BABY HOME WANTS CASH

TO ASK FOR RAISE IN APPROPRIATION

FIFTY BABIES BEING CARED FOR

Expenses Often Over-Reach the $600 Mark Each Month Despite Economy.

Members of the board of directors of the Baby Home in Portland are considering making an appeal to the state for a larger appropriation. For some years the legislature has allowed the home $3000 a year. When this appropriation first was made there were but 30 babies in the institution, and expense were much lower than at present. There are now 50 children being cared for, and every month several are refused admittance because of lack of accommodation. The appropriation does not cover half the expense, which goes each month beyond the $600 mark, despite economy. The matron and nurses work on salaries that can be only explained by love of humanity, while the physicians all give their services free, as do the directors, among whom are some of the most prominent women in town socially, who work untriflingly in the Home's interest.

The president, Mrs. D. C. Burns, who has just returned from a two month's visit in the east, said, in speaking of the needs of the Home:

"$5000 will not meet the needs of the institution, but if the state should appropriate that amount we could probably be able to raise the remainder through subscription from the friends of the work. The babies come to us from all over the state, and we have many appeals which we cannot meet, owing to the crowded conditions of the Home.

"Only last week I received a letter from a man in the southern part of the state, who begged us to take his two little motherless children and care for them until he could get on his feet again. The mother had died of lung trouble, which he had also contracted, and he has exhausted his funds trying to board the children out and meet the demands of his wife's illness and death. His is but one of the many cases that appeal to our sympathy.

"If there were a children's free hospital in Portland it would divide up some of our labors. We ought never to be obliged to take sick babies into the Home, but we frequently have to."

The Thanksgiving season will bring a considerable number of useful articles of clothing and other articles to the Baby Home and yet what a large number of people there are who will not think of it at that time. Articles of furniture, dolls, toys and things of that nature are most needy. Don't forget the Baby Home when you are apportioning your charity plans and at the beginning of the winter season is the time when those things are most needed.

If there are some discarded children's rockers up in your attic, just remember this appeal, or still better, buy a new one.

UNKNOWN MAN KILLED ON O. W. P.

An unknown man was run over near Gresham Wednesday night, by the car which leaves Boring at 7 o'clock. He received injuries resulting in his death a short time after the accident, while on the way to the hospital at Portland.

The motorman saw the body of a man lying on the track about fifty feet ahead of the car. The car passed over the body and was stopped a hundred feet or more beyond. The man was picked up and brought to Gresham and Dr. Bitner was summoned. He found that the body had been rolled and bruised by the car but no members were severed. He did not regain consciousness but died about a half hour later on the way to the city where he was being taken by special car. A liquor bottle was found in his pocket, but no evidence to indicate his name or home. It is supposed he was a laborer, but it is rumored he was a farmer, living near Eagle Creek.

A lively argument was made in favor of woman's suffrage was made by Mrs. N. Maler, who made some strong points. Miss Bessie Caning made a good speech against the question. Joe Albel, A. C. Thomas and E. F. Bruns also spoke on the question which aroused considerable interest and comment on both sides.

A big meeting is expected the second Saturday in December, when two very important questions will come up for discussion, one of which is to decide on the building of a grange hall or hold a big grange fair in 1911. Every granger is requested to be present.

THE NORTHWEST LIVESTOCK SHOW

Supply Don't Meet Demands Of the Pacific Coast Country

The question that confronts the stockman and farmer of the Pacific Northwest is the necessity for increased livestock production. It is not good business that the packers of the coast cities find it necessary to send millions of dollars each year to the Missouri River, for live animals, and that such great quantities of money are taken out of this section for provisions and packing house products sent here from the central states.

There is one thing certain; the entire energies of our people must be directed along better lines of farming and livestock breeding and feeding, and to that end those whose names appear at the head of the executive committee ask your co-operation to the end that an object lesson be given which will be effective.

