EDITORIAL COMMENT

Somebody ought to put a want ad in the Congressional Record for whitewash that will stick.

Many a man is so busy tooting his own horn that he fails to hear the knock of opportunity.

Two Washington preachers are disputing the location of hell. And neither so much as suspect Seattle, as the place.

The women make a hit with their husbands by adopting a style that'll give twice as much dress at half the cost.

The income tax amendment is on a whirlwind tour of the West. When twenty-five more states ratify it it becomes a law.

Chicago's drop in food prices seems to apply chiefly to such fresh eggs and fresh butter as have been in storage more than years.

Governor Foss of Massachusetts may be pardoned if his mind was not in a condition to compose a Sunday school lesson when he had to sign Henry Cabot's Lodge's new commission as United States senator.

Champ Clark is something of a wag, his latest joke is thanking the democratic caucus for "this honor which you have bestowed upon me," when everyone knows that he and his friends had it all cut and dried for months.

Portland is joining with other cities of the coast in helping to relieve the famine situation in China. Large quantities of food stuffs will be sent from this city to the sufferers, transportation companies having agreed to carry the supplies without charge.

Two additional salmon hatcheries on the Lower Columbia river are provided for in the bill passed this week by the United States senate, appropriating $50,000 for the purpose. If this measure passes the house it will mean a great deal to the salmon industry of the northwest, adding largely to the wealth taken annually from the Columbia and its tributaries.

Now the state legislature is going to square itself with the people of the state in regard to disposing of the highly odorous Bailey affair is a question that agitates several minds throughout the state. Bailey has proved himself to be a failure, and according to the Multnomah county grand jury, a fraud. Perhaps it is all a mistake but it does not look that way.

The way the legislature has supported the educational institutions of the states—convince us that the members of that body have a proper idea of the importance of the educational development of the state. This is the economical way to look at the matter. The sooner the state gets the information that will put it in line for the good things that are possible the better for all concerned. This is one of those instances when the endless chain system is excusable. The improvement started this year will grow in all directions from this date forward and each year will see the influence spread.

Central Oregon will hear the locomotive whistle for the first time this summer. Operation of the Oregon Trunk will probably be commenced to Madras early March and somewhat later the Deschutes railroad will run trains to Redmond. These new lines will mark the beginning of a new era of settlement for the whole region east of the Cascade mountains.

A city of 2,000,000 people at Portland is included in the plan of Municipal Architect E. H. Bennett, who is mapping out a greater city. His projects call for the segregation of the various activities into districts and groups and the beautification of the whole municipality. Parks, boulevards and better buildings are prominent features of the plan.

The formation of a syndicate to clear logged-off lands of southwest Washington and place them on the market is a step that might be followed with profit on this side of the Columbia river. These lands, once cleared, are among the most valuable for diversified farming, fruit growing and dairying. To put them to use is to make a great addition to the wealth of the state.

This is farmer's week at the Oregon Agricultural college and there is a large attendance of those interested in agricultural problems. Lectures and demonstrations of the greatest value to farmers are being given. These cover stockraising, dairying, horticulture, intensive farming and practically every branch of the industry. The attendance is much larger than during the special short courses of former years and great interest is shown by farmers from all parts of the state.

Tortured for Fifteen Years
By a curd-delving stomach trouble that baffled doctors, and resisted all remedies he tried, John W. Modders of Moddersville, Mich., seemed doomed. He had to sell his farm and give up work. His neighbors said, "he can't live much longer." "Whatever I ate distressed me," he wrote, "till I tried Electric Bitters, which worked such wonders for me that I can now eat things I could not take for years. It's surely a grand remedy for stomach trouble." Just as good for the liver and kidneys. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50c at all druggists.

Wife Got Tip Top Advice
"My wife wanted me to take our boy to the doctor to cure an ugly boil," writes D. Frankel of Stroud, Okla. "I said 'put Bucklen's Arnica Salve on it.' She did so, and it cured the boil in a short time." "Quickest healer of burns, scalds, cuts, corns, bruises, sprains, swellings. Best pile cure on earth. Try it. Only 25c at all dealers."

Elizabeth Hankle was born in Washington county, Tenn., Feb. 8, 1842, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Pullen, Feb. 10, at the age of 69 years and two days. At the age of eighteen she united with the Brethren church and was a faithful member until death. She was united in marriage to G. W. Landon, March 15, 1869, and moved to Oregon in 1882, the family making their home near Gresham, where she lived until the last.

These afflictions left her a invalid and a final stroke on February 3, of this year, the seal of death upon her and she lingered along under the loving ministrations of her husband and children until the end came to release her tired spirit from the earthly bondage.

Mrs. Ed. Spath of Gresham; Eugene D. Landon of Portland and Mrs. Wm. Booth of Cottrell. There are eighteen grandchildren.

"Devoted to her family" might be the epitaph written upon the tombstone of Elizabeth Landon, whose wedded life was one of self denial in the rearing of her children all of whom are respected members of a community where true worth is reflected and appreciated by those who knew their mother in the years that have passed away since she became a resident here, nearly thirty years ago. What greater tribute can be paid to the departed mother than the thought that her children were her first care.
