Hillsdale met with great defeat at the hands of the Gresham Giants last Sunday at Gresham by a score of 11 to 0. In the first inning Hillsdale reached third base after that they repeatedly died at the bat or on first base, a couple of times they braved up courage enough to venture on the long path between first and second, but a 1 met with the same result never seeing the end of the path. They were out classed in every respect. The battery for Hillsdale was C. R. Blegg and H. D. Blegg. The battery for Gresham was Kelt and Donaldsen, umpire Johnson. The game report was as follows:

Gresham, Runs 11, Hits 8, Errors 2.
Hillsdale, " 0, " 2, " 6.

HOW TO DISTINGUISH AND CURE FAVUS AND CHICKEN POX.

Favus (white comb) and chicken pox and their difference should be known, for ignorance or error may result in an epidemic among fowls and communication of these diseases to people. They are very different. Favus, caused by a parasite, starts on the head with tiny disklike warts, expands into powdery crusts that overtop raw surfaces, cover the body and destroy plumage. The thick, scaly crusts smell like moldy cheese, and the strongest fowls succumb.

TREATMENT FOR FAVUS.
Quarantine victims and disinfect thoroughly. Soften crusts with vaseline, remove gently and apply iodine and try to localize disease.

In extreme cases apply ointment composed of one part red oxide mercury and six of vaseline.

FAVUS.

Chicken pox often starts with swelling on eye; then comes a wart on eyelid and, if not localized, the yellow topped warts spread over head, comb, wattles and sometimes on shanks, but not on feathered surface except with pigeons.

The wart first has a red, spongy undersurface, but as it dries up the black scab shows white roots.

Old stock is seldom affected except when protozoa enters wounds. Tender, young fowls are special victims and, combined with canker, it is hard to cure.

Like favus, it is contagious, the protozoa multiplying in damp, dirty poultry houses and pigeon lofts, and though very vigorous fowls sometimes recover without treatment victims must generally be doctored carefully.

TREATMENT FOR CHICKEN POX.
Quarantine victims and disinfect quarters. Touch warts with hydrogen peroxide, then apply phenol sodique or apply solution of glycerin and 5 per cent carbolic acid. In extreme cases use solution of iodine and 10 per cent carbolic.

When combined with canker, remove cheesy patches and apply peroxide. Keep victims of favus and pox in warm, dry place.

Natural Mistake.
"Old Stargaze is happy."

"What is the occasion?"
"He sat up all night to discover a comet, and along toward morning his vigil was rewarded. He found a new, luminous and unlisted one."

"And that filled him with joy?"
"Indeed it did! And the best of it was that he dropped off to sleep without discovering that it was only one of the neighbors firing a red headed servant girl."

TO OUR READERS!
By special arrangement we offer you a great opportunity to read
"Chantecler"
EDMOND ROSTAND'S wonderful "Chantecler" is the dramatic sensation of the world. In it Rostand proves himself to be one of the greatest dramatists of all times. "Chantecler" is not only the greatest play of the century,—it is the one great play of the last hundred years. It is an exquisite story, palpitating with human sympathy and interest. It warms the blood—stirs the emotions—arouses every commendable sentiment. "Chantecler" sparkles with wit—counsels with wise philosophy—entertains with fascinating idiom—while the tones of the hour bell of today, and today's problems, are heard through the medium of "Chantecler's" deliciously up-to-date slang. No language contains sufficient superlatives to describe it. Only reading and study will enable you to appreciate it. It has aroused all France—London has gone mad over it.
The Only English Translation
Rostand has chosen HAMPTON'S MAGAZINE as the medium through which to present "Chantecler" to the English-reading world. The publication will be in four installments, one act to each instalment, beginning in the June number. The translator is the same who helped to make "Cyrano de Bergerac" so fascinating to American booklovers.
We have made special arrangements with the publishers of HAMPTON'S by which our readers may get "Chantecler" and the many other fine features published in HAMPTON'S in connection with our own paper, practically without cost. Read our offer below.
OTHER EXPENSIVE FEATURES
HAMPTON'S MAGAZINE every month contains the most costly, most important, and most interesting contents ever put between the covers of a general magazine. "Peary's Own Story" of the discovery of the North Pole, a $50,000 feature, is now in its most interesting stage, giving the positive "proofs" that Commander Peary and no other man discovered the North Pole. "The True History of the Southern Pacific Railroad" by Charles Edward Russell is one of the greatest magazine serials ever published. Mrs. Rheta Childre Dorr's articles on the "Power of the Women's Clubs" are without an equal in their appeal to women everywhere. Fiction contributors include the foremost story-tellers of the world: Arthur Stringer has a new series called "The Adventures of an Insomniac;" James B. Connolly describes in several stories his Trip Around the World with the American Fleet; Frederick Palmer is contributing a series of airship stories of which Danbury Rodd is the central character. The only new idea in detective fiction since Sherlock Holmes is provided in the second series of stories about Luther Trant, the psychological detective, written by Edwin Balmer and William G. MacHarg. Other Short Stories are by such favorites as O. Henry, Gouverneur Morris, Charles Belmont Davis, Rupert Hughes, Josephine Daskam Bacon, Harris Merton Lyon and many others.
Special Offer to Readers of This Paper
By special arrangement with HAMPTON'S MAGAZINE, we are able to make the following remarkable offer to our readers. The publishers of HAMPTON'S advise us that the demand for "Chantecler" is tremendous. We therefore advise you to order on the attached coupon now. The only sure way of getting all of "Chantecler" is to send today.
"Chantecler" is now running in Hampton's. Hampton's and The Herald, one year, regular $2.50, now $1.50. Order at once, offer is limited.
