PUBLISHERS' IMPROVED METHODS

The new postal law prohibiting publishers from sending their paper through the mails to persons who are owing over one year's subscription is having a salutary effect. It is estimated that over six million papers have been stopped since January 1st. The new law will result in good to publisher and subscriber alike inasmuch as neither subscriber or publisher can be imposed upon to the extent heretofore possible.

The Herald is of the opinion that the next step taken by the department will be a cash in advance plan. This is the only safe and sane business method, causes less annoyance to both publisher and subscriber and leaves neither under obligation to the other. Judging from the way cash in advance renewals and new subscriptions are pouring into The Herald office, our folks, as well as ourselves, are well satisfied with The Herald and its cash in advance policy.

Cash in advance means that every subscriber is reading his own paper, has a higher regard for its publisher, as well as for the matter contained in its columns. The subscriber realizes and appreciates the fact that when his subscription expires, the paper will stop, instanter. With this policy in vogue the publisher can afford to, and does give a better paper.

The Herald is one of the first country papers in Oregon to adopt the business policy of cash in advance and we believe every paper worthy of the name will soon adopt this policy, for the simple reason that it pays both publisher and subscriber better and is more satisfactory than the old system.

A good name is more to be desired than gold. Riches sometimes leave us, but a good name never.

BEAVER STATE HERALD—FRESH EVERY WEEK!
RENEW EARLY—SUBSCRIBE AT ONCE—$1.50

Learn to say no. There are times in the life of every person when one is tempted to do wrong. That is the time to say no, and say it in such a way that you will not be misunderstood. It pays in the end.

Timothy Brownhill, editor of the Beaver State Herald at Gresham, passed through on his way home from eastern Oregon Tuesday. Mr. Brownhill stepped off the train to shake hands with friends at the depot.—Hood River Glacier.

We acknowledge, with thanks, receipt of a personal letter from the Sandy Land company of Sandy, in which they express their satisfaction with, and thanks to the editor for the splendid Christmas edition published in behalf of Sandy.

Many progressive farmers will doubtless take advantage of the short courses offered at the Oregon Agriculture college, General Agriculture will be given two weeks; mechanic arts, six weeks; household science, six weeks. Each of these lecture courses are supplemented by demonstration and practical exercises in each department and will of course prove a great help to the farmers of the state.

country, at least that is the way we feel since getting back. We have got more grip than we want anyhow, and certainly more than we need.

Every time the saloon men of Oregon permit an outrage to occur in any of their places like that of record concerning Ethel Bacon at the hands of the bartender and some of the patrons of the city hall buffet in Portland last week, they are only doing that which will the sooner arouse public sentiment against them and drive them out of business. No man, be he for temperance or not, will stand for a thing like that.

W. F. Hill, master of Pennsylvania State grange, very wisely suggests that the National Grange paper, now being published at Philadelphia, Pa., should be owned, controlled and published by the National grange, and that a copy of same should be sent to every family or single member in the United States. No more efficient assistant can be found for the upbuilding of any order than a real live weekly paper.

Conservation of Natural Resources. The United States, says the Reader magazine, has astounded the world by its spectacular rapidity of development. We came into the sisterhood of nations, an evangel of liberty and a herald of better days to the nations. But we are the Spendthrift, the Waster, the Never-do Well of nations.

Beginning in modern times with incomparably rich natural resources, we have ravaged a continent of its wood and coal iron, and we smilingly face the exhaustion of our bank account in these things like a boy in the midst of his sowing of wild oats.

Our forests are gone. The scattered fragments left will disappear in twenty years. The pinch of exhausting coal fields has begun, and the best authorities are computing the time of the end of our supply, trying to determine whether it will be our children or our grandchildren who will have to face a future without coal. We have vast reserves of water power, coal, iron, and lands capable of reclamation and reforestation, but we seem to have no adequate conception of our duties toward them, to ourselves, our country or posterity.

Our soil is being washed away into the rivers, and by them carried to the sea, and our boasted fertility of soil is thereby being lessened year by year; but the irreparable drain is ignored. Our neglect is almost equal to our active waste. The vast potentialities of our waterways in bearing commerce and in furnishing power have been neglected.

But a new era seems dawning. President Roosevelt is bringing these matters into the field of practical statesmanship. The Inland Waterways commission has been constituted by him as a great agency for pointing out these national dangers and co-ordinating the governmental plans for conserving our national resources. In constructive statesmanship, the work outlined rises to the most exalted plane. It demands the attention of every American. On its success depends the future. We must make the most of what is left of our once great estate. We must stop waste; we must keep our natural resources from the grasp of monopoly, or we may sink to a status of commercial and national inferiority and subordination.

The Secret of a Beautiful Face lies in keeping the skin protected as well as cleaned. Just washing is not enough—that only leaves the delicate surface more exposed to the irritation of dust and germs, to merciless attacks of sun and weather. After washing, apply Ruberine and experience its delightful refreshment. You will admire the line-softness it imparts to face, neck and arms. It not only stimulates a radiant glow, but protects the skin from becoming coarse. Prevents burning, tan and freckles.
