THE BREEDING PEN.

An Expert's Views as to the Qualities to be Perpetuated.

In the making up of the breeding pen there are a number of very important factors to be dealt with if success is to be expected, and I will point out a few of the more important ones to be dealt with, says Rev. C. E. Petersen in American Poultry Advocate.

No birds should be used which are not sexually mature, healthy and in full vigor, as only from healthy and mature stock can a healthy progeny be expected.

If immature birds are used the progeny will suffer, which is proved yearly by the markedly higher death rate among the chicks hatched from such immature stock birds.

Stock of advanced age should not be used either, as, for reasons that are obvious to the observer, no good results can be expected.

There is no need for me to explain that the chicks are in everything essential the creatures of their parents and of their ancestors; that it is on the whole predestined by the nature of the germs from the combination of which the chicks emanate what they are to be.

This is good and sufficient reason why the utmost care should be used in the selection of breeding stock and information as far as is possible obtained as to the ancestry of the birds to be used in the breeding yard, for by no means everything that is given us is good. The parental germs themselves may, to begin with, be possessed of inherited deficiencies, or they may have suffered by injuries which affected the parental body, or they may have been imperfect because of the immaturity or advanced age of the parents.

All kinds of malformations are hereditary and should under no circumstances be permitted in the breeding pen, however slight, as the tendency in every instance is to exaggerate these deformities.

I said all kinds, whether inherited or acquired, as the last kind will in time become hereditary, and even if in other respects the bird should be desirable leave it out of all consideration for breeding purposes, as the result in a very few generations will prove disastrous.

Equally unsuitable for procreation are specimens whose physical development is not complete or whose sexual character is imperfectly marked.

Remember that potency is just as much hereditary as any other faculty and is indeed of the greatest importance, as this particular faculty is the rejuvenator of our strain.

And wherever a bird proves himself strong in this particular and gives evidence of continued strong potency for several generations such a bird should be treasured and his strong potentiality bred into the strain.

Montavilla Threatened With Destruction By Fire.

What for a time threatened to be a most disastrous fire for Montavilla, was discovered last Saturday night about 6 o'clock by A. C. Stevens, at the back of the Warren Pharmacy, on the Base Line road. It appears that some time during the forenoon, the fire in the building had caught fire, but was promptly extinguished by Dr. Warren, and his assistant, Mr. Samson, both being careful to see that all danger of fire from the overheated flue was guarded against, and as they supposed, the fire had been completely put out. The flue was then cleaned and business went on as usual, until the cry of fire was heard from Mr. Stevens in the evening. Fortunately for the business houses along the Base Line road, the presence of mind of Mr. Samson and the foresightedness of Dr. Warren, in keeping on hand a large chemical fire extinguisher, saved the day. Mr. Samson immediately thinking of the machine and bringing it into action on the fire, which by this time was fast creeping up the back and in the inside of the studding of the building. The fire, however, was soon under control, a hole chopped into the building completely putting out the fire and saving the day for the resident of the Villa. The question now being agitated is when shall Montavilla have a chemical engine. The business men of the Villa should not rest until this matter has been decided on, for the Villa must have fire protection, and this is the cheapest way to get it.

LET SOMETHING GOOD BE SAID.

When over the fair fame of friend or foe

The shadow of disgrace shall fall; instead Of words of blame, or proof of thus and so,

Let something good be said.

Forget not that no fellow-being yet May fall so low but love may lift his head,

Even the cheek of shame with tears is wet,

If something good be said.

No generous heart may vainly turn aside

In ways of sympathy; no soul so dead But may awaken strong and glorified

If something good be said.

And so I charge ye, by the thorny crown,

And by the cross on which the Saviour bled,

And by your own soul's hope of fair renown,

Let something good be said.

James Whitcomb Riley.
