Prohibitory Law in Kansas

The Kansas State Prohibitory Law went into effect May, 1881. For over 26 years the people of the state 400 miles long and 300 miles wide have lived under a law which makes it a felony to manufacture and sell intoxicating liquor as a beverage.

The results of the law may be summed up as follows:

1. Prohibition is a success over the entire state. That is the law is as well enforced and obeyed in five-sixths of the state as any other law.

2. Any liquor business in the state is criminal, and is so regarded by the people. The liquor dealer has no social, religious or political standing in the community.

3. When the law was passed the brewers brought suit against the state to recover compensation. In a test case they lost their suit, and the U. S. Supreme court declared them not entitled to recover damages, and they never received a penny.

4. Prohibition has reduced pauperism to a minimum. Kansas has fewer than 1500 paupers to a population of 1,600,000. 87 out of a total of 905 counties have no paupers. It costs less than $150,000 a year to care for the destitute people of the state.

5. Crime has decreased more than one-half under prohibition. Thirty-five county jails in the state are entirely empty. Stealing has decreased one-half under prohibition.

6. The law educated the young people to regard with aversion the social habit of drinking. It is not considered reputable to drink even moderately. Drunkenness itself is rare. A drunken woman in the streets of Topeka (a city of 50,000) would be a sight so unusual that business would be suspended to look at her.

7. The different church denominations have united on the prohibitory law. In many towns the church members hold the balance of the political power at elections, and elect the city officials.

8. The working men of Kansas are for the most part the best fed, best clothed and best paid working men in the world, largely on account of the prohibitory law.

9. The newspapers of Kansas are overwhelmingly in favor of the law. Out of 805 papers published in the state only 15 ever print any liquor advertisements.

10. The great majority of the people of the state believed in the law. The ministers and church members of all denominations, the 10,000 school teachers, the best business men, the chief justice of the supreme court, the governor, the attorney general, the editors of the most influential papers—all believe that the prohibitory law is the best thing Kansas ever had.

America has over 33,000,000 people who live under local option and prohibitory laws. The temperance legislation is making fast headway all over the country. The south is rapidly becoming prohibition through local option. The anti-saloon league is doing magnificent work. The liquor men in America are alarmed and predict that their business will be gone inside of a quarter of a century.

Section 3. That the doing, allowing or permitting to be done any act or thing which is prohibited or forbidden by sections 1 and 2 of this ordinance is hereby declared to be a public nuisance and unless the owner or occupant of any place, premises, yard or lot, shall abate or remove the same within forty-eight hours after receiving notice from the Town Marshal so to do, such owner or occupant as aforesaid shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof before the Town Recorder, shall be fined for each offense, not less than five nor more than fifty dollars, or be imprisoned in the Town jail not less than two nor more than twenty-five days, or by both fine and imprisonment; and in case such owner or occupant as aforesaid neglects or refuses to abate or remove such nuisance when notified so to do as aforesaid, the committee on health and police of the Town of Gresham is hereby authorized to remove or abate the said nuisance as hereinafter directed, and the cost of such removal or abatement shall be made a lien on the lots or premises where such nuisance existed.

Section 4. Wherever the committee on health and police shall be informed or have reason to suspect the existence of a nuisance prohibited by this ordinance, it shall immediately make or cause to be made an examination of the yard, lot, place or premises on which it is charged that such nuisance is suffered or permitted and if such nuisance is found to exist thereon or therein, or in or upon any street, gutter or sidewalk adjacent or abutting upon said yard, lot or place or premises, it shall forthwith give or cause to be given to either the owner, agent or occupant of such lot, yard, place or premises a written or printed notice to remove or abate such nuisance, and if such nuisance be not abated or removed within forty-eight hours after such notice as aforesaid shall have been given it shall be the duty of the committee on health and police to cause the same to be removed or abated, and for that purpose they are hereby authorized to expend such sum of money (not exceeding one hundred dollars in any one case) as may be required for the removal or abatement of such nuisance; provided that whenever a greater expenditure is found necessary to be made than the sum of one hundred dollars, the said committee on health and police shall report the same to the council previous to incurring such expense, and request authority to make such expenditure.

