Good Meeting of Damascus Grange

Damascus grange, No. 280, met on Saturday April 4th. State Master Buxton was present and gave a fine talk, also Brother Holden of Garfield was present and took part on the program. Their addresses were very instructive and were enjoyed by all.

Two new members were added at the meeting, making the membership at present 32. All enjoyed a good chicken dinner. After dinner those not members were asked to retire, but before doing so their names were secured for membership, so they will be able to remain in the future.

Worthy Master Henry Breithaupt was in the chair in the afternoon for the regular work. When the business was finished and the interesting dbcussions closed it was a late hour.

Russelville Grange Second Largest

Russellville grange, No. 353, held its second bi-monthly meeting of last month on the 28th of March. The progress of this grange has been rapid and is very interesting. All officers were present at the last meeting and eighty members out of a membership of 176.

This grange is now the second numerically in the state. It has the distinction of having the youngest set of officers of any grange in the state, eight of its present officers not yet having reached the 20-year mark.

After the usual routine of business was through with, a mock trial was had in place of the usual literary program.

On April 4th an entertainment and shadow social was given from which a neat sum was realized.

Word has been received from the state contest superintendent that this grange ranks second in the literary and attendance contest among the subordinate granges of Oregon.

The patrons of this grange appreciate the opportunity offered by The Herald in publishing grange items and all wish the new editor abundant success.

SATURN'S RINGS.

A Scientist Tells Why They Seem a Times to Disappear.

Are the rings of the planet Saturn falling off, as an American astronome is said to have announced not long ago? An English scientist explains "This statement goes considerably beyond the truth, although it has some foundation in fact, but that fact is no very alarming. Saturn's rings are now almost if not quite invisible, but there is nothing very surprising about this The contrary would really be more surprising. These rings are flat annular disks, fitting one within the other with small interspaces between, the outermost diameter being about 168,000 miles and the thickness of the disks about a hundred. Saturn's period of revolution about the sun is nearly thirty years, and for half this time the sun is shining obliquely on and illuminating one side of the plane For the other fourteen or fifteen years it lights up the opposite side. At the epochs when the sun's light passes from one side to the other of the ring plane, only its thin edge is illuminated and this is seen if at all as a fine bright line, and Saturn's rings are said to disappear.

"This configuration happened on July 26 last. Moreover, about this epoch the earth is sometimes north, sometimes south of the ring plane, and if the earth as seen from Saturn is north when the sun is south we are looking on the unilluminated side, and for this reason the rings will be invisible. This is happening now. The sun is south of the plane of the rings. On Oct. 14 the earth passed to the north of the same and the rings, which had been seen as a fine line, then became invisible. Not quite, however, though theoretically invisible, still they were seen in the latter part of October as faint as needles on either side of the orb of the planet, the suggestion being that the sun was shining through an interspace upon the edge of the second ring, and it is this lit up edge that is seen.

"As to the 'jostling and colliding' particles mentioned in the American telegram, it is a well known but nevertheless remarkable fact that these apparent disks are made up of a swarm of separate or 'discrete' particles, each a little independent moon, pursuing its own path round the planet. The rings are not falling off."—Chicago News.

"Mugging" In New York.

A young man was taken before a New York magistrate on a charge of larceny. The policeman who made the arrest asked permission to take him to police headquarters. "What for?" asked the judge. "To mug him, of course," was the response. "There is no 'of course' about it," the judge responded with emphasis. "You have no right to take a man's picture against his will until he has been convicted. This young man has not been convicted, and there is to be no 'mugging' in his case. The sooner the police understand the situation the less liable they will be to get into trouble." Other New York police magistrates have expressed themselves in similar terms.—Exchange.

Playing Before the King.

A "command" to play before the king is always appreciated by actors, but the honor of taking a company to Windsor or Sandringham is an expensive one, says the Dundee Advertiser. First class railway tickets are provided by his majesty's secretary, but everything else has to be paid by the manager. These expenses include special scenery to suit the improvised stage, the carriage of properties and dresses and the cab fares for the members of the company, who always arrive in London at an unearthly hour, when "growlers" are few and far between. Sir John Hare's recent appearance before the king cost him about $4,000.

Love Not Waning.

Myles—Have you any reason to believe your wife's love is growing cold?

Styles—Oh, no; she loves her dog as much as she ever did!—Yonkers Statesman.

His Belief.

Miss Elderleigh—Doctor, do you believe that bleaching the hair leads to softening of the brain?

Doctor—No, but I believe that softening of the brain sometimes leads to bleaching the hair.

Mrs. Cook has been very ill with pneumonia.

BULL RUN

Bull Run is coming out of its sleepy state. Last Tuesday evening the little village was illuminated with electric lights. We wondered what some of the old settlers of 30 years ago would say if they had suddenly dropped in front of the hotel.

The basket social given Saturday evening at the Cliffside church was a social and financial success. The program opened with several songs by the choir, led by Mr. and Mrs. Shipley, which was followed by a solo by Miss Gertie Clark; guitar music by Mrs. Berther; song by Laura and Mabel Shipley; recitation, Miss Lena Thomas; dialogue, Laura and Mabel Shipley, Hazel Howell and Master Floyd Burgess; phonograph music, G. Vanderhoof; recitation, Frank McGugin. The baskets all brought a good price. Frank McGugin was auctioneer and after waking the boys up, they loosened the strings on their pocket books, after which the money flowed freely.

Wesley Bacon, who has been on the sick list, is up again and improving slowly.

The old neighbors and friends of this place are still moving away. J. Cline and family left last Monday for their new home at Orient. It makes one feel quite lonely to pass their old home and not see the familiar faces of Mr. and Mrs. Cline, who have lived here for over 30 years.

DOVER

A. J. Kitzmiller went to Portland Monday.

Rev. W. S. Runyan preached at Dover Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Woodle and two children spent Sunday at the DeShazar home.

Thomas Collinge is ill with rheumatism and is at present resting and recuperating his strength for the summer siege. Mr. Murphy is driving stage for Mr. Collinge until he is able to resume the stage line himself.

C. W. Kern has been laid up with the rheumatism but is around again as jolly as ever.

The teacher here is Miss Smith instead of Miss Davis.

Mr. Maulding's brother is visiting him.

Tom Brown of Salmon is reported to be laid up with rheumatism but expects to be around again soon.

The break in the hatchery dam, caused by high water, is being repaired.

Mrs. McIntyre is still the champion fisherwoman in this part of the country.