The dates for the livestock show have been set for March 20, 21 and 22, 1911, at Portland, and as to what the show means has been exemplified, first, at Fort Worth, Texas, where a handful of men organized a livestock show; when they started they were shipping to the markets a class of cattle which were mostly horns and hoofs, and shipping in all of their pork products. Today, as a result of the work of the Fort Worth show, Texas has as good cattle, sheep and hogs as any state in the Union; Fort Worth has tripled its population, and its large packing houses are running to their full capacity, employing 1200 to 1500 laboring men, and from a show held in half a dozen pens in the stock yards the present event is given in a magnificent building, constructed at a cost of $75,000. The show brings from eight to ten thousand strangers to the city, and the organization which gives the show has a membership of over 500.

The same success has been achieved at Denver, where the amphitheatre for the livestock show cost, $85,000 and the association has a membership of 350, who are endeavoring to develop the domestic meat animals of the inter-mountain country to a greater standard of excellence than they now attain elsewhere.

Death of Mrs. Thomas Ginder

The death of Mrs. Thos. Ginder occurred early Tuesday morning at her residence on Hood avenue after a severe illness lasting several months. The end came peacefully, with her children and husband at her side. Death resulted from dropsy, her condition becoming so bad that blood poisoning had set in. This made it necessary to hold the funeral early. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon. Rev. J. F. Dunlop conducted the service. The burial was in the Gresham cemetery.

Nancy Shelburn Ginder was born in Indiana, December 23, 1843. She came to Iowa at an early day, where in 1860 she was married to Thomas Ginder. To them were born five children. Those now living are, Charles, of Applegate, Oregon; J. W., of Portland; Mrs. Ina Harms of Portland, and Miss Lillian Ginder. Her husband and a sister survive her.

Mrs. Ginder was a patient sufferer and endeared herself to all who knew her. Her death is mourned by many acquaintances and friends. She was a member of the Baptist church.

Roast Tame Duck

In the evening, dress the duck, mix salt, one teaspoonful sugar and plenty of pepper; with this rub the fowl well inside and out, place in an earthen dish and set in a cool place till morning.

Stuffing—If you have not buscuit baked, make a light, rich bread of wheat flour, using either soda or baking powder. When done add a very little sugar salt to taste, pepper, one or two eggs, two or three onions chopped fine, about one pint tomatoes chopped up, a lump of butter, size of a walnut, and sufficient milk and water to make a soft thick batter, fill the fowl, place in a roaster, and then peel one lemon and place thin slices all over the top of fowl and set in oven and as soon as brown on top, take out and cover with remainder of stuffing, fill roast pan half full of boiling water, and baste at intervals until done, then make a gravy of liquid in pan. The lemon takes away that strong unpleasant taste so objectionable to most people. This is delicious.

"I do not believe there is any other medicine so good for whooping cough as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. Francis Turpin, Junction City, Ore. This remedy is also unsurpassed for colds and croup. For sale by Gresham Drug Co.

With the present prices of beef, which authorities agree cannot be lowered the production of fat cattle on the farm where the work has long been forgotten will be found profitable.—Farm Journal.

COMMERCIAL CLUB SENDS DELEGATES

WILL BOOST FOR TOWN AT SALEM MEETING

CLUB TALKS OF INCORPORATING

Several Sites Offered for Factory—Committee to Perfect Arrangements.

The Gresham Commercial Club held an arousing meeting Wednesday night and took steps towards a more energetic plan of development work than has characterized the club in the past.

It was decided to send two men to the convention of Development Leagues at Salem, next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, not only to show that Gresham was on the map, but to study the methods of other clubs and get the most successful plans of organization and work. The president was asked to appoint delegates and he has named Emil G. Kardell and H. L. St. Clair.

It was decided to hold a big meeting of members and citizens next Thursday night to hear reports from the delegates and take steps to reorganize and incorporate the club. In this way the club can provide suitable and permanent rooms, build up a permanent exhibit, and put itself in shape to encourage any enterprise that will be a help to the town.

The delegates want to take a collection of photos showing products, field scenes, improvement work, buildings, etc. If those having suitable views would communicate with the delegates it will be a great help.

The club went on record as ready to help further the project of Mr. Danmeier to erect a large hotel and business block on the corner of Powell and Main streets and condemned any attempt on the part of property owners to hold up the enterprise.

The committee on factory site reported favorably on locating the Meader-Cochrane Multi-color Press factory here and a committee was appointed with power to make definite arrangements for the same.

Card of Thanks
