A FEW MINUTES WITH THE EDITOR

SUCCESSFUL PASTORATE

The picture of the Methodist church building, appearing on the front page of The Herald this week, stands as a monument to the ability and aggressiveness of its pastor, Dr. A. Thompson. The members of the church and the citizens of the community have been alarmed for some weeks lest Dr. Thompson should decide to end his work as a minister of the gospel. Influential members and friends have, we hope, prevailed upon the doctor to consent to return to the Gresham church, if the Conference meeting this week at Grace church, Portland, sees fit to re-appoint him to this field.

As an educated, able and aggressive Christian factor in the fight for righteousness, Dr. Thompson has few equals. He preaches the truth as he sees it, regardless of whom it hits. Success has followed his work in this community from the start. He has worked hard to give the Methodists and citizens of Gresham a church home and membership of which they might feel proud.

How well he has wrought, all know. The Herald congratulates both pastor and members upon the splendid showing made during the doctor's stay among us. Dr. Thompson, however, has not worked alone. Beside him has ever been a mild eyed, lovable woman of exceptional ability, a womanly woman, a sympathetic, aggressive Christian worker, one whom the whole town loves and admires. She has been a mighty factor in the good work of this happily mated pair. Whether Dr. Thompson and his good wife return to Gresham, or, in the wisdom of the conference, are sent elsewhere, the best wishes of the Herald and a host of friends will go with them.

MORE UNWRITTEN LAW

The already overburdened tax payers of Multnomah county have another big bill to pay as the result of weakness of humanity, and the effect of having no laws to promptly and effectively prosecute and punish such cases as that caused by the unlawful act of Geo. Herbert with the wife of Chas. H. Reynolds. As usual there was no relief from the state. Reynolds took the law into his own hands and killed his wife's paramour. The public applauds, the jury turns the murderer loose. The woman in the case, equally guilty with the one killed, is free to pursue her own sweet will instead of being in jail where she belongs. The New York World, recently speaking along this line says:

Gov. Vardaman of Mississippi, in the Birdsong case, decides that a woman is justified in murdering her paramour if he gets drunk and reveals their relations. Why not repeal the written law and depend entirely on the unwritten law? Then the country could dispense with the president and congress, with governors, legislators, judges, courts, sheriffs and police, while each person enacted his own law and enforced it with a shotgun. Why waste all this money on a superfluous thing like government?

CERTAINLY IT SHOULD LIVE

"Should the Pacific Christian Advocate live?" asks W. S. Gordon in a recent issue of that splendid paper. It is a shame and a disgrace to every Methodist family living in the Pacific Northwest whose names, paid in advance, following it, are not found on its subscription list. The writer is not a Methodist, but he does read the Advocate sufficiently to know that it is one of the very best denominational papers published on the coast. Its editor, Rev. Daniel L. Rader, is an able and an aggressive fighter for right, and the up-building of Methodism. And whenever the members of the Methodist church of the Pacific Northwest force the paper to suspend because of lack of patronage, it will have done itself irreparable damage. Stay by your church paper.

AGREES WITH OUR POLICIES

Our good friend Watson of the Seaside Signal evidently believes in handing out the bouquets while one can yet appreciate their worth. Speaking of the Beaver State Herald in a recent issue of his paper, he says:

One of the most welcome exchanges at the Signal editor's table is the (Gresham) Beaver State Herald. Every issue of it is interesting. If there were a few more Brownhills in the business in Oregon, what a power for good the country press in this state would be!

Thanks, brother Watson. We are glad you appreciate the Herald. It encourages the Herald force in its efforts to make a good paper, to know that one of Oregon's oldest and best journalists endorses the Herald's position in its constant fight for the right that needs assistance and against the wrong that needs resistance.

THINKS BILL IS EXORBITANT

That A. L. Lambert, administrator of the estate of W. Studers, has put in an exorbitant bill for services rendered, is the contention of District Attorney Manning, in an objection to the account which he has filed with the county court. He says in his protest that $340 is demanded by the administrator for his services, though $210 is all he is legally entitled to. Objections are all made to a bill for $350, rendered by the administrator, who says he paid the amount as attorney's fees. Manning contends that a former administrator paid $150 to the same attorney, who has never rendered any additional services to the estate.—Oregonian.

