The ice trust's plan to gobble up all the refrigerating plants between Boston and Washington will probably be put in cold storage until the investigation instituted by New York state's attorney general is completed.

Mark Twain as presidential pilot? Nonsense! The president is his own pilot, on land or on the water.

There will be no kick from the country on the proposition to give the soldiers better pay.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Happersett have returned from Laticrande, where they spent a week visiting their son, Chas. Happersett.

Miss Carol Lambert has sold her cottage on Hibbard street to Thos. Blackwell. The sale was made by Osburn Bros.

W. H. Jamieson of Astoria visited his family on Sunday.

Mrs. Maud Gillman is on the sick list.

Montavilla Assembly of United Artists gave a very successful whist party and social Tuesday evening, which was much enjoyed by all present.

Rev. Gillman Parker and wife returned from Ocean Park last week, Mrs. Parker having fully recovered. A larger congregation than usual greeted them last Sunday. Next Sunday Reverend Parker will speak on the following subjects: Morning, "Filled for Larger Service." Evening, "Power to Become Sons of God."

The citizens of Montavilla wish to congratulate the citizens of Gresham upon their success in securing the Mt. Hood railroad. We have been watching your efforts with more than a passing interest. This road will now pass through the middle of our suburb instead of on our extreme northern boundary as it probably would have done had it gone by way of Fairview.

The library committee have received notice from the owner of the property that their rent will be raised. This will probably make it necessary to move to other quarters.

The Odd Fellows have purchased a new piano for their hall, which will be greatly appreciated by all the lodges which meet in that hall as well as by the L. O. O. F. members.

Saving or Spending.

A correspondent of the Independent has raised a question that is attracting the attention of economists, professional and amateur. He wishes to know whether it is better for a man in receipt of a moderate income to spend all he receives, trusting to the acquisition of increased earning power for provision for the future, or whether it is better to follow the time honored maxim that one should spend a little less than he earns.

The arguments wherewith the former position are supported are at least plausible. It is declared that if a man scrupulously saves, depriving his family and himself of the comforts and luxuries of life, in order to "put away something for a rainy day" he places himself in peril of falling below his professional standard and thus lowering his earning ability. On the other hand, if he does not save it is very likely that old age will find him so financially embarrassed that the poorhouse or dependence on relatives will be his only refuge from destitution and want.

The Independent's correspondent places before the public the following concrete instance:

Suppose two young assistant editors find themselves on rival papers, each thirty years old and each on a salary of $80 a week. Suppose the editor plans to save enough out of his income so that he will have enough to retire on at sixty-five and live comfortably ever after. But to save such an amount or anything like it he will have to give up clubs, public dinners and all those social amusements where men meet and where much editorial inspiration abounds; he will have to abandon all thought for the future, or, at least, enjoy the worldly delights denied his rival and spends every cent of his income, if not a little more.

Comparing the two men at the end of ten years, it is declared that one will be a "threadbare, old" at the elbow, hack essayist, while the other may be "the opulent, self-satisfied and successful editor of a trust organ or yellow journal."

While this view of the case may commend itself to some readers, the general opinion will be, we think, that the man who saves something, however small, from his salary pursues the wiser course.

Pilgrim Mothers Forgotten.

At the dedication of the monument at Provincetown, Mass., the other day in honor of the pilgrim fathers no mention was made of the pilgrim mothers, who shared all their toils and dangers, and no woman had a place on the programme. This is not to the credit of the committee on arrangements.

When President Roosevelt, the principal speaker at Provincetown, visited New Orleans Miss Jean Gordon was introduced to him at the reception with the remark that she was a strong believer in woman suffrage. "Mr. Roosevelt believes in woman suffrage, too," said Miss Gordon. "You let I do," answered the president heartily. And as he was led away to some of the formal exercises in which women had no part he turned back and added: "If you women had votes you would not be excluded from these exercises. You would have your full share in the whole celebration."

In this case at least the women seem to have a just grievance. The pilgrim mothers and their daughters of today should have had an opportunity to be heard.

The statistics of the women's vote at the last national election in Australia have just been published in this coun-

UPPER LATOURELL

David Benfield was at Bridal Veil Sunday.

P. Anderson was in Portland on business Saturday.

Mrs. Lottie Benfield has returned from a week's visit with Mrs. Alvin Floss of Milwaukee.

Mr. and Mrs. Belross have moved to Montavilla for the winter.

Three boys from this place were winners of the school exhibit at the Gresham fair, each receiving $2 in cash. The names of the boys are James Leaver, Robert Knierim and Roy Anderson.

Mrs. J. Deaver, wife of the pioneer farmer of this place, took seriously ill Saturday afternoon, but at this writing is much improved.

Miss Maud Walters of Portland is at home visiting her folks.

Roy Anderson spent Sunday with his cousin, Ruby Rasmussen.

The stock made a visit to Mountain Dale farm Saturday and presented Mr. and Mrs. F. Rickert with an 8-pound boy.

We are all glad to see Miss Eva Reed in our midst again.

PLEASANT HOME

Mrs. James Hillyard and daughter Arissa are both very sick.

Mr. Brooks and Emmett Coleman of Troutdale visited the Douglass family one day this week.

Sunday school is doing nicely, but we wish the parents would come more with their children.

E. M. Carpenter is now able to be up and around.

Miss Zelma Coss of Ridgefield, Wash., visited her mother and friends Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Lake's little daughter Florence is on the sick list.

Cecil Coss came out with his mother and sister from Portland Friday, and will have two weeks' vacation, as he does not have to take the high school examinations.

The death of Wm. Arthur Hite was a shock to the people of Pleasant Home, as it was so sudden. He was 10 years of age and was left motherless when only two years old. He was taken ill Sunday with pneumonia and died the following Tuesday. Funeral services were held at the Gresham Baptist church and interment was made in the Gresham cemetery.

William Anderson is sick with the mumps.

Mrs. Blanche Flemmings of Centralia, Wash., is happy over the arrival of a baby girl. Her mother, Mrs. Johns, of this place is visiting her.

James and Jessie Hite were on their way to Oklahoma when James' brother's death occurred. They could not be found so as to let them know of the sad news.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Zeek of Eagle Creek visited their son, Orland Zeek, and family recently.

Mr. Wolfe will preach in the Methodist church at Pleasant Home Sunday evening, November 24.

Mr. and Mrs. Orland Zeek went to Eagle Creek Sunday to visit his mother and father, and brought little Mildred, who had been staying with her grandparents, back with them.

EAST SECTION LINE

Mr. Hendrix has moved his family in the country. He bought the 40 acres opposite John Long's place.

Mrs. McGregor and baby were guests of Mrs. Dahlhammer Wednesday.

Mr. Allshouse has surprised his wife in getting her a new piano.

The carload of land plaster that P. Lynch ordered some time ago was at Fairview Thursday. The farmers around Irish Flat made their purchase from him for their next year's supply.

GLEANINGS.

In all Rhodesia there are only 12,568 white people.

Southern Spain is suffering from a plague of grasshoppers, which are destroying all the crops.

The Simpon tunnel has cut the length of the journey from Paris to Milan by an hour and a half.

Successful experiments have been made in Toulon to use gulls in place of carrier pigeons. They have this advantage—that, unlike the pigeons, they are always ready to fly, even in the fiercest storm.

"Cubbing" as it is used now is only about twenty years old, having come into fashion after the trial of a New York alderman for bribery in 1886. It has been protested against from the English bench as an intolerable Americanism.
