BORING

A party of genial young folks climbed Mt. Hood last Friday and report a very pleasant time. On account of the rapid melting of the snow and ice, the guide deemed it too dangerous for the party to proceed farther than Crater Rock which is almost 10,000 feet above sea level, though everyone in the party was capable of making it to the top. The temperature being moderate and the air clearer than for several days previous rendered the day almost ideal for making the ascent. Face washing in the snow, sleighing and sliding were also thoroughly enjoyed by all. Those in

WELCHES

Welches resort is booming! Eighty guests are registered at the hotel. Eight automobiles made the run up here Saturday and 15 more were expected Sunday. The average run is made in from three to four hours from Portland. There are about 150 campers on the camp grounds and lots of fish are being caught daily. Many bear hunters are here but the results of expeditions so far have been "bare."

Quite a few parties from here have gone up to the Big Falls on Salmon and report a delightful trip, lots of sport, scenery and fish in abundance and a country where deer, elk and bear abound, where nearly every fisherman reports seeing one or more deer or a bear looking down on him from some projecting point.

Hotel Rhododendron is rapidly filling up with guests and Manager Holden is very busy looking after the wants and needs of his guests.
Yocums are reported as having a large number of guests with parties climbing Hood every day.
One of the best dances ever held at Welches resort was attended by a large crowd of guests and campers. Mr. Wemmie of Portland was the life of the crowd. The music was furnished by Welches orchestra.
