SYSTEM AND REGULARITY ARE IMPORTANT POULTRY FACTORS

Enthusiasm on the Part of the Beginner is All Right, But Patience, Sound Thinking and Hard Work are the Essentials—Not the Easy Occupation That Many Believe.

Sturdy Incubator Chicks.

As a rule the beginner starts in the poultry business with great enthusiasm. He carefully looks after the details and he gives the best of attention. In time, however, in many cases, the enthusiasm wears off and he becomes neglectful, then he fails. If, on the other hand, he does not become discouraged, but keeps up his faithful work, he succeeds. The plant grows. There is an improvement in his stock, and his enthusiasm, instead of flagging, is increasing. Now it is well not to be too enthusiastic at the start. It is apt to breed over-confidence. The beginner in such cases is apt to build air-castles and get to that point where he "knows it all." A little knowledge is sometimes a dangerous thing. It is necessary, of course, to have some enthusiasm. All enterprises require it. Unless a heartfelt interest is taken in the work assigned us we are apt to poorly perform our duties. Helters-skelter methods are disastrous. Every muscle should bend to the proper performance of the work. The man who begins poultry-culture with the idea of becoming rich, is very apt, sooner or later, sell out at less than cost. We must not aim too high.

Langshans.

Two important articles are necessary to success. Capital and experience. All businesses require both capital and a trained mind. Some years ago the poultry business was boomed with the false inducement that raising chickens was an occupation that called for very little labor, practically no capital and a very small amount of experience. These false inducements were handed out in order to create sales for stock and machinery. But instead of being that easy occupation, it was found to be one that required brains, energy, and every requisite needed in any other business. He who is easily discouraged, a victim of the "blues," or he who soon tires of the sameness of work, or the close confinement it entails, had better leave the poultry business entirely alone. While it cannot be said that the care of poultry is hard, muscular work, at the same time getting up in the morning and repeating what every morning before was done during the week, working at night when a lantern is necessary, duties to perform on every day, Sundays and holidays included, soon tries the grit, the push and the patience of a man. But if the man masters all these obstacles, and sticks to his business, he will, as a rule, succeed. There are times in all enterprises when it looks

WHITEWASH THAT STICKS TO WALL

Excellent and Quite Inexpensive Plan of Improving General Appearance of the Home.

There are many brick and stone walls, as well as wooden outbuildings, fences and the like, about a suburban place which, lacking paint, detract much from the general appearance of the home. But paint is somewhat expensive and cannot be applied with too lavish a hand by the average citizen. There is, however, whitewash, which is easily made and applied, is inexpensive, and which for most outdoor work will answer quite as well as oil paint. For chicken houses, brick walls and the like it is excellent. To make the whitewash, slake half a bushel of fresh lime with boiling water, keeping it covered during the process. The lime should not, of course, be confined, but merely covered, as confined, it possesses considerable explosive force. Strain it and add a peck of salt dissolved in warm water, three pounds of ground rice put in boiling water and boiled to a thin paste, half a pound of powdered Spanish whiting and a pound of clear glue dissolved in warm water. Mix these well together and let the mixture stand for seven days in a reasonably cool and shaded place. Keep the wash thus prepared in a kettle, and when it is being used put it on as hot as possible, using a painter's or an ordinary whitewash brush. Always use magnesian lime for whitewash.

as though the business would fall, but by pegging away it is soon discovered that only a dark cloud had appeared. But it is at these times that the faint-hearted begin to reason that the days for success in "this line" are gone by. When a man gets to that state of mind that he cannot see a silver lining in the cloud, he is ready to accept the first offer to sell out. In the majority of cases he makes his losses all the greater by selling out below cost. The writer has seen days when there was hardly a cent of income, when he had to go into debt to buy feed and pay other expenses, and days, too, when he couldn't even see a prospect of some business for a long time to come. But he stuck to the work, and when the first money came in, it was soon followed by other money, and in time the debts were paid, and ever since there has been more or less regularity of income. During those trying times, when it seemed almost impossible to keep the wolf from the door, the writer would meet men in other walks of life with the big rolls of bills in their pockets, with flourishing occupations, but nevertheless, he held on, never losing an opportunity of making a turn for the good. He was rewarded. Some of those men with the big rolls of banknotes were not satisfied; they wanted to make more money, wanted to grow wealthy, read of the great sums, realized by men who invested in stocks, who became rich by the ownership of mining shares—they gave up their present occupations, sacrificed the "goose that laid the golden egg" and became slaves to the stock-gambling lure, which finally left them high and dry. So the beginner must not forget that he who sticks to his work is the one who will finally come out on the right side. Trials are often angels in disguise.

