A move that can be made in many ficult, if not well nigh impossible.

One decided advance that is notice able this season is that of the use of the seed drill for the small grains. In fields in which this tool has been used an evener stand and growth of grain are to be seen than in those in which the old broadcast seeding method has been followed. This is merely one of the evidences of the greater care which is being exercised in the working of lands whose value is advancing up to and above the eighty dollar per acre
