Building a Poultry House.

Building a poultry house is not only on one side, turn the rough a difficult job, yet there are a lot side out and give it a coat of of poorly housed chickens in this country. A few of the this country. A few of the things to be considered are, the expense, the convenience, the healthfulness of the birds, and house from one dozen to two again soon. the ease with which it may be dozen hens-enough for many kept clean and free from vermin. small families and surely enough be very ill.

The building need not be expensive. It need not be over 6 x 8 feet, three feet high on one side and five feet on the other, the roof being sloped. Let the higher side be to the south. The boards may be nailed on verbut we would prefer those on the south to run horizontally, the bottom board and the two at the top being nailed fast. Let the other two be fastened together and hinged from the top so the tically on the ends and one side, and hinged from the top so the office. house may be well aired out if necessary, and it will also be a decided advantage when it comes to cleaning. By having the floor lassfolk place with a fine lot of stock and implements, household furniture, etc. These he will sell at auction, along center and an opening cut in the lowest board, all the droppings 114 mile southeast of Gresham. may be easily scraped down the inclines and out into a box and easily removed. There should be a door at one end and a small opening for the chickens to pass Ore., an Oregon corporation, with mines through if so desired. Just county, will make his headquarters in above the roosts at one end the Gresnam with a view to interesting nests may be placed. If you begittimate investors.

The Salem Board of Trade sent a comwant something a little nicer, mittee to investigate the mining district in response to demand for a road. They cut a 6 x 8 hole on the back side mear the middle. Now by means of a couple of brackets build a couple platform the length of the house and about 18 inches wide. At the back of this nail a four-inch strip lengthwise; at the ends as eczema, tetter, salt rheum and barboard up to coincide with the ber's itch, are characterized by an inslope of the roof. Nail another strip six inches above the one just mentioned and from this upper one hinge a six-inch strip to fill the space and make a sort tense itching and smarting, which often makes life a burden and disturbs sleep and rest. Quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It allays the itching and smarting almost instantly. Many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by Gresham Drug Co.
