EDITORIAL

TO OUR ADVERTISERS.

The Herald certainly appreciates the very liberal patronage accorded us in the past. Believing that The Herald is now in every sense a first-class advertising medium in the district through which it circulates, we have no hesitancy in asking your continued patronage. We trust, however, that the matter of getting copy for new ads. or change for ad. to us will be given due consideration and be in this office not later than Tuesday night of each week. By observing this rule you will get better results, and so will we.

OUR NEW DEPARTURE.

A decided change in the size, make-up and appearance of The Herald will be noticed this week. This change has been made for several reasons:

First—It is our desire to print news of interest to all.

Second—A number of our subscribers take no other paper but The Herald.

Third—A goodly number take no daily and but one weekly or semi-weekly paper in addition to The Herald, hence would appreciate more general news.

Fourth—Being desirous of making The Herald in every sense a clean family newspaper of interest to every member. We have for several weeks past made diligent enquiry as to just the kind of news desired by the majority of our readers. After a careful summary of these friendly suggestions and criticisms we have decided to publish the service herein presented, feeling that this fills the need more fully than any heretofore published by us.

WHY SMITH SOLD HIS SALOON

"I hear that Smith has just sold his saloon," said one of a couple of middle-aged men who sat sipping their beer and eating a bit of cheese in an American saloon.

"Yes," responded the other, rather slowly.

"What was the reason? I supposed he was just coining money there."

The other nibbled a cracker abstractedly for a moment, and then said: "Smith, you know lives on Mount Washington, right near me, where he has an excellent wife a nice home and three as pretty children as ever played out of doors. Smith is a pretty respectable sort of a citizen, never drinks or gambles and thinks the world of his family.

"Well, he went home one afternoon last week and found his wife out shopping. He went through the house into the backyard and there under the apple tree were the little fellows playing. They had a bench and some tumblers and bottles, and were playing 'keep saloon.' He noticed that they were drinking something out of a pail, and that they acted tipsy. The youngest, who was behind the bar, had a towel tied around his waist, and was setting the drinks up pretty free.

"Smith walked over and looked in the pail. It was beer and two of the boys were so drunk that they staggered. A neighbor's boy, two years older, lay asleep behind the tree.

"Boys you must not drink that," he said, as he lifted the six-year-old from behind the bench.

"We's playin' s'loon, papa, an' I was sellin' it just like you," said the little fellow.

"Smith poured out the beer, carried the drunken boy home, and then took his own boys home and put them to bed. When his wife came back she found him crying like a child.

"He came down town that night and sold out his business and says he will never sell or drink another drop of liquor. His wife told mine about it, and she broke down crying while she told it."

This is a true story, but the name was not Smith.—Northwestern Agriculturist.

Lots of grafting going on nowadays—in the orchard.

A pair of chubby hands and dimpled arms around your neck, a happy baby face pressed close to yours, is among the best recipes for the blues, isn't it?

The Gresham Commercial League proposes to do something, if no more than to get its name on the back of the Oregon Development League letter head. So mote it be.

Who should put up the funds for advertising the resources of our community? Every man who owns a foot of land, conducts a business or derives his living from it.

"Judge not lest ye be judged," says the good book. Yet some are never so happy as when sitting in judgment on some poor fellow. Yes, we plead guilty, too. Let us strive to look for the better side.

At first we regretted being late in our Saturday night visit at the barber shop last week. We are not regretting it now. A number of the Herald's friends insisted on paying their subscription while there.

In the death of Henry W. Goode, president of the Portland General Electric company, Oregon has lost one of its most progressive men. Such men as he are none too plentiful and when taken leave a place that is hard to fill.

What a surprise it would be to some of the old time political bosses if the single district plan of representation should be adopted by the people. Some of our farmers might then stand a chance of getting into the legislature.

"The Charity Girl," a stirring serial story by Effie A. Rowlands, appears in this week's issue. It will prove of interest to our young folks, who have doubtless greatly enjoyed "The Pillar of Light," which is now nearing the close.

Did you ever stop to think that of all the advertising being done in the East by the railroads, Oregon City or Portland commercial bodies, not one word is said in behalf of northwestern Clackamas or Multnomah counties? This is but another illustration that "the powers that be help them that help themselves."

Insist that the wife leave the babies and all the cares behind and take a little trip with you, if it is only to the store for an hour or two. It is restful for her, and gives you a chance to tell her how much it means to you to have her with you, to help you select your spring suit, to meet your friends, to feel that she is indeed your companion and in fact the only one in whom you care to confide. Have you tried it recently? You will find it worth your while.

THREE-SIX

Where is three six and who lives there? A nice little colony in the big timber, fir and cedar, yes, and beech, three generations. On the very edge of town you will find Pridemore and more of it as you keep climbing. The rainy (Ranny) days bring sunshine that melts the snow, filling the Brook (e), and making the land look fresh and green, giving health and glow to all animate as well as inanimate beings that chance to be fortunate enough to have been (Ben) a resident of this verdant soil. Colds, grippe or any such thing have no room here. And as can be vouched for by a coughman (Koffman), and the Core (v) of each tree proves the health of the moist climate. The little colony lives in hopes that some day they will own a cozy little farm coming direct from Uncle Sam but according to President Roosevelt's sentiments we have reasons to be alarmed for Uncle Sam is no longer rich enough to give us all a farm. It is very discouraging but hope sends out a spark now and then that stimulates the desire to own what by rights belongs to them.

L. J. Ranny came home Saturday and visited with his family until Tuesday when he returned to his work at the mill.

B. A. Beach went to Sandy on business Thursday.

Charles Newland is quite busy at his desk he being secretary for the three Lixers.
