MT. HOOD ROAD MISTY HOODOO

Dame Rumor is Again Busy
In Building a Road to the Cascade Range.

Ever since the first surveys were run toward Mt. Hood there has been some hope that a new mode of transportation would soon be open for those who wish to spend the summer near the summit of the Cascade range. This hope has varied. Oftimes it has seemed of early realization and again it has faded into the dim future. About a year ago promises were made that something would soon be doing after the right-of-way cases were settled. These have long been disposed of and yet there seems to be just as much indecision as ever. The company has been accused of bad faith; of being a band of exploiters who were ready to sell out; of having gone bankrupt and of being the secret agents of some larger corporation, gaining territory only to turn it over in time to the real power behind the movement.

About a week ago the Portland papers declared the company had at last gained control of a lot of capital and were now ready to move on at once. A lot of men had already been sent out and trains were to be moving before the rainy season began. A representative of The Herald called at the offices to buy a few thousand shares. He found at once that he could get them, but he could not get any information about the road. Mr. Clark was there. He had a right to be there. He likes to ride around the country and get a change of hotels as well as anyone. Boarding at the same place gets a little tiresome even if it is a swell hotel. So he had come to Portland and while here he and his friends met some of their relatives who

NEW FEATURES FOR STATE FAIR

New Buildings Being Erected and Grounds Put in the Best of Condition.

The Oregon State Fair opens its gates to the public at Salem during the week of September 13-18, under the direction of the Oregon State Board of Agriculture. This is the forty-eighth fair in the history of the organization and is destined to outstrip them all. Several improvements are being made in the plan of the grounds, among which might be mentioned the construction of a massive concrete main entrance, flanked on either side by a commodious reinforced concrete administration building, in which will be located the offices of the board and which will be a very busy place during the week of the fair. This structure is located a few rods to the left of the former main gate and with its spacious vestibule and electric turnstiles will afford easier access to the grounds for the great crowds of people who attend.

A most desirable change has been made in the locations of the principal restaurants and the poultry pavilion, all of which will be appreciated by the visitors in attendance. The altering of the grounds in this respect affords larger lawns and more spacious walks up to and in front of the main exhibition buildings and the livestock barns on the fair grounds.

A livestock judging arena, 106 feet wide by 212 feet in length, has been made in close proximity to the stock barns, so that during the time that the several judges are passing upon the classes of stock entered for the premiums those spectators interested in the work can witness it without being held back by a few people in front who are always present to obstruct a general view of such things.

The secretary reports that there are many enteries of agricultural products and livestock in their several classes will be more plentiful than ever. The machinery pavilion has been enlarged so that there is fully 17,500 square feet of floor space for displaying farm implements, machinery, carriages, wagons and other vehicles.

The poultry pavilion is enlarged to the extent of an annex 42x75 feet, and the entire structure is equipped with new coops for the feathered beauties that will be entered for the ribbons and premiums. The superintendent of this department is Prof. James Dryden, of the poultry husbandry department of the Oregon Agricultural College. He is putting forth special efforts to make this exhibition of poultry the largest and most attractive in the history of the state fair. A section of the poultry building annex will be used for the Scotch Collie dog department.

The dairy department will be looked after by Paul V. Maris, one of the deputies to the state dairy commissioner. He will have a display of dairy and creamery products the like of which has never been seen on the fair grounds, and there will be a large display of dairy utensils by various dairy supply houses in the Pacific Northwest.

The racing at the fair will be of the best sort, as many horses of extraordinary speed have been entered for the rich purses that will be hung up. The race course is in splendid condition for record-breaking events.

W. C. T. U. Organized.

A W. C. T. U. was organized by Mrs. L. F. Addison of Lents at a meeting in the Methodist church last Sunday afternoon. About twenty persons joined. The officers are: Mrs. Hattie Wostell, president; Mrs. B. W. Emery, vice-president and corresponding secretary; Mrs. Sig Knighton, recording secretary; Mrs. S. S. Thompson, treasurer; Mrs. M. B. Paroungain, superintendent of evangelical work. A meeting was held on Thursday afternoon at which the organization was completed and various lines of work laid out. Among these are the Flower Mission with Mrs. Campbell as superintendent and Moral Education with Mrs. J. H. Chalker as superintendent. Meetings will be held on Thursdays at 2 p. m. at the Methodist church.

TUBERCULOSIS IN LIVE STOCK

The Disease Quite Prevalent in Hogs and Cattle.—Should Be Eradicated.

In a recent issue of the Medical Journal the following article appeared on tuberculosis in live stock:

The reports of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture indicate that tuberculosis among live stock is steadily increasing, as shown by the number of animals affected at the various slaughtering centers. The increase in the number of cases found is due in part, but only in part, to the increased efficiency of the method of inspection. The meat inspection figures show that nearly 1 per cent of cattle and over 2 per cent of hogs slaughtered are tuberculous, which is surely an alarming condition. Feeding experiments conducted by the bureau have proved conclusively that hogs are readily infected through the indigestion of feces and milk from tuberculous cows. There is therefore no doubt that the prevalence of the disease in hogs could be greatly reduced simply by eradicating it from cattle. Considerable testing of cattle has been done in Washington, D. C., and vicinity for the purpose of assisting the district authorities in obtaining a pure milk supply, and of obtaining for the Bureau further information regarding the extent of tuberculosis in the locality and for other purposes. In these tests about 17 percent of the dairy cattle reacted. The percentage of tuberculosis in the various states, shown by tests conducted by the officials in those states with Bureau tuberculin, indicates that from 2.79 to 19.87 per cent of the cows react, and it is estimated that in the country at large at least 10 per cent of the cows in dairy herds are tuberculous. The recent agitation against the milk of tuberculous cows as human food has had the effect of causing many herds to be examined, with astonishing results not only to the owners but the officials themselves. Can it be wondered at that so many infants and children die of intestinal tuberculosis when so many of the cows from which milk is obtained are tuberculous? Without considering the matter as a public health question, but looking at it entirely from an economic standpoint and as a business proposition, live stock raisers can not afford to have tuberculosis in their herds. As an illustration, Argentina requires that all cattle imported into that country shall be subjected to the tuberculin test upon arrival and as a consequence exporters from the United States have had the test made on cattle intended for shipment. The results of these tests showed that in some of the pure bred herds nearly 50 per cent of the animals were diseased and in consequence sales were lost.

PATRONIZE YOUR HOME BANK

BECAUSE your home Bank is a State Bank, is subject to State inspection just as much and just as fully as if it were a larger Bank or a National Bank. It is required to report its condition to the State Banking Board just as often and at the same time that the National Banks report to the Comptroller of Currency. If you know your home bank to be doing an honorable and reliable business stay with them. It is good business for you to do so. Remember that if you keep your money on deposit at your home bank you and your worthy neighbor can probably go there to borrow when you find need for a little money in buying or paying for a home, or in making some investment of the funds you have been accumulating. Get in the habit of paying your bills by making out checks. It is a good habit as you get a receipt for every bill you pay. You will have a receipt that will be recognized by any court.