The beginner must know that his fowls deserve and must have the best of care. He must keep a close watch as to conditions, must provide comfort, cleanliness and plenty of room. Likewise he must study the appetites of his flock. Both system and regularity are important factors, never forgetting that shiftlessness is costly and flith is a dangerous stumbling-block. The quality and quantity of brain work put into the concern determines the amount of success.

Trained thinking and wise working is a secret that will, in the end, bring about success. "Bad luck" is merely another term for bad management. No duty is rightly performed that is done in a mechanical manner. The beginner must stop and think. He must notice the little matters. He must never assume more work than he can accurately perform. He must never overestimate his capacity, and he must never rush to get done. Haste makes waste. Map out a plan, and then work by it. Scrub treatment will bring scrub results. The lack of good business sense has been the cause of more failures than has anything else. A man never shirks his duty when he is in dead earnest in his work.

HOW AMERICANS VISIT PARIS

EIFFEL TOWER

An American city woman was sailing home from Paris. "Charlie," she said to a Parisian friend of the family, "I am quitting this Modern Babylon, this Cavern of Folly—" "Pardon, Mabel, but you got about with celerity," replied the gouty one. "No Parisienne of my acquaintance can begin to touch your record."

"Oh, but Charlie, it was not for pleasure," she reproached him gently. "Often I was quite tired, but I kept up—just to see." "Such were her last words. His were: "Mabel, you're a fraud!" But he was mistaken. All the rich Americans who come to Paris get about the resorts with energy, fearful of missing something. Parisians do not understand. They just wanted to see! The husband of Mabel and two others trusted Charlie to take the ladies to supper at the Abbaye after the theater. Amid gypsy music, lights, toilettes, popping champagne, laughter, practical jokes and calls from table to table, they noticed a pair of Spanish dancing girls weaving a fandango in the aisles. Charlie stepped aside a moment to speak to the maitre d'hotel, and returning found that Mabel had invited the dancing girls to their table. "It's a surprise, Charlie," she said guiltily; but the scolded. "You know you should not do it," he said. "What possessed you?"

"Oh," she answered, "it is just to make a study!" After all, she said to him, because a whole series of very smart resorts base their existence on a previous Parisian desire to make a "study," to see something "different" and exclusive. All the genesis of the little jewel box theatres a cot, "on the side," so popular alike with rich Americans and Parisians, is here.

Pay for insults.
It began when someone discovered Alexandre Bruant's little cabaret for laborers and masons, to whom rude but powerful song writers warbled their ballads of the "people." Friday evenings the fashionables began arriving in dress clothes and a string of elegant equipages, to pay the beer $3, and be good naturedly insulted by the chorus of habitués as they departed.

Next it was the Cabaret of Janitors, the Quai's-Arts, the Tavern of Assassins, Fursy's Shanty—to which the smart world still goes—and many another, all copied on the same model. It was seen that the fashionables were glad to enter a little hall, where everybody could not go because there was not room, because it was dear and different. As soon as the middle class and tourist public caught on the fashionable quit and tried another.

Grasping this taste of the rich the managers of those that remained smart kept their prices very dear. Thus, you pay $2.50 for the poorest seat at the Capucines and dearer for a back seat at the Michel than for an orchestra chair at the Grand Opera!

Insignificant-looking resorts insure their cloakroom for a million and the bonds of its employes aggregate a like sum. Rich Americans flock to the Capucines, hidden on the boulevard, opposite the Olympia. The Olympia, blazing with lights, has a 40 cents entrance. You must hunt for the Capucines through a dim porte-cochere into an ordinary apartment building courtyard, where it is surrounded and topped by business offices and flats. There is scarcely a sign. Inside, a bijou hall, with 14 rows of seats, six boxes, a tiny low balcony as dear as the rest, a jewel box stage, Beaux-Arts scenery worthy to frame Regina Badet and $2.00 cheapest entrance.

Here the young King of Portugal met Gaby Deslys, as star of a Revue-ette. Here Regina Badet, one-time ballet queen of the Opera-Comique, plays, sings and dances in "Sappho and Phaon," whose dialogue, however witty and refined, would never be permitted on the stage of a large theater. The same may be said of the costumes. At one moment Regina might jump into the sea and scarcely wet her clothes. There are half a dozen of these theaters of the first class, the Michel, the Arts, the Madame, the Mondain, the Fursy, and so on. The Grand Guignol makes a specialty of short pieces of horror and terror, many of which have been adopted in America.

