FAIRVIEW
FAIRVIEW IS NOW
FEELING THE THROES
OF A FINANCIAL BOOM
(Special Correspondence to The Herald.)

FAIRVIEW, ORE., Aug. 2.— Fairview is just now experiencing the thrill of a miniature boom and is growing larger day by day. Within about 60 days the village will have electric transportation to Portland.
Big real estate deals are under way and the advertising done last spring through the columns of this and other papers is now bearing fruit for Fairview's material benefit, and yet some of our people fail to realize what is most assuredly taking place.
Within the last few weeks a number of Portland's prominent business men have invested in Fairview property and will use their means toward furthering the interests of the village which they confidently expect will become one of the best in Multnomah County.

Rev. and Mrs. Scott, who are rusticating in Tillamook County, are missed from among our citizens.
Ed Smith, the horseman, of Grass Valley, Ore., is making his headquarters here.
C. E. Cree has a force of men working on his new store building.
H. W. Mathison is sojourning in the mountains for a few days.
Cree & Axtell are building a barn for J. W. Farrell.
A. L. Stone wears a smile that wont come off. Cars in sight and money too. So may it be.
Whitney & Anderson are kept busy these days.
Fox & Co. feel that they made no mistake in coming to Fairview. Their business is steadily improving.
Fairview growing? Well, yes; so a number of new houses and barns seem to indicate.
A good blacksmith is needed here.

Mr. Latourell had a strike this week.
He oiled up his clock and it struck.
Albert Fox and Allie May have opened

Bert Hoyt has had the misfortune to daughter from Yamhill is at his beside.

S. S. Logan is improving in health since taking treatments at the sanitarium.

been visiting friends here left for Klondike
last week.
Mrs. McIntosh, of Seattle, and Mrs.
Edmondson, of Eugene, are visiting their mother, Mrs. Hursell.

ton, a meat inspector, spent two weeks from the hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

daughters in the city.

nine, of Portland, last Sunday, the score being 10 to 7.

HARVEST TIME COMES TO THE WAGE EARNER
AND TO THE FARMER

Every man who takes an active part in the world's work has his time of HARVEST, the times when he realizes the fruits of his labor. One may devote his whole energies to the raising of wheat.
In midsummer the grain ripens and is soon ready to turn into dollars. The wheat harvester's permanent success depends not so much on a heavy yield from his acres as upon his ability to take care of the crop AFTER IT HAS BEEN TURN-ED INTO DOLLARS.
Another man may give all of his strength and ability to mechanical work in some other man's mill, and the returns from his labor come in the form of weekly wages. Saturday night is his harvest time, and his success depends not upon the number of dollars in his pay envelope, but THE CARE HE TAKES OF
THE DOLLARS RECEIVED.
And so on through all the departments of human industry, whether a man be a manufacturer, farmer, stock raiser, mechanic, or clerk—whether he has one harvest a year, or twelve, or fifty-two—the real test of his strength and shrewdness and stability is in his stewardship of the money which the work of his hands and brain yield to him.
Bring this thought home to yourself.
What does your weekly, or monthly, or yearly harvest mean to you? What part of it REMAINS UNDER YOUR CONTROL as a permanent asset, a growing capital, a fund for your business advancement, for the acquirement of a home, for the protection of your family, or as a provision for your old age; for accident, sickness loss of position?
If you spend all your harvest yields, your labor is lost.
Why use all your strength simply to enable you to live from day to day, and allow the years to drift by with no permanent gain?
You can't live last week over again.
It has gone forever. But you CAN have and hold some part of what you PRODUCE LAST WEEK.
Start a bank account. Deposit a part of the proceeds of every "harvest" and see how rapidly it carries you forward to a position of financial independence.
You have a bank right at your very door with fire and burglar-proof vaults,

CORBETT.