The said committee shall keep an accurate account of all sums expended under the provisions of this section and forthwith make a report thereof to the council showing the amount expended for the abatement or removal of a nuisance as aforesaid on each lot, piece or parcel of land, describing the same, together with the name of the owner or owners thereof, or that the owner's name is unknown, thereupon the council shall by ordinance declare such sum or sums so expended as aforesaid, a lien on the particular lot or parcel of land upon which the said sum was expended, and direct the Town Recorder to enter the same on the docket of Town liens, and thereafter such liens shall be enforced against the property therein in like manner and with like effect as a lien for the improvement of a street.

Do You Really Love Dogs?

Perhaps the final test of anybody's love of dogs is willingness to permit them to make a camping ground of the bed. There is no other place in the world that suits the dog quite so well. On the bed he is safe from being stepped upon, he is out of the way of drafts, he has a commanding position from which to survey what goes on in the world, and, above all, the surface is soft and yielding to his outstretched limbs. No mere man can ever be so comfortable as a dog looks. Some persons object to having a dog on the bed at night, and it must be admitted that he lies a little heavily upon one's limbs, but why be so base as to prefer comfort to companionship? To wake up in the dark night and put your hand on that warm, soft body, to feel the beating of that faithful heart—is not this better than undisturbed sleep? The best night's rest I ever had was once when a cocker spaniel puppy, who had just recovered from stomach ache (dose one to two soda mints) and was a little frightened by the strange experience, curled up on my shoulder like a fur tipper, gently pushed his cold, soft nose into my neck and there slept sweetly and soundly until morning.—H. C. Merwin in Atlantic.

Absentminded Dyer.

Charles Lamb had a friend named George Dyer who was perhaps the most absentminded man on record. It was Dyer who, leaving Lamb's Islington home at broad noonday, walked straight into the New River. He was known to take up a coal scuttle instead of his hat, to walk home with a footman's cocked hat on and even to leave one of his shoes under the table and get well on his homeward way before discovering his loss. He called at a friend's one morning, heard that the family was away in the country, left his name in the visitors' book, and a few hours later called again, asked for the book again and was astonished to see his own freshly written name. Once, when Proctor breakfasted with him, Dyer forgot the tea. The omission being noted, he filled the teapot with ginger. Proctor left as soon as he could to get a better breakfast at a coffee tavern, and there Dyer strolled in and asked him how he did, quite unconscious of having seen him earlier.

Lawyer's Will.

A remarkable specimen of a lawyer's invalid will was that of Sir Joseph Jeckyll, master of the rolls, who died in 1738 and bequeathed his fortune after his wife's death to pay off the national debt. "Sir Joseph was a good man and a good lawyer," was Lord Mansfield's comment, "but his bequest was a very foolish one. He might as well have attempted to stop the middle arch of London bridge with his full bottomed wig." The testator's patriotic intentions were therefore treated as proof of mental weakness, and his will was promptly set aside. Among the many blundering wills that lawyers have made, for their clients, if not for themselves, the strangest on record was that of a Dublin gentleman who left all his money to the elder son of his brother and, if he had no elder son, to the second.—London Chronicle.

Raindrops.

Drops of rain vary in their size perhaps from a twenty-fifth to a quarter of an inch in diameter. In parting from the clouds they precipitate their descent till the increasing resistance opposed by the air becomes equal to their weight, when they continue to fall with uniform velocity. This velocity is therefore in a certain ratio to the diameter of the drops; hence thunder and other showers in which the drops are large pour down faster than a drizzling rain. A drop of the twenty-fifth part of an inch in falling through the air would, when it had arrived at its uniform velocity, acquire a celerity of only eleven and a half feet per second, while one of a quarter of an inch would have a velocity of thirty-three and a half feet.

The North Dakota experiment station has hit upon a very sensible plan for instructing the rural population of the state concerning the plant diseases which have done great damage to the farm and garden crops of that commonwealth. Inasmuch as but a small per cent of the country boys and girls carry their education beyond that obtainable in the district school, the station officials argued that here was the place to give some practical instruction in agriculture. They accordingly prepared large boxes, each containing plant specimens showing twenty different diseases which affect crops in the state. Accompanying the specimens are statements giving in brief the life history of the diseases and how to fight them. The complete collection costs $2. The plan is certainly a commendable one and might well be adopted in all sections where fruit, vegetable or grain crops are affected by insect or fungous pests.

In some sections of England young people have formed rat and sparrow clubs whose purpose is to exterminate these pests. In one village the local club reported a slaughter of 3,828 rats and 839 sparrows.