At 7:30 p. m., in the late Paris spring, it is still daylight. The rich Americans, dressed in their evening clothes, begin to get uneasy. The witching hour approaches. Is Dan coming?

The Sylvan Restaurants.
There are a hundred Dans, all in a hurry, bubbling with life and ardor, knowing everything and everyone. Many are young Frenchmen of best families. Many are English and Americans grown up in Paris. I do not say that rich Americans cannot get on without Dan in the evening, but they'd rather have him.

At the instant Dan arrives, all a-go, and upsets all arrangements. (This surprise and upsetting has its charm.) It's too fine a night to dine in-doors. Quick, telephone to the Ambassadeurs for a table! Great crowd there tonight, the Duc de Montpensier returned from his exploring expedition, has a dinner party. Vanderbilt another, Sacha Maghan and the two Grand Dukes, it will be delightful!

Evidently—or they would be stuck. Dinner in the sylvan restaurants of the Champs Elysees is the dearest eating proposition in Paris. Laurent's is severely fashionable. Paillard's (Durand's) is as fashionable and slightly gayer. The Ambassadeurs, with its terraces, perron and balconies under the trees yet partly enclosed from the wind, is a charmed spot of gilded youth—and old age—and fresh, laughing beauty, a mixed world of aristocrats, racing men, actresses, professional loveliness, notable foreigners and daring married ladies with their husbands. The management is that of Maxim's. At lunch, the cookery is the best in Paris; but dinner is out of price.

Gayety is on the bill of fare. But always within correct bounds. Even lone parties of rich Americans arrive at a semblance of rollicking cheer, while looking on. Half a dozen young men of high family, half a dozen pretty women vaguely of the theater play ladylike practical jokes on each other, so keep things moving. They need not pay for their supper. That is why your bill is higher.

If you want to see real crazy razzie, Dan will take you to the Abbaye de Theleme—reference to old Rabelais' tipsy Utopia, with its motto: "Do as you please." To what your appetite, he will tell you its story—how the discredited Montmartre night-restaurant, with cobwebs on its wall was taken in hand by the Cafe de Paris and Armenoville, and in one week filled with the cream of rioting Paris, the line of private equipages waiting two blocks outside.

The supper for six persons, $50. And cheap. All the while you have been lulled by love songs. You have had next to nothing to eat. If you want more, it is dearer. Breaking crockery and setting fire to celluloid knife handles, $40 extra.

Dinner was dearer. If you had melon, lobster, flowers, primeur vegetables, peaches, strawberries, cherries, cigars and liquors, count it $80 or $120 for six persons. Habitués get it at half price.

Where Twins Are Desirable.
In China women carry their children from baskets that hang from a bar that crosses the mother's shoulders. Twins are desirable as preserving the balance of weight, if not for other reasons.

Tonic—Alterative

What is a "tonic"? A medicine that increases the strength or the tone of the whole system. What is an "alterative"? A medicine that alters or changes unhealthy action to healthy action. Name the best "tonic and alterative"? Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol. Ask your doctor about it.

Bilious attacks, sick-headaches, indigestion, constipation, dizzy spells—these are some of the results of an inactive liver. Ask your doctor if he endorses Ayer's Pills in these cases. The dose is small, one pill at bedtime.

Costumes Indicated Conditions.
Peasant girls in parts of Europe declare their unmarried condition by modes of dress and coiffure, and bachelors are sometimes indicated in similar fashion. The zone or girdle had its significance in the Greek world, and the Roman husband wore as such garb of his own.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

How Mrs. Reed of Peoria, Ill., Escaped The Surgeon's Knife.

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. Fortwo years I suffered. The doctor said I had a tumor and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a well and healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. I am glad to tell anyone what your medicines have done for me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Lynch Also Avoided Operation.
Jessup, Pa.—"After the birth of my fourth child, I had severe organic inflammation. I would have such terrible pains that it did not seem as though I could stand it. This kept up for three long months, until two doctors decided that an operation was needed. "Then one of my friends recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after taking it for two months I was a well woman."—Mrs. JOSEPH A. LYNCH, Jessup, Pa.

Women who suffer from female ills should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of the most successful remedies the world has ever known, before submitting to a surgical operation.
