

Why You Should Have Your Account with Us.

Because the man from whom you buy your produce would rather have a check on this bank. Those to whom you issue checks look upon you more favorably if you have your bank account at home.

Your deposit in your home bank will be a help in collecting those numerous small accounts which you would like so well to see paid. The larger merchants of Chicago have woken up to the fact that it does not pay to have their account away from home and thereby benefit some other city to the detriment of their own. The principle applies equally well to smaller cities.

Your deposit may be the means of your neighbor building a large barn which will add a little to the value of your property. Because we can keep you in touch with investments that you would not learn of otherwise.

We offer for investments U. W. P. & Ry. Co. 6 per cent. Gold Bonds redeemable at 105 in 1912, at 104 Northern Elec. Ry. Co. 3 per cent. 4000 Bonds at 98 M. & St. L. Ry. Co. 3 per cent. ### FAIRVIEW

FAIRVIEW, ORE., Nov. 13, 1906.—C. C. Vaughn has returned from a trip to the eastern states where he has been looking after business in interest of Fairview and brings with him numerous plans that will help to make Fairview one of the rising cities of the West. He says one of the stepping stones will be a bank which will occupy one corner of the new brick building. Mr. Vaughn says the bank fixtures were started from St. Louis, Mo., November 3d, and should be here in about 30 days, and if all runs smoothly the bank will be open for business in a short time. Last Saturday the price of Fairview real estate advanced $25 per lot, and the prospects are that it will still go higher. Less than six months ago choice town lots could be bought for from $50 to $60 a piece, but today it is considered as a snap to get a lot of any description for $100. Mr. Vaughn is having him a house and office built here and will reside with us in the near future.

Clarence Towner, watchman on the Smith farm, has been appointed deputy game warden.

H. C. Campbell was looking after his interests here on Saturday. Messrs. Campbell and McGaw have recently had a band of 200 sheep brought on their farms here. They are stocking their 600-acre farm here with the finest stock in the country. Some of their horses lately shipped from Belgium and Spain are valued at from $3000 to $5000 each. They also have some jacks and some excellent milk cows. A large flock of goats is helping them to clear brush land, and some of the finest Buff Rock chickens to be found anywhere are on the place.

Roy escaped without any serious injuries.

ed and planted to corn, which is cultivated in the usual way. After the last cultivation and the corn has reached a considerable height, which will be about the 1st of July, the hens are allowed to run in both yards. The corn affords them shade, and they wallow in the soft earth, eat the lower leaves and suckers and keep the corn well cultivated. They will get some of the lower ears, but on the whole the crop will be about as large as if the hens did not occupy the yard. They will not have been able to stamp down the rye, and some of this grain will ripen. If the hens do not secure it all, it may be cut and used for winter litter. In September the hens are again confined to the south yard, the corn in the north yard is cut, the land plowed and sown to rye, and the following season the south yard is planted to corn. This gives a constant rotation of crops on the land, which keeps it sweet and at the same time affords considerable food for the fowls.

Feed For Waterfowl.
In feeding the young of all kinds of waterfowl depend upon the mash. Nothing is better for them than ground oats, corn and bran, says the Feather—equal parts in weight mixed into a semi-dry mash and fed to them in boxes or troughs, not a large amount at any one time, reasonable amounts frequently. Always have a full water supply near at hand. Waterfowl always eat a little, then drink a little. This they keep up until fully satisfied. An inexhaustible supply of green food is an absolute necessity for the raising of geese. Nothing is more easily raised when once hatched than the young goslings. After they have become a few days old they may wander with the mother geese, provided they are watched a little when they go about the water or storms come upon them. After they are a month old they can battle with the parent geese in the struggle for life.

"Scaly Leg" Is Contagious.
Scaly leg is a form of scabies of mange, caused by the mite known as the Sarcopites mutans. It is a contagious disease, but does not spread very rapidly, and there may be only a few affected birds in a flock at one time.

When the disease is first observed prompt and energetic measures should be adopted to eradicate it. The affected birds should be isolated to prevent the spread of the contagion. Begin treatment by soaking the legs in warm water to which soap has been added until the scales have become thoroughly softened, and the loose scales can be removed without causing bleeding. After this has been done apply a good coat of carbolic ointment or balsam of Peru. This should be repeated daily for three or four days.

Beef Scraps.
Beef scraps is the name of a by-product of slaughtering houses and consists of waste pieces of the animals, such as shins, heads, lights, the "sticking pieces," etc. These are steam cooked, then subjected to strong pressure to extract all the fat possible, then kleft dried and ground into scraps or meat meal. When rightly made, they are a fine animal food for hens and chicks, but if fish and offal are thrown in with them they are anything but a good food. They are then only fit for fertilizer.

The Buff Turkey.
The buff turkey is of American origin, having been brought out but a few years ago. Plumage color, pure buff, the wings being a very light shade of buff. Standard weight: Cock, 27 pounds; cockerel, 18 pounds; hen, 18 pounds; pullet, 12 pounds. Disqualifying weights: Cock, less than 18 pounds; hen, less than 12 pounds.

Promptness in Treating Disease.
If you hope to cure ailments in poultry, you must commence to treat them with the appearance of the first symptoms. Do not delay, or you may never cure them.

Labor on Poultry Farms.
The demand for labor on poultry farms is, of course, strictly limited and is confined almost entirely to expert fowling workers, although on the large establishments a large number of men and women are employed in plucking, dressing and packing, and if this is not skilled labor it is something akin to it and is not the kind of work a person could take to without some experience and practice. There is a good opportunity for young men who are prepared to undergo a thorough training in the management of fancy stock. This branch offers good reward for workers, and progress is made in it entirely through merit. Wages run up to $39 and board per month.

SENSIBLE YARDING.

Plan Recommended by a Well Known Agricultural Authority.

A style of yarding recommended by Professor James E. Rice of Cornell College of Agriculture and shown herewith consists of a long or continuous house 240 by 15 feet, divided into pens 15 by 16 feet, there being sixteen pens or fewer, the same proportion, of course, being maintained. This is a most convenient arrangement, says L. E. Keyser in Poultry Success. The yard is 300 feet each way, containing 90,000 square feet or pasturage for 800 or 900 fowls. The pens are ample for fifty fowls. There are a little over two acres in the yards. A method followed with similar yards is to confine the fowls to the north yard about Aug. 1. Then the south yard is plowed and about Sept. 10 sown to rye and grass seed, or clover may be sown on the rye in the spring. When the rye has made a good start, say the middle of October, the hens are turned on it and allowed to run there until confined to the house for winter.

In the spring the north yard is plow-
