

Necessaries for the Cook

If the old adage is true that the way to win a man's heart is through his stomach then we are the instruments for furnishing necessaries for the discriminating cook.

As in the past, we shall endeavor to carry a full line of Red Cross and Muncie goods which are the best. Also a full line of the leading brands of Footwear, Overalls, Jumpers, Shirts, Underwear and Notions. We also carry a fine line of hand-made Trunks and suit Cases. If you are wanting Hardware, Tools, Stoves, or nearly anything used on the farm come and see us. We will treat you right.

Once there was an old maid who said she did not need to marry, she had a parrot that spoke, a monkey that danced, a toaster and a cat that went out nights. The man who has an Edison Phonograph might say he never needs to go anywhere for amusement as he has an instrument that will play dance music, sing the popular songs, tell funny stories, render the old ballads, give selections from grand operas and play anything, all with equal facility.

If you doubt what we say call and be convinced. It is 1907, we have them with a full line of records.

THE POULTRY HOUSE.

Winter Quarters of Fowls Should Be Prepared For Occupancy.

It is not too soon to begin preparations for next winter, says Farm Journal. Too soon to do the work is not to be considered unless there is nothing to do. It is surprising how much one will have to do when winter comes on and he is unprepared.

The poultry house may require overhauling in various ways or a new one may be built. It will be found that a new house will be less damp if built soon enough to allow the wood to season before winter. Earth floors that have been saturated with the droppings of the fowls should be removed to the depth of six inches and fresh material used, and the roof should be carefully examined while made tight on the old house.

Another point is that it is only after one has built a poultry house and used it a year that he knows what he wants. No man ever built a poultry house that he could not see something to improve about it, and it is this experience that is assisting to get more eggs in winter. Then there are the roosts and nests.

Those who have spent hours performing the work of cleaning out the poultry houses will appreciate any labor saving contrivances, and the time to adopt them is before the winter begins.

It is suggested that the house have plenty of windows, so as to secure sunlight and warmth. Nothing is so repugnant to fowls as darkness during the day, and they will frequently remain in a storm outside rather than keep within the walls of a dark house. Begin the fall right and prepare for the winter early so as to have the husks and pullets laying before the cold weather sets in.

KILLING FARM POULTRY.

A Practical Device For Making a Quick, Clean Cut.

A useful article for those who have any poultry to kill is the device shown in the illustration. Take a strip of iron one inch by one-eighth of an inch and thirty inches long, such as an old buggy tire, and bend in the center, so that the strips come parallel, leaving a slot in the center the thickness of the blade. For the blade any sheet of steel three inches wide and nine inches long on top will do—a piece of an old scythe flattened out, for instance.

The ends of the blade can be beveled or squared, as shown by dotted lines in Fig. 1. Fit the two parts together,

FOR KILLING POULTRY. drill holes (A A) about two inches from each end and fasten with soft iron or copper rivets. A piece of the same material as the strips can now be cut equal to the remaining lengths of the slot, holes drilled at B B, about one inch from each end and riveted as before. Drill a hole at C for hanging up, sharpen well, and the tool is ready for use. Drive two spikes on a slant about an inch apart into a block (see Fig. 2) and place the chicken's neck between them. In this way the neck can be nicely stretched, and a combination of the two ideas will save both time and trouble, says a reader of Farm and Fireside.
