Bessie Howitt Thrown from Horse

Miss Bessie Howitt, of Gresham, was visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Plympton Kelly, last Saturday, and by way of amusement she and a cousin were riding one of the old family horses double. The animal was supposed to be proof against any exhibition of temper or high spirits, but on this occasion he did kick up his heels and both girls were thrown to the ground.

The cousin escaped without injury, but Miss Bessie struck on her head causing severe bruises on the forehead and right brow, and rendering her unconscious for several hours. She was at once taken to her grandmother's and Dr. McIlwain was called. Her injuries, while quite severe enough to lay her up for several days, were found to be not at all serious.
