

Evening Dresses

The costume shown on the left is a combination of soft primrose satin and silver grey chiffon. The satin is used for the Princess under-dress, the chiffon for the over-dress, which is slightly full at the waist, and at each side has a panel of dull silver and pearl trimming with fringed ends.

The front of bodice is veiled with the chiffon, over which trimming is laid, a narrow dull silver trimming edging the bodice; the chiffon is then draped on the bodice, the sleeves being cut in with it; the edge of sleeve is finished with the trimming.

Materials required: 7 yards double width satin, 8 yards chiffon, 42 inches wide, trimming according to width.

The other is in white satin charmeuse; the slightly trained skirt is trimmed with wide tulle and gold and pale blue embroidery, which draws the satin slightly in and gives the effect of a tunic, edged with hand-some cord that is carried up to the waist each side front.

The over-bodice is of entirely the same embroidery, with underslip of white crepe-de-Chine, the whole edged with cord; waist-band of soft blue satin.

Materials required: Five yards double width satin, 1 1/4 yard embroidery for skirt, 1 1/4 yard embroidery for bodice, 1 1/4 yard crepe-de-Chine 40 inches wide.

SHOWING THE WINTER STYLES

Exhibits of London Dressmakers Give Fair Idea of What is Going to Be Popular.

All the smart dressmakers in London have been exhibiting their new models. The coat and skirt costumes were chiefly of "ratine," the latest novelty in materials, which when at its best resembles chamois leather in appearance, but is as soft and warm as a good Harris tweed. Coats, of course, were short and rather like the reefer of several years ago, while skirts, if not actually hobbled, were tight to the hobbling point and much trimmed. House and evening gowns were almost all fashioned with tunic effect. Sometimes the tunic was very long. Sometimes it reached but a little below the hips.

Black was much used to soften vivid color effects. Thus, a frock of purple and green had a long tunic of black net bordered with Persian trimming, while black and blue and black and magenta were blended on various evening gowns. Oriental embroideries, dull silver and gold tissues and gem-studded braids were also in evidence. Garlands of flowers were used in trimming some of the dresses, and one dainty pink and cream gown was shackled with ropes of dainty little roses veiled with chiffon.

LACES OF FASHION

There is a preference for white laces this season.

Light, filmy laces are trimmed with fur for winter gowns.

The popularity for the one piece gown does not abate.

More ostrich feathers are being sold than ever before.

Black velvet is paramount as trimming, while satin runs a close second.

Large colored wood buttons are seen on some of the new tailored suits.

There seems to be no cessation in the demand for allovers and baby Irish.

The style of the one piece afternoon gown depends upon the little French touches more than upon any special scheme of line.

Hints for the Table.

For a very delicious dish of deviled clams prepare a cupful of chopped clams and season them with cayenne, salt and the juice of a lemon. Mix them to a soft batter-like consistency with the yolks of two eggs and some powdered crackers. Put the mixture into little ramekins, brood scalloped snails or into tiny cups, spread the surface with soft butter and bake until well browned. For a change the mixture may be spread over crisp crackers and then browned in the oven.

Two Sewing Hints.

When silk pulls out of shape under a pattern, baste the edges of the silk evenly to a newspaper. Cut through silk and paper. To press tucks in crepe de chine put a sheet of white tissue paper over the right side. In this way the tucks may be seen and kept straight.

REVIVAL OF "GREEK BATH"

Beauty Doctors Are Recommending It—Said to Have Splendid Effect on the Skin.

If the skin happens to be dry and harsh, have you tried the soothing and smoothing effect of the so-called Greek bath? This was a favorite remedy of the ancients and has been revived by modern beauty doctors.

Mix seven tablespoonfuls of pure olive oil and one of lavender water and rub it well into the entire body. Apply a little at a time and rub in well with the palms of the hand, using a circular motion.

To get the best effects from this bath the body should be kept very warm during the rubbing. If hot cloths are applied first to open the pores more of the oil will be absorbed.

