Vote X 62

Walter H. Evans

Republican Candidate For District Attorney
Assistant United States Attorney for Oregon,
Four Years.

MY PURPOSE

Is to give to the people a clean, efficient, anti-graft administration.

My training and experience as assistant United States Attorney for Oregon during the past four years will enable me, if elected District Attorney, to carry out this purpose. Violators of the law will be vigorously prosecuted without fear or favor, and law-abiding citizens, and those falsely accused, will be protected in their rights against persecution, graft and blackmail, with equal vigor.

One standard of justice for all—Equality before the law.

A Modern Antique.

A story told of Pistrucci has its point for collectors. Pistrucci was an Italian and chief engraver at the mint. It is, by the way, to him that English is indebted for the fine group of St. George and the dragon on the reverse of the sovereign. He insisted that modern work in cameo should be quite as fine as ancient work. A "potboiler" head of Flora which he engraved and sold to a dealer for £5 was afterward sold as an antique to Richard Payne Knight for £500. Knight took the cameo in triumph to Pistrucci.

"Where can you get modern work like that?" he asked.

Pistrucci smiled and claimed the antique for his own. Knight would not believe him.

"Examine the roses," said the artist, "and you will see that they are modern flowers."

The point was admitted by others, but never by Knight, who bequeathed the gem and the rest of his collection to the nation. But for the roses an expert would undoubtedly pronounce Pistrucci's cameo a fine antique.

Gladstone's Refreshment.

Gladstone's recourse to refreshment when speechmaking is commented on in John Bigelow's "Retrospections of an Active Life." In 1860, when Gladstone was installed as lord rector of Edinburgh university, Bigelow notes that when he rose to speak the statesman "took his position by the desk, laid down a pile of manuscript, pulled out of his pocket a little flask with a cork that unscrewed and a false bottom that made a cup, emptied something into the cup and then addressed himself to the work of the day. *** He spoke just an hour and a half, refreshing himself occasionally from the little cup, which he preferred to the tumblers standing beside him for no reason that I can imagine except that it did not betray the color of its contents. He evidently had no confidence that his audience were gentlemen enough to turn their backs if he had filled a glass."

Waited For His Assassin to Come.

In the American Magazine, about Joseph Pulitzer, the late blind editor of the New York World, is the following: "Perhaps the most amusing of all Mr. Pulitzer's stories about himself was one which related to an occurrence which took place after he had become editor and part proprietor of the Westliche Post. It appears that he had given great offense to a certain judge in St. Louis and that the latter declared one day from the bench that before the sun set he would seek out Pulitzer and shoot him down like a dog. If my memory serves me, Mr. Pulitzer was in court when this threat was made. In any case, it came to his ears, and he immediately issued an "extra" announcing the proposed assassination and stating that he would remain in his office until the setting of the sun in order that no hitch might occur in the program."

The Pace That Kills.

The Army and Navy club in Washington is an exclusive organization. The clubhouse is nicely decorated. One picture of which the members are proud and which they take every opportunity to bring to the attention of visitors is a rather crude pen and ink drawing, obviously the work of an amateur. It depicts an officer seated before a deal table, standing in front of which is a private soldier at salute. Beneath the picture is the following inscription:

"Put, I hear that you have been drunk again."

"Yes, sir."

"Your conduct is disgraceful. Why can't you drink like soldiers and gentlemen?"

"Faith, sir, and if I did O'd be dead in a wake." Washington Star.

Each one sees what he carries in his heart.—Goethe.

Beauty.

A poetess asks, "Oh, where does beauty linger?" We think that we are breaking no confidence when we reply that in these artistic times it generally lingers on the toilet table until the girl puts it on with a brush and a powder puff.—London Th Rits

Geometrical.

"Don't know her? Why, she lives in the same square with you."

"Yes, but she's not in the same circle."—Cleveland Leader

A Forgotten Monument.

A Washington monument that was never erected occupied the attention of the citizens of New York in 1847. It was to tower far above any other structure that it might be seen many miles out at sea. Several thousand dollars were actually raised and the cornerstone was laid with ceremony in Hamilton square, which covered the blocks now contained between Third and Fifth avenues, Sixty-sixth and Sixty-ninth streets. This was before Central park had been outlined. Hamilton square was a portion of the old common lands of the city. It is not known what became of the Washington monument cornerstone. The monument association gradually ceased to exist. The $1,000,000 monument was forgotten, and when the ground once known as Hamilton square was cut up and the streets run through no record remains as to what was done with the cornerstone and its leaden box filled with memorials of the city in 1847.—Exchange.

Slander.

Close thine ear against him that shall open his mouth secretly against another. If thou receivest not his words they fly back and wound the reporter. If thou dost receive them they fly forward and wound the receiver.—Lavater.
