

The Farm Journal

says: "Are you entering the year with a lot of last year's debts? Begin now to keep a cash account."

THERE IS NO BETTER WAY for a farmer to keep a cash account than to open an account with a safe, well-managed bank.

By turning all his receipts in to the bank and paying his store bills and making his purchases by check, his bank book tells the story.

If he has last year's debts to pay there is no better way to obliterate them than to commence depositing in a bank with a firm determination to make the balance grow, and he will be surprised to see how much he can accomplish and how fast these debts will be wiped out.

On the same principle the young man will soon find that he has sufficient stored away to purchase a home and at the same time has established a credit at the bank that will enable him to make improvements at once which otherwise must wait perhaps for years.

No Charge is made by us for collecting checks when left with us on deposit and you can then pay all your store bills and make all your purchases with a check of your own, which will be returned to you, AN INDISPENSIBLE RECEIPT.

We pay FOUR PER CENT. for specified TIME DEPOSIT.

Modern Woman

A Dame With More Money Than Brains or Culture Makes a Show of Herself — One of America's New Rich

She was gowned to kill. There was no doubt about that. She wore a green feather nearly as long as her arm, and the greenbacks fairly shone over the rest of her costume. Her hair was peroxidized; her gait was mincing and skippy. She came in waving her arms at her sides, sticking her fingers out and wriggling her body after the manner of overdressed, tightly laced women bent on making an impression. They always make it. She frisked up to the counter of the book room of a great department store and said in the feminine artificial society squeak: "Oh, Miss Sales, is 'Trial by Marriage' out yet? I'm just dying to read it." "It's out today," answered Miss Sales, with a face all the more serious because she could hardly keep from laughing. "Well," said Madam Money-and-nothing-else, "just send it down to me at the Ten Dollar a Day hotel. We're staying there. We haven't opened our house on Millionaire place because we're going abroad, you know. It is so stupid on this side, you know. Sunday on this side is the worst day of all — so perfectly dead and dull. I'm all bored to death on Sunday. Be sure to send 'Trial by Marriage' before Sunday. I want something amusing." Then she turned, with her girly, girly-girly air, and skipped out, wearing the manner of one who thinks she has made an impression. After her departure the young woman clerk released the laugh that had been held in leash. The book Madam Money really meant was that very serious and revolutionary volume, "The Family." Madam evidently thought it was a humorous novel.

Much newspaper comment has been aroused by the confession of a young society woman in New York that she spends $50,000 a year on dress. The statement has given occasion to the question, How much should a woman spend a year on dress? Well, as much as she pleases if she can pay for it.

but she will not spend $50,000 unless she is a fool.

Lately it was announced that 200 women stood in line an hour to get admitted to the courtroom where the trial was on of one of the most atrocious murder cases on record even for the terrible year of 1906. Such morbid curiosity is a sure sign of either an entirely empty or actually diseased mind. A normal civilized soul, whether that of man or woman, shrinks from tales of murder and horror and blood. A right minded, refined, gentle woman would have got as far away as she could from even the echoes of that terrible murder trial. The morbid craving of present day American women for the horrible, the scandalous and the unclean is one of the most lamentable phases of our alleged civilization.

Here are some of the editorial topics treated in the Peking Woman's Journal, the daily Chinese paper edited by a Chinese woman: "Evils of Obtaining Evidence by Torture," "Evils of Opium Taking," "Proof That the World is Round and That It Moves," "Love of Country."

The spectacular and violent methods adopted by the band of English "suffragettes," as the women suffragettes are called, has been much condemned, yet the result of it will probably be that the women of Great Britain in a lump will get the ballot long before those of the "free" United States. The British say the ballot seekers have made such a "crying nuisance" of themselves that the easiest way to get rid of them will be to let them have the vote. Just so. Then, too, many of the ablest, most famous men in Great Britain, among them George Meredith, Israel Zangwill and Bernard Shaw, have come out in newspaper letters defending and upholding the suffragettes and calling attention to the ridiculous attitude in which the government finds itself.

Judge Swartz of Norristown, Pa., has given the decision that a wife has no right to invite even her own mother to visit her if her husband objects. Woman, you poor, pusillanimous creature go way back and sit down. Judge Swartz must have mother-in-law-phobia.

A Pleasure to Be Lost.

Some time ago it was reported that Mr. Rockefeller was lost. Although the members of his family didn't exhibit any special concern or put a want ad. in the papers "Lost—One multimillionaire; under please return and receive reward," yet several of the special correspondents did not think they were not doing their duty to society unless they threw a couple of conviction fits.

The average man could think of nothing more delightful than being lost with Mr. Rockefeller's roll, and he wouldn't take any particular pains to report the case to the police until he had made it look thinner than the neighbors had seen it looking for some time.

When the man who is lost can buy the first town that he comes to, so that he may at once feel at home, the average man will not waste much sympathy on him.