Take the baths three nights in succession, then stop for a week and take the series again as necessary. The skin quickly improves.

Foot Comfort.

A shoemaker who has had wide experience with making women's shoes gives as the secret of foot comfort the simple rule: "Never wear a shoe that will not permit the great toe to lie in a straight line."

This may mean the elimination of some of the most fashionable cuts and the annoyance to vanity of asking for big sizes, but it will save bills to the chiropodist and improve dispositions.

Tea Gowns.

A lovely little tea gown which contains an idea for the woman with a similar garment to make over is of pale turquoise satin, draped in empire style and veiled with finger crepe de chine, hemmed with a fringe of gray squirrel fur. The veiling is held in place over the underbody by a fleur-de-lis of seed pearls at the waist.

LOOSE LEAF RECIPE BOOK

Nothing Else so Well Meets the Requirements of the Up-to-Date Housekeeper.

Among the variety of handy recipe books for the housekeeper, which include bound envelopes for clippings, cabinets with loose cards and indexed books generally, nothing probably fits the situation so well as the loose-leaf notebook, such as students use. One of the sort with ring fasteners which allow the book to open flat is the best. With it, a leaf may be removed and taken to the kitchen without endangering the entire book with kitchen smirches, and when a leaf is mutilated or a recipe has outlived its usefulness the leaf on which it is written or pasted may be removed. When new recipes come they may be inserted in their legitimate places with only the effort of removing and replacing the back fasteners. The books that open lengthwise are liked best by most women, and the smaller the size of the book the less room it will occupy. Leaves can always be bought when the supply runs out, and clippings may be written. These loose leaf books have taken the place of bound blank books for many purposes, and a set of them for notes of various kinds, and even for illustrations, programs and the kind which one likes to keep is a real convenience.

A SIMPLE VEGETABLE SLICER

Handy Kitchen Device Which May Be Easily Constructed by the Average Person.

Any handy man, or handy woman, for that matter, can build a vegetable slicer which will be a great improvement on the rather expensive devices which are shown in the shops. Take a piece of white wood, planed very clean, about seven inches or eight inches long and four inches wide, with two stout wire dogs or staples placed as shown in sketch. With an ordinary table knife slipped through the two staples, the cucumber can be cut very rapidly and evenly by pressing the cucumber against the board and sliding it down the blade of the knife, the staples acting as a gauge for the thickness of the slices.

TO POLISH LEATHER FRAMES

Certain Kinds of Leather Can Be Brightened by Rubbing Occasionally With Turpentine.

Dull leather frames, especially the colored embossed ones, are so ugly that most housekeepers are worried with them.

Special polishes are sold for different kinds and colors of leather. These should be bought from a reliable dealer and it is well to take the frames along in buying the polish, as various tones are sold.

Certain kinds of leather can be freshened by rubbing it occasionally with turpentine to take off the stains, followed by an application of crude oil to prevent cracking and stiffening.

Use only a drop or two of the liquids and rub the oil in with a piece of clean flannel. Later polish with a clean soft silk handkerchief.

Be sure your frame really is leather before trying to clean it, as many of the new frames are compositions and the turpentine will affect the coloring.

Wee Helps and Hints.

A whisk broom kept especially for the purpose is very helpful in sprinkling clothes.

When lamp wicks grow stubborn and will not work easily, pull out a thread from each edge. This makes the wick smaller and easier to manage.

It will soon be "draught time," when the wind will come whistling round our doors and sills. A long, flat sand bag at the door will keep a room free from draughts.

Rub fresh lard over new tinware, heat it in the oven before using and you need never worry about its rusting.

Grapes, Pears and Bananas.

Heap the grapes in one salver or basket with a spray of some climbing or clinging vine thrown around it. Group pears and bananas together, and garnish with autumn leaves.

BATHTUBS FOR HOGS

PIGS TO OBSERVE SATURDAY NIGHT IN SANITARY WAY.

