GRANGE AND THE PRESS.

An Ohio Idea That Might Well Be Adopted in Other States.
[Special Correspondence.]

About two months ago the publishers of the Graphic-News of Kenton, O. decided that the grange organizations of the county ought to be represented, and well represented, in the local newspaper. Suiting the action to the idea, the publishers set apart two pages to be used each week by the grange organization in telling of the doings of the farmers in the promotion of knowledge and culture and, if they chose, in preaching the principles of the grange. The publishers suggested that each subordinate grange in the county should appoint a grange correspondent to represent his respective organization in the double page grange department. The Pomona grange of the county and the fourteen subordinate granges accepted the proposition. The result has been that the double page in the Graphic-News has been bulged every week with timely and exceptionally well prepared grange news. Each subordinate grange has its regular column or two, and each takes pride in being well represented every week. To lighten the interest of the grangers in this work the publishers offer three handsome prizes to the three granges that should during a period of eight weeks provide the most best and newest matter for the grange department. The liveliest interest was shown in the contest. The result is that the grange, heretofore seldom thought of and little known in the county, has received so great an advertisement that it has grown and is now one of the most powerful, if not the most powerful, organization in the county.

An enthusiastic grange spirit has been developed, and the people of the city of Kenton have taken a greater interest in the affairs of the farm. All of this tended to prepare for a most hospitable reception there for the Ohio state grange, which met at Kenton during the second week in December. Now the proprietors of the papers have proposed to the grangers that they leave the plow for a day and take possession of the editorial rooms of the paper for one issue to give the public an idea as to "how the farmer would edit a whole newspaper." The Pomona grange of the county accepted this proposition, elected a corps of farmer reporters and a farmer editor in chief and announced its readiness to take charge of the sanctum sanctorum for one edition. OHIOAN.

NEW HAMPSHIRE GRANGE.

There Are 28,286 Members of the Grange in the Grand State and $25,816 in the Treasury.
New Hampshire state grange convened this year at Manchester. The secretary's report showed the total membership in 282 active granges on Oct. 1, 1907, 12,687 men and 14,509 women, making a total of 28,286. There are nineteen Pomona granges, with a membership of 7,526. The treasurer reported resources of the grange at $25,816.60. The discussion over taxation reform was earnest, and the state grange went on record in petitioning governor and council to place a farmer who would represent the agricultural class on the new state tax commission. H. O. Hadley was re-elected master for the third term after a spirited contest with Charles B. Hoyt, overseer. G. C. Yeaton of Dover and D. C. Westgate of Plainfield were elected to the executive committee. The grange went on record as not in sympathy with the warfare against corporations so long as they operate along legitimate lines. On the other hand, it demanded that corporations shall keep within bounds, and it asked for such legislation as shall be necessary to effect justice and equality. It demanded that the farming interests be not unfairly burdened and that railroads give no unfair advantage to any section in market competition. The grange endorsed the parcel post scheme of Postmaster General Meyer; also postal saving banks.

The lecturer's conference was attended by 180 subordinate lecturers, and many helpful suggestions for the year's work were made. The subordinate granges in the state will be asked to discuss the subject, "The Business Articles in the Warrant For Town Meetings" at the meeting next preceding town meeting. In April the grange was asked to discuss the subject "Practical Forestry For Farmers." In May the subject for debate will be "Should Our Towns Appropriate Money to Advertising Its Natural Advantages?" In September, "Should the State Grange Have a Permanent Home?" This idea of subordinate granges discussing one subject on a given day when most timely is a good one.

The national Grange Gavel. The gavel used by National Master Bacheiler when presiding over the meeting of the national grange has a history. It was made from apple and cherry wood taken across the plains in 1847 by an ox team. When the national grange met in Portland, Ore., three years ago Judge Boise, now deceased, presented it to Hon. Aaron Jones, who was then the national master. In a beautiful and eloquent speech Judge Boise gave its history and presented it in the name of the Oregon state grange. It was accepted by Mr. Jones in an equally eloquent speech, and the incident created great enthusiasm. The gavel has a solid gold band properly engraved. This gavel is one of the treasures of the national grange.

A grange was recently organized at Williamsville, Vt., with sixty-two charter members. The outlook in the Green Mountain State is promising.

J. W. DARROW.

Chicago newspapers are rejoicing over the discovery that Greater New York contains within its boundaries several hundred farms. Market gardening, of course, occupies the labors of most of the metropolitan agriculturists, but hay and stock also figure among their products. The farm statistics of Chicago have not been gathered, but it is safe to say that in the outlying districts of the former Prairie City the market quotations are as much a subject of interest as they are on the outskirts of Gotham.

His Own Critic.

An actor who was "taken" while on the stage by a cinematograph was greatly pleased with the result. Talking about it to a prominent dramatic critic, he said:

RECIPE FOR RHEUMATISM.

Directions to Prepare Simple Yet Remarkable Home Mixture.

There is so much rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice by an eminent authority who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper will be appreciated by those who suffer.

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffer from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture as it is certain to do much good and may save you from much misery and suffering after while.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

Kept His Word.
"I haven't got any case," said the client, "but I have money."
"How much?" asked the lawyer.
"Ten thousand pounds," was the reply.

"Then! You have the best case I ever heard of. I'll see that you never go to prison with that sum," said the lawyer cheerfully.

By Their Works Ye Shall Know Them.
"Yep," replied St. Whipple, the landlord of the Benson Bend hotel, "ther sausages I've ben feedin' my guests air made from kankies."

"How'd yer find thet out?" inquired the postmaster.
"Waal, I fed 'em sausages fer a week, and by Saturday every guest I had begun ter growl."—Judge's Library.

Not Needed.
In this country in our own day many words have been coined descriptive of every form of speed, of hearing at a distance, of seeing at a distance, of writing at a distance, of propelling oneself in various ways, of killing by electricity, of curing by electricity, and all the rest, but not one word has been coined for any new form of keeping still.—London Albany Review.

First Mississippi Steamboat.
The pioneer steamboat on the Ohio and Mississippi was the New Orleans, 135 feet long and 300 tons burden. She was built at Pittsburgh, from which place she started for New Orleans on Oct. 9, 1811. The first steamboat to ascend the Mississippi and Ohio was the Washington, built at Wheeling. The Washington made the return trip between Pittsburgh and New Orleans in forty-one days in the fall of 1816.
