Peter Lundine Thanks Neighbors

Peter Lundine made the Herald office a call on Monday afternoon. He came in to tell of his experiences in the fire that swept over his and adjoining farms last week. That he had seen a little of the real danger was shown by his face which appears to be almost blistered, and it is evident that some time will elapse before he can smile comfortably.

It appears that the fire was practically upon his home before he knew anything about it. Had it not been for kind neighbors he feels sure that his home, house, barn and all would have been entirely destroyed. As it was they came from every direction to give him the best assistance that he ever had. They climbed upon the house and barn and threw water over the shingles to keep them from catching fire, and assisted in every way to make things safe.

He is especially impressed with the high degree of honor displayed throughout the entire time. Said he, "They went all through my house and barn and had every opportunity to help themselves and I never lost a thing. Had it been in the city it would have been different." He was especially impressed with the efforts of some of the small boys particularly E. Anderson and Stone made in helping to save his property. He offered to pay them for their assistance, but no one would take a cent. Mr. Lundine says he is more impressed than ever that our neighbors are more truly our friends than we are accustomed to imagine them.