Experts Urge Kansas Farmers to Provide Clean "Dip" for Porkers in Place of Old Mud Wallows—Novel Plan is Favored.

Topeka, Kan.—Kansas farmers are being urged to remove the old mud hog wallows in their feed lots and provide modern, sanitary bathtubs for their hogs.

"The hog likes to take a bath a good deal oftener than most humans," says Dr. Schoenleber. "In hot weather he just dotes on bathing. It is not necessary to provide a porcelain or enamel-lined bathtub for His Highness the Hog, but the porker will properly appreciate a nice cement bathtub which may be drained and filled again with clean water.

"He will return the favor, too, by putting on more fat and growing faster and eating less than when he has a muddy hole in which to wallow. A hog wallow is absolutely necessary for the peace and happiness of the hog. He is so constructed that wallowing in water is necessary to preserve his health and keep him growing. People do not feel right unless they bathe frequently, and the same applies to the hog.

"Give the hog every possible chance to take a bath. Build a cement basin in the hog lot. Have it drained and then provide it with fresh water. There is no need for hot and cold water. In the water put about one part of any of the commercial dips to 100 parts water. This will keep off germs and parasites from the pigs and forestall many of the common hog diseases which kill thousands of Kansas hogs every year. If given his choice, the hog will walk into the cement wallow every time. It is just as necessary to keep hogs clean and healthy as it is to give them good feed and to have good breeds to start with."

HORSE IS KILLED BY DOGS

Torn to Death in Pasture at Night by Lost and Hungry Hunting Animals.

Monticello, N. Y.—A horse belonging to John C. Fulton of White Lake, Sullivan county, while in pasture the other night was torn to death by dogs. About midnight the owner of the horse was awakened by the barking of dogs.

He got his shotgun and, going to the rear of his house, discovered the horse on the ground, while the dogs were tearing him to pieces.

Again and again he shot at the dogs without stopping the maddened animals. Hearing the shooting, farmers who lived near by, with pitchforks and clubs, drove the dogs away. It is believed that hunting dogs lost by hunters have become wild.

BASS CAPTURES FISHERMAN

Fish Swims Around Man, Wrapping Line Around His Legs in Deep Pool.

Allentown, Pa.—Alderman Elmer J. Schmoyer was captured by a bass in Ontonagon river, and he thanks Joseph Albright, a fisherman of seventy years, that he was not drowned; also that the bass was landed.

Schmoyer was wading, when he hooked the bass. He knew it was a large one and was wading out to play it, when it turned and swam around him, wrapping the line around his legs. Schmoyer then discovered that he was on the edge of a deep pool, and that he was slipping into it.

His cries brought Albright, who rescued the fisherman and caught the fish.

Tooth in Woman's Lung.

Toledo, O.—By means of minute electric lamps, which made it possible to see down a woman's throat and into the lower lobe of the right lung, and to insert through the trachea extensible forceps, a Toledo physician removed a fragment of a tooth from the right lung of Mrs. G. Cole of Van Wert, and without doubt saved her life.

Last February, while under the influence of an anaesthetic, Mrs. Cole had several teeth extracted. Shortly after she began to fall in health and her symptoms pointed, apparently, to tuberculosis.

Certain aspects of the case indicated the possibility of a foreign substance in the lung and an X-ray examination proved that a portion of a tooth had slipped down into the lung.

A Smooth Swindler.

Wooster, Ohio.—Robert Torbett, a farmer, has been fleeced out of $2,800 by a smooth swindler, who, as William Hoover, came here feigning intention to purchase a farm. He finally agreed to buy the Amos Moser farm, near Dalton, and agreed to meet Moser in Dalton to execute the deed.

In the meantime he returned to Wooster to borrow $2,800 to make full payment for the farm in cash, and Torbett agreed to loan it to him on first mortgage security.

Hoover showed up with a deed to the farm and got Torbett's money. Next day Moser came to Wooster and was surprised to find a forged deed conveying his property to Hoover recorded. The authorities have offered $800 reward for Hoover's arrest.

