September 1 is the date set for opening the railroad from Portland to Tillamook and people in that corner of the state will have a big celebration when the first train reaches Tillamook Bay from Portland.

A new industry has been started near Gresham. A Japanese woman has a thriving colony of silk worms that she has raised from imported cocoons this spring. The worms are now spinning their silk and will soon develop to the butterfly stage.

Three men go to the cities of Oregon to one who seeks the farms. The reason is that the speculative prices of the farm lands are far beyond their actual use value. Land near Beaverton selling at $650 an acre is not able to support men and pay interest on such figure. Men are living on such land but not from it. —[Labor Press]

That the whole state will be represented in framing proposed good roads legislation is assured now that Governor West has named a commission of prominent men from all parts of Oregon to assist in the work. It is believed this will prevent a flood of hasty legislation at the next election and will give the entire state just what is needed for highway betterment.

The Pacific Highway Convention will be held in Portland August 4 and 5 and arrangements will be made by the Portland Automobile Club and representatives from every prominent city on the coast are expected to attend. A number of automobilists will come down in their cars from Seattle. Some good work may be expected for good roads as the result of this convention and particularly for the great highway projected along the coast line from Canada to Mexico.

The record of the Fourth as passed in Portland this year is unquestionable vindication of the "sane Fourth" idea. Up to today not one report of an accident due to explosives has been reported, and that compares so well that no one will surely plead for the old system of noise, blood and death.

Compare this with the record made at one of the celebrations where they did not restrict the use of noisemakers and destructive toys. In all the country only 24 deaths were chronicled as having originated through the efforts of the celebrators. Last year it was 44. In 1909 it was 210. In 1908 the fatalities ran to 163 and the accidents 5460, many of which were permanent injuries.

New York people are getting extreme in their determination to exterminate the mosquito. Leaving a pool of water or a barrel or other opportunity for their breeding, subjects a person to a fine of $10. Such violation of our privileges seems a hardship indeed, especially to those supporters of the principals of personal liberty who are accustomed to let out a howl every time any one speaks of depriving them of their right to quench their thirst as they see fit. But then people are whimsical. The very man who wants to force privileges of our very personal own, and one of these is to conduct a breeding ground for amphibians of various sorts, frogs and mosquitoes, etc. However, laying jokes aside, the anti mosquito and "swat the fly" campaigns are having their values. Yellow fever is practically unheard of. Malaria is one of the has beens. Ague is one of the forgotten experiences of our childhood. The Isthmus of Panama was at one time a veritable pest hole. Flies and mosquitoes are now remarkable for their absence and malaria and fever are almost as unknown as it is in Alaska. When we have come to understand this as we should these myseries will all vanish and the insect that disseminates them will also be an extinct species, known only to the student of natural or medical history.

The Best Dairy Methods.

The best dairymen now practice intense methods with their cows, making them yield the greatest amount of milk possible by liberal feeding and the best of shelter and other care.

Happiest Girl in Lincoln

A Lincoln, Neb., girl writes, "I had been ailing for some time with chronic constipation and stomach trouble. I began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and in three days I was able to be up and got better right along. I am the proudest girl in Lincoln to find such a good medicine." For sale by all druggists.

Amending His Constitution.

A well known attorney of heavy build and pompous to a degree that frequently reaches the state of being overbearing was leaving his office in a broad street building the other day. With his high hat on and carrying a walking stick, he had stepped onto the sidewalk when he slipped and landed flat upon the pavement with a thud that shocked him as well as caused embarrassment.

Just then another attorney who enjoys an equal distinction in the legal world passed and laughed at the fallen lawyer. When the latter was trying to get up he remarked to the other:

"I guess I am getting old. My constitution will not stand what it did years ago."

As he arose to his feet his friend facetiously remarked, "Well, then, Dick, you ought to get an amendment to your constitution."

Looking at his friend with a cold stare, as cold as the ice he had fallen upon, he asked:

"Well, what kind of an amendment would you suggest, if you know so much?"

"I don't know exactly," was the reply. "I don't give advice to my clients without some kind of a retainer, but as you are an old friend of mine I would suggest a cushion or a mattress." —Minneapolis Journal.

Right in your busiest season when you have the least time to spare you are most likely to take diarrhoea and lose several days' time, unless you have Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand and take a dose on the first appearance of the disease. For sale by all druggists.

