Butter and Milk
 The separator should be taken apart and washed every day. If the separator is used twice a day it is preferable to take it apart and wash it both times, but if time does not permit this at least five gallons of warm water with some washing powder should be run through it, followed by a gallon of boiling water without the washing powder.
Cooling the Cream.
 After cream has been separated it should be cooled to at least 60 degrees
 F. and lower if possible. When putting cream from two milkings together care should be taken that the cream added
 last is thoroughly cooled.
Protection For Cans of Milk.
 Cover the cream and milk cans
 with cloth in the summer when driving long distances to the station and plan so they will not have to stand out on the platform in the hot sun.
Source of Unclean Milk.
 Milk is often contaminated by milking into filthy pails or pails that have not been scalded with hot water. In washing the milking utensils it is advisable to use hot water and some washing powder, and finally rinse with boiling water or steam over a steam jet.
Cause of Cheesy Butter.
 Cheesy butter is said by the Kansas experiment station to be due, first, to the curdling of cream, either sweet or sour, and, second, to a milky body. A milky body is due, first, to buttermilk
 not separated from butter, or butter not thoroughly washed, and, second, to butter made from rosy cream.
Time of Milking.
 In recent English investigations on the time of milking it appeared that the average daily yield of milk was somewhat greater when the intervals between milkings were equal.
Persistent Milkers.
 The cow that gives a pailful and a half twice a day when she first freshens may not be the most profitable cow in the herd. Another that gives only three-fourths of a pailful is possibly making more money. The profitableness of the milker depends upon
 three things—the quality of the milk,
 the persistence of its flow and the amount. The second point is frequently overlooked. Every cow should have some time each year for a rest between the milking periods. The cow that is never dried up will not last as long as the one which takes a rest of from four to six weeks. We admire the persistent milker, but she must be handled carefully by a capable dairyman. Otherwise she will be milked up to the last day, thus sapping her vitality and abusing her ability.—Kimball's Dairy Farmer.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

Doc Carter, the genial tonsorial artist of Montavilla, and Miss Domberg of Albina were united in marriage Friday morning, Sept. 14th. The happy couple are spending a few days at Hot Springs.

Sunday, Sept. 23d, Rev. J. P. Farmer of the Methodist Church will preach his farewell sermon. He has labored in the Lord's vineyard many years and expects to retire from active ministry.

Mrs. J. J. Fowler died at three o'clock Sunday morning at her residence on Meridian street. Interment was in Riverside Cemetery under the auspices of the Degree of Honor of which she was a faithful member.

Get a roast that is worth while. It costs no more when you buy it of G. Butcher & Sons.

G. K. Howitt went to The Dalles last Friday to buy horses.

Miss McKisson and Bryson visited in St. Johns last Sunday.

Carl Lovejoy is putting an addition to the bowling alley.

Lewis Brothers' new hotel on Hibbard street which is being built by J. W. Higgins is nearing completion.

W. C. Aylworth recently sold a five and a half acre tract southeast of Montavilla, and known as the Hugues place, to C. N. Madeira of Portland.

J. F. Tracey is a newcomer in North Montavilla.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fuog, a resident of Montavilla, died Sept. 14 at the age of 63 years. She was a native of Germany. The funeral services were held on Monday at Holman's Chapel and the interment was at Riverview Cemetery.

The United Artisans will give an entertainment and social at the Odd Fellows' Hall on the evening of Sept. 25th. This will be the first of a series to be given during the fall and winter.

Contractor Ford has completed the laying of the water main to the Hart Land Co.'s tract and it is all ready to hook onto the city main as soon as water is turned on.

"Sealed by the Holy Spirit Into the Day of Redemption," will be the theme of the morning sermon next Sunday, Sept. 23d, in Grace Baptist Church, and the evening theme will be, "The Way of the Transgressors is Hard."

The B. Y. P. U. of the Grace Baptist Church held their monthly meeting and social at the home of Miss Matlock last Wednesday, Sept. 12th.

Since the rain began the peaceful slumbers of the preachers are not disturbed by the con-inaudible snore of the spooners beneath the small fires that glow very near their door.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Hayes and Mrs. Menpe were visiting friends in the Villa Sunday.

D. A. Groutt, who has charge of the suburban school, visited the Montavilla school Tuesday and helped to arrange for an extra grade.

Miss Marion Downs and sister, Mrs. Pettit, returned from the hopfields Tuesday. They had a very pleasant time and made a small stake as well.

A new fence is being constructed around Chas. Lewis' place on Peter street.

L. J. Tolls returned from his trip and spent a few days at home recently.

A ruling of the school board requires the vaccination of all new pupils entering the public schools. Montavilla has not heretofore been amenable to this rule, and it is expected to create some grumbling.

C. B. Nettleton moved into the Proud cottage on Hibbard street a few doors south of his former residence.

C. E. White has moved to Mansfield.

Rev. W. W. Shuler is quite ill at his residence on Mizner street.