WISE YOUNGSTER AN EXPERT

Garrulous Young Man Sure He Knew Fresh Oysters but Didn't Recognize Rubber Ones.

The garrulous young man who thinks he "knows it all," and some more besides, stood in front of the restaurant window.

"Fine jar of oysters you have in there," he commented.

"Yes," responded the corpulent proprietor, who was standing in the doorway.

"So plump and fresh-looking. When it comes to telling a fresh oyster by its appearance, I'm the candy."

"Regular expert, eh?"

"You bet! They say oysters are not running good this year, and yet those in that jar look the same as those you had in the window two years ago when oysters were plentiful."

And the restaurant proprietor's features relaxed into a pleasant smile.

"They are the same," was the quiet response. "Those are rubber oysters, for show only."

Ultra-Swell.

Little Madge of Shantytown is not so fortunate as her well-dressed sisters and is often forced to wear her mother's "hand me downs." When she appeared out on the river pier in a skirt that was so long she could scarcely walk all the gamins started to jeer her. "Get onto de umbrella cover she has on," bantered Jimmy Finn. "What do yer call it, anyhow, Madge?"

And Madge elevated her little sunpeeped nose and retorted:

"Get some sense about yer, Jimmy Finn, an' read de Paris styles once in a while. Dis is one of de new 'hobble skirts'."

Melodrama.

As the eighteen-carat villain leaped down from the pasteboard castle the beautiful heroine gave a shriek of despair.

"Harold McDuff!" she moaned, as the great crystal tears welled in her eyes, "you have been my undoing!"

Turning as white as a summer-boarding house sheet, the eighteen-carat villain vanished among the paper foliage. And the beautiful heroine spoke the truth.

By stepping on the train of her gown the arch conspirator had loosened two tiny hooks up near the neck.

VALUE OF PINEAPPLE JUICE.

Delightful Drink is Now to Be Had in Convenient Form.

The man who thinks out and brings out a new food preparation usually has to create the "long-felt want" which he fills. In tackling the pineapple juice problem, no such difficulty confronted James D. Dole, of Honolulu.

When we eat pineapple it is for the juice alone, and less fibrous and more tender the fruit, the juicier it is and the better we like it.

When the doctor orders pineapple in cases of throat trouble or certain stomach and intestinal difficulties it is the pure, uncooked juice pressed from the ripest obtainable fruit which he wants his patient to have. It is this same refreshing juice which the nurse gives fever convalescents where cooling and slightly acid drinks are desirable. So pineapple juice already had a place.

The problem then, to be solved, was how to get the pure juice of pineapple on the market in such a form that it would please the healthy lover of the fruit, and be useful to the doctor and the nurse. A syrup would not do, because of the impossibility of suiting individual tastes. Even the juice of the finest Hawaii canned pineapple would not answer with its small quantity of preservative pure cane sugar, because the physician needs to regulate the amount of sugar prescribed. To make a long story short, Mr. Dole spent years in experiments which finally resulted in the Hawaii Pineapple Juice which bears his name.

Dole's is the Juice of "Picked Ripe" Hawaiian Pineapples pressed out and bottled on the islands where the fruit grows. Filtered, refined, sterilized in the bottle, retaining all the natural flavor and aroma, not a bit of sugar, water, preservative, or anything else is added. It has been four months on the market. During this time the Juice has been distributed all over the United States, in some parts in ample quantities, while in others the supply has been very restricted.

Its success has been most gratifying and unprecedented. In its favor were the previous favorable reception of Hawaiian Pineapple, the general knowledge of its high quality, the therapeutic values of pineapple juice known to the medical profession, and the remarkable product itself. So, four months have sufficed to give this new drink a large hold upon the people of the country until the demand is practically unlimited.

Hallbut.

Hallbut is the "holy but" or flound-er. The flounder place or but was called holy, it is supposed, because it was chiefly used as food on the fast days of the church. "Hollyhook" is the holy hook or mallow, which got that name because it was brought from Palestine.