If reports are to be credited a new and most valuable friend of the apple grower has been found in the shape of a diminutive bee introduced into the southern states some years ago to wage war on the cotton worm and the present season put to work in western Colorado to prey upon the codling moth. The bee is known scientifically as the hymenoptera and has appeared by hundreds of thousands in the sections named. It is planned to breed the parasite by millions another year, so that war can be waged on the codling moth from the beginning of the season.

Never leave home on a journey without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed and cannot be obtained when on board the cars or steamships. For sale by all druggists.

There are mighty few men who possess such versatility that they can do two things just as well as they can do one. It's so in the case of cattle. If a breed makes an extra good showing along the line of beef production it is not reasonable to expect that a considerable portion of the food it eats can be converted into milk, and the reverse of this is equally true; hence if one inclines to beef production he would better stick to beef types—the Dobbies, Herefords and heavy Short-horns—while if dairying is his forte he will get better results with a strictly dairy breed—the Jersey, Guernsey, Ayrshire or Holstein.

Kill More Than Wild Beasts

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from the attacks. They're in air, water, dust, even food. But guard and protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Money back, if not satisfied. Only 50c by Gresham druggists.

THE GROWING COLT.

Too Often the Youngster is Left to Take Care of Himself.

The colt should have a little grain feed, such as bran and oats and a little cracked corn, about the middle of each forenoon and afternoon while its mother is at work, as well as at regular feeding time in a little trough all its own. It needs to be fed little and often with digestible, nutritious food, writes a correspondent of Orange Judd Farmer. It will be better off in the stable during the day, provided the stable is kept clean and cool. If allowed to get foul from accumulation of manure the little tender feet may become thrushy and sore and the future strength and conformation of feet and ankles will be impaired. Many promising colts are ruined for life for want of a little sensible care of the growing foot. If the colt receives the proper care and food at this time he will be so strong and healthy at weaning time that his mother's milk will scarcely be missed.

The growing colt is too often allowed to shift for himself and gather such food as he can find, generally of poor quality. The result is in the spring the owner will have a poor, weak, broken hearted animal and very little growth for his winter's feed and carelessness. It is said "raising colts is a lottery." So it should be with the odds against us if we are not willing to give rational care and food.

A well raised, well bred colt should be a useful companion for twenty years or more. Is he not worth a little care to get him well started?

CAPACITY OF A COW.

Development of Milk Producing Qualities Begins With the Calf.

To give milk a cow must eat and eat a great deal and have the internal machinery to take care of what she eats, writes E. L. Vincent in the National Stockman. You take a cow away as slim as a racer and she will not give much milk, do the best you can with her. She is made, so far as her work is concerned, and little can be done to increase her powers in this direction.

But how can we "make capacity" in our cows? Is it safe to crowd a calf until it is ready to burst, its hide always stretched like a balloon? To this

This Holstein bull calf is an excellent specimen of the breed he represents. The Holsteins are second to none in milk producing qualities.

I reply that overcrowding will certainly not avail. But this is about the line we may work upon:

Begin early and begin carefully. For a number of weeks I would rather a calf should not have quite what it wants to eat rather than to be stuffed beyond power to assimilate. Not that a calf should be starved. Give some milk, and as soon as it is old enough to chew and digest it begin feeding some nice hay. Add also a bit of buckwheat shorts or not too coarse wheat bran. Gradually add some to the milk ration night and morning. Watch the result. Don't get a calf off its feed. It must be watched all the way and not pushed too hard and yet must have enough. That is the way to make a cow.

Cowpeas Profitable.

Cowpeas are a very profitable crop for dairy cows and pigs. They are so hardy against drought and mature so quickly that there are very few crops that compete with these legumes for soiling purposes. Cowpeas should be better appreciated by farmers of the southwest.—Farm and Ranch.

System Pays on the Farm.

Any system of farming which provides regular summer and winter work for the horses will prevent the waste caused by their "eating their heads off" half the year or so that they may be available for work at other seasons.

HORSE LORE.

To groom the horse well after hard work does not only clean the skin, but it prevents various parasitic diseases of the skin.

In the purchase of a new horse always purchase a mare. She will raise you some colts, which will increase the farm profits. There is no kind of animal breeding that will pay better than the breeding of horses, but horses that will sell, not dung, hills or mounds.

Don't keep your horse in an overhauled stable and then stand him for hours in a freezing atmosphere and wonder how he became paralyzed.

Most farm horses get too much hay. Cut down the amount and feed it mostly at night. Thorough dampening lessens the danger from feeding dusty hay.
