been used. Heretofore the work has largely been of a nature that was temporary, and the present system looks to permanency and the constructing of work that will stand. To carry out any successful policy, touching public improvements, and especially of the highways, takes time and the expenditure of much money; every county in the state is learning this, and there are some counties that are spending vastly more on five or six miles of road building than is raised in this county for its entire road work in a period of as many years. There may perhaps be some just criticism as to the commissioners hiring men and acting in just the capacity that they have been the past few months, but the law plainly makes them overseers of the county roads and supervisors of all work done, and it also provides that while they need not do anything at all in the way of manual labor on the roads, they shall receive $4.00 per day for each and every day put in as supervisors or overseers of the work done by someone else. Just what the future policy is to be, we have not learned, but those who have so seriously objected to the way the work has been managed, should come forward with some better plan and assist in putting it into execution. This is only fair, to say the least.

John Wanamaker, the New York and Philadelphia retail merchant on one occasion said: "If there is one thing on earth that a quitter should leave alone, it is advertising. To make a success one must be prepared to stick to it, like a barnacle on a ship's bottom. Advertising doesn't jerk; it pulls. It begins very gently at first, but the pull is steady. It is likened to a team pulling a heavy load. A thousand spasmodic, jerky pulls, will not budge that load, while half the power in steady effort will start it and keep it moving."

The rain has come, but according to some it is about three weeks too late. Of course, if we could always have our way about it, these things would be ordered different. However, this would be a funny world if every fellow's notion was carried out. For our part, we are thankful it has rained; it will do lots of good, tho a little late for some. It has demonstrated the fact that good farming pays in this county, for the grain that was put in well stood the drought better and was in shape to be greatly benefited by the later rains.

Oregon's Agricultural College, at Corvallis, will have the best facilities in the United States for horticultural research work when the new horticultural building, to cost $35,000, is completed. Work has been started on the foundations. In future, the college will lay special emphasis on advanced work in the study of orchard problems, looking to the extermination of insect and fungus pests and seeking to adapt different varieties of fruits to the various soils and climates to be found in this state. This work is, of course, undertaken at present, but with the additional facilities it is expected much more will be accomplished.

An interesting contest closed in Portland during the past week when the Y. M. C. A. distributed prizes to schoolboys who grew vegetables on back lots. An exhibit of the prize vegetables was made and the competition created a great deal of interest. About 250 school children entered and the showing was a creditable one.

Children of School District No. 112, near Hermiston, will be given practical instruction in agriculture, taxpayers of the district having voted a special tax to buy a tract of land lying near the school grounds that will be used as a farm. Competent instructors in agriculture will be secured and all the work of plowing, planting, irrigating, cultivating and harvesting will be done by the pupils under the direction of the instructor.

Brother Dies.

Mr. M. L. Case, of this city, returned home from a visit with his brother C. L. Case, of Oregon City, who was very low with tuberculosis at the home of his mother. Mr. Case was compelled to come home on Friday, and at the time he left his brother was very near the end, and on reaching Heppner, a telegram was awaiting Mr. Case announcing the death of his brother at about 1:30 on Friday afternoon. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war, and was a member of Co. F, Oregon Volunteers and went with the first regiment to Manila. He spent nearly a year in the Philippines and saw much active service. While in the Philippine service he became a victim of the dreaded dysentery that left so many of the volunteers with broken down health, and from this he never fully recovered his physical strength, becoming an easy prey of the white plague. He was 38 years of age and unmarried.

"Mistaken."

The Irishman who appeared before Judge Phelps seeking naturalization papers and declared George Washington to be the president of the United States was no worse mistaken than a good American citizen who was being examined for jury duty in a murder trial, and was asked if he believed in capital punishment. "No I do not believe in capital punishment," he replied. "If a man is to be hanged then hang him at the county seat. Don't take him to the capital."

Nor was Judge Phelps' Irishman any less informed than was a gentleman from Cold Springs who was trying to qualify as a juror in a murder trial during the time Judge W. E. Ellis was on the bench. The gentleman from the northwest part of the county had been on a trip to Tacoma and when Col. Raley asked him if he thought that the state should have to prove the defendant guilty or that the defendant should be required to prove his innocence replied, "I don't know, I just got back from Tacoma and don't know anything about this case."—East Oregonian.

Meets Father at Picnic.

W. M. Blakely, one of the oldest of the Umatilla county pioneers, left yesterday for Portland to join his father, Captain Blakey of Brownville, at the Pioneers' Picnic being held in the metropolis. Captain Blakely is now in his 90th year and is not yet tired of living. He declares his intention of coming to Pendleton during the Round-up as he thinks there will be considerable fun to be had at that time.—East Oregonian.
