POWELL VALLEY

A very pleasant surprise was given Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nelson last Sunday afternoon at their new place they recently purchased near Powell Valley. About eight of their friends and neighbors arrived unexpected and presented them with a nice three piece parlor suite and a center table bought in Carson's furniture store in Gresham. A dainty luncheon was spread under the trees and a very good time was enjoyed by all.

ORIENT.

We have been having beautiful weather the last few days and the farmers are certainly taking advantage of it. Everything is growing nicely.

Rev. Creecy preached a very interesting sermon in the M. E. Church last Sunday night and the meeting was well attended. Rev. Brymer is going to hold a protracted meeting here in the M. E. Church every night during this week, excepting Saturday night, and perhaps both morning and evening next Sunday. We will be pleased to have every one come as often as possible.

Louis Hale came home from Independence last Saturday where he has been engaged in work for some time. He is going to remain here for awhile.

Rev. Brower is going to start east this week where he is going to be engaged in business for some time.

A. F. Chase is attending to business matters in Salem this week.

The death of E. Goger was a very sad one. The family has the sympathy of the whole community.

The ball game at this place was a perfect failure last Sunday, as the Corbet boys did not show up at all. Very well, it will be just as well for Corbet that they did not come.

Mrs. E. M. Douglass expects to move to Sandy in a short time. We will certainly miss her when she is gone.

Mr. and Mrs. Andre and their daughter, Elva, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hyatt, last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg, of Orient, spent Sunday with Mr. Kellogg's brother at Cottrell.

Every one is looking forward to the big drama next Saturday night given by the Lusted school in the Grange hall at Orient.

SHADE AND SUNSHINE.

A matter that should be looked into by every householder during the early summer months is that of the shade about the house. So rapidly do many of the varieties of shade trees grow that some pruning is necessary almost every year if the house is not to be buried in shade. It is a fairly good rule to follow that the house, as a whole, should be in the sunshine half the time. If this is not the case, one should get busy with ax and saw and let the sunshine in. One need hardly be told that when the shade is so dense that grass grows with difficulty about the house, when moss grows on the roof and mildew appears on books and furniture in the house, there is entirely too much of it, not only for the good and durability of the house, but for the health of its inmates. We are often prone to sympathize with dwellers in treeless prairie homes who often swelter in the July and August sun, but they are not so much in need of pity as those whose dwellings are swamped in shade and where mildew, sow bugs and snails hold high carnival.
