One of the colts left the barn yard and Frank attempted to turn it back. Some way in getting off the disk the gun was discharged. The bullet entered the bowels and ranged upward. It was thought it passed through the stomach and lodged in the lung. Dr. Lupton was called and after a hasty examination decided the best thing to do was to take him to Portland. He was placed in the auto and with his father and Mr. Shelley was rushed to the Good Samaritan hospital where the operation was performed. Latest report today said he was resting easy.