Prof. Bowland has commenced the erection of a fine two-story, eight-roomed residence on the lots he recently purchased on the corner of Ely and Cason streets. T. H. Hallock has the contract and expects to have it ready for occupancy by November 15th.

O. E. Carter was called last Thursday to the deathbed of his niece, Miss Florence Alice Dickenson, only daughter of C. T. and Florence Dickenson, who reside near Oswego. The death was very sudden, Mr. Carter not having been apprised even that there was sickness in the family. The girl was only fourteen and was the idol of her parents.

That's right, McCaslin sells groceries at right prices.

The Goldstein store building on Hibbard street will be ready for occupancy in a few days.

Work on the new hotel building is progressing rapidly and will soon be ready for the plasterers.

The rain drove a number of the hop pickers in but the high prices offered enticed many of them back again as soon as Old Sol took charge once more.

When you patronize McCaslin it makes you feel good, as well as him, for you know you have got value received.

Out of a class of twenty-three who graduated from the Montavilla public school last year, only the following have matriculated at the high school so far: Misses Lulu Mertz, May Sisley, Hazel Washburn, Harriet Vilas, Helen Sullivan, Bess Zidell and Mr. Arthur Small.

If you want to get the full benefit of the grandeur of Montavilla's back ground get Prof. Bowland to take you out on the east porch of the second floor of the public school building on a clear day. You will see a panorama of hills and dales and snow-clad peaks that will never be forgotten.

If it isn't right McCaslin makes it right.

You bet we are still here, and selling all kinds of meats and vegetables at prices that defy competition. G. Butcher & Sons.

Mrs. Flowers and grandson have returned from Astoria.

Harriet Vilas has returned from Eastern Oregon, and is going to high school.

We are glad to welcome Miss Minnie Butler back in the Montavilla school.

Time's Whirligigs.
 Between the sayings of some men who advocate the strenuous life and the doings of certain men who have suddenly amassed fortunes out of what seemed to be nothing the average American is tumbling into humiliating perplexity.
 Is he a fool, he asks himself, that he, no matter if as industrious and wide-awake as any of his acquaintances, seldom succeeds in doing two or three days' work in one and never keeps the wolf so far from the door that he does not sometimes hear its howl in his dreams? Is he never to go to congress, or run for the presidency, or write a great book, or invent a new religion? Will it never be his fortune to cut up his farm into city lots at a thousand dollars per front foot, or strike oil in his back yard, or find a pay streak of gold in a rock ridden pasture, or discover a way of turning something costing only a dollar a barrel into something which will sell at a dollar a bottle and with his own portrait on the label? Some of the fellows with whom he used to go to school—not oversmart fellows, either—have become presidents of banks or railway companies or got in on the ground floor of something equally good, and then some are freightmen women and children with ten thousand dollar automobiles or using quarter million dollar steamships as pleasure yachts, and their wives and daughters spend half their time dazling Europeans with their wealth and the other half in making their old acquaintances envious.
 To tell such an inquirer that no amount of strenuous living can get out of a man more than there is in him, though it may enable him to burn life's candle at both ends, is to incite to wrath and bad language. To say "fate" or "luck" is to get a sneer. It is not safe to say, "The Lord raiseth one and putteth down another," even to a member of the church. "One man is as good as another" is the basis of American self respect. But why should the good things of life tumble persistently into the hands of many men who are no better than they ought to be and who already have more than they can enjoy or even spend?
 Meanwhile many strenuous men are wishing they could relieve their minds of burdens that cannot possibly be dropped, and many millionaires are wishing they could exchange their money and their pampered children for some old acquaintance's keen witted, quick handed, poverty blessed brood, and the richest and greatest look no happier than the poor, and out of the homes of men who think themselves failures are coming the millionaires and strenuous men of the future. So

Business Slump in South Africa.
 Advice from United States Consul Snodgrass at Pretoria show that prosperity has not followed the planting of the British flag above the Boer standard in the colonies recently ravaged by war. The British excuse for going to extremes with the Boers was that their old fashioned ways blocked the wheels of commercial progress, and therefore they must give way.

Consul Snodgrass says that the speculative boom which followed peace has collapsed, especially in the Transvaal. Building enterprises dropped off 75 per cent between November, 1905, and February, 1906. Every train carries away skilled artisans who go to America, while hundreds tramp South Africa "exhausting their savings and shoe leather" in fruitless quest for work. The exodus not only takes away the very best workmen, but also the best citizens of the new colony. The effects of the slump are most marked in the cities, but with the mining industry, the mainspring of every other in the country, hung up the whole region feels the pinch. The political muddle hampers free expansion of industry, and the chances of a happy settlement are remote.

Seaman, the new "funny man" of London Punch, has taken to lecturing in private houses. Doubtless he was not sure of his ground and recalled the generous offer of America's first humorist, Artemus Ward, to call at the homes of those of his audience who couldn't see through his jokes and explain their intricacies in detail.