A local newspaper is absolutely necessary to any community. It is the home paper that keeps the people of the community in touch with each other by giving them the news of their own neighborhood and county. They keep the local pride and progressive spirit aroused and in various ways are worth more to a community than a community ever spends on them. The daily paper with its large news service and quicker facilities may, in some instances, overshadow the weekly, but the weekly home paper fills a place in the hearts of the people that a daily cannot fill. It comes to your home as an old and tried friend, while the daily enters as a stranger.—Exchange.

Ye scribe recently stopped at Portland's latest in the way of hotels, Hotel St. Philip. We were well pleased with the treatment received at the hands of mine host, H. M. Pierce, the proprietor. Everything in the big building is first-class in every respect. The rooms are splendidly furnished, carpeted, lighted and aired, and have hot and cold water, with free bath on every floor. And one doesn't have to pay two prices for the accommodation either. Rates and location will be found elsewhere in this issue, and we hope our folks, when in the metropolis, will take advantage of the occasion and stay at Hotel St. Philip.

The Newberg Graphic says it would rather have its city pay roll as a slogan for public proclamation than McMinnville's loudly proclaimed roll of honor for its banks, whose coffers are filled to overflowing with idle money. The Graphic's position is well taken and the sooner the citizens of McMinnville wake up to the fact and get their idle money invested in the things that produce pay rolls, the better it will be for McMinnville and its citizens.

The kickers on the farm are not so hard to get along with as the kickers in town. On the farm there is the kicking cow, and our long-eared friend, the mule, while in town there is the old mossback who wants all the municipal improvements without paying for them. The cow may be sold for beef, the mule traded for a shot gun, but nothing but a funeral will get rid of the town kicker.—Exchange.

For the benefit of those who abhor printers' ink as a prime factor to the advancement of their interests, we would state that Sampson, the strong party, was the first man to advertise. He took two solid columns to demonstrate his strength, and several thousand people "tumbled" to his scheme. He brought down the house.—Exchange.

Gresham is planning on a great, good time at its County and Grange Fair and Carnival. And they will have it. A great number of Clackamas county people are interested in this coming fair, for Gresham is "just over the line" in Multnomah.—Estacada News.

Uncle Sam proposes to build war ships just as good or better than the Britishers' Dreadnought and Temeraire, and doubtless will make good. But when will such splendid steamers as the Lusitania and her sister ship, Mauretania, float under the stars and stripes?

The Multnomah county exhibit won the third prize at the State Fair. Considering this was the first attempt, and only a limited time to get the exhibit up in, Manager Miller did exceedingly well. The exhibit will be brought to Gresham for the fair in October.

Two men were recently trying to see which could tell the biggest lie. "Once upon a time," said the first fellow, "there was a wealthy country editor." "Hold on," said the second fellow, "that's enough, I can't beat that."

State Historian Geo. H. Himes calls our attention to the fact that the first fair held in Multnomah county was in 1859 instead of 1869 as published in last week's paper.

County Library to Have Fine Exhibit

The Library Association of Portland, the free county library, will have on exhibition a model traveling library, one of the collections of fifty books placed at deposit stations for circulation to residents of county districts. There will also be exhibited a sample box of children's books, such as are placed in the county schools for the use of teachers and pupils. In addition to the books, every teacher may borrow sets of mounted pictures to illustrate her class work, and a sample set of these will also be shown.

The Gresham reading-room, in the Metzger building on Powell street, is open week days from 2:30 to 5:30 and from 7 to 9 p.m. Here visitors to the fair may spend a pleasant half hour. There is a children's corner with picture books for little children and books to read for larger children. Among the books for older people will be found a very interesting collection of books on farming, fruit growing, dairying and other subjects of special importance to farmers. Books on pedagogy, on literature and history will be found shelved near the study table for the use of teachers and students.

In addition to the Gresham collection, there is a weekly delivery of books specially asked for from the circulating department of the central library. Any member of the library may take advantage of this delivery service. The establishment of a reading-room at Gresham not only insures better library facilities to residents of the immediate vicinity, but also affords a distributing point for the entire eastern section of the county.

Subscribers asking for change of address will please give former address as well as present one.
