MONTAVILLA

A Plea for the Home Merchant.

When will the people of Montavilla wake up to the fact that nothing will encourage business men to invest their capital in Montavilla and work for its growth so much as for the citizens to do their trading in Montavilla? Money spent in the town in which you live means added resources for the upbuilding of the town. The only reason why our merchants do not carry larger stocks is because the stocks they are already carrying are too large for the amount of trade grudgingly given them. Every careful buyer knows he can save money by trading at home. Then why not let everybody try it? There is no reason why you shouldn't. Every legitimate line of business is represented and in a first-class way too. When you want anything drop in and see these merchants, inspect their goods, compare prices and you will see that you can do better with them than elsewhere.

Presbyterian Chapel About Completed

The new Presbyterian chapel, on Thurlow and Wadham streets, has about reached completion and divine service will be held there for the first time next Sunday. Rev. Dr. McGow, formerly of Chicago, but recently from Ft. Wayne, Ind., will be pastor in charge for the present at least. The doctor has the reputation of being a very gifted speaker and will undoubtedly have good congregations.

The chapel is only intended to meet the present needs and as soon as the congregation shall justify will be replaced by a more pretentious church edifice.

Library Will Give Entertainment.

An entertainment for the benefit of the reading room will be given in the Odd Fellows hall on Friday, April 12th. Some of Portland's musical talent has agreed to assist and the program promises to be one of the best ever given in Montavilla. Students from the Western Academy of Music will participate. There will be readings, instrumental music, vocal solos and a men's quartet.

Ice cream, coffee and cake will be served later in the evening. If you enjoy good music, are fond of ice cream, or are interested in the reading room, be sure to come.
