WITHIN the last week some very surprising developments have been made. With four candidates in the field for United States Senator it appeared that the good people of the state ought to be able to find the man they want. But the very profusion of candidates has been the source of dissatisfaction. The entry of Clark into the field will draw votes from both Selling and Lane. Republicans who might have voted for Lane find the progressive professions of Clark preferable to the Democratic doctrines of Lane, while still others who had no love for Selling's uncertain affiliations began to seek more certain anchorage. Above all is the slowly evolving feeling that it is a bad practice to trade horses when your horse is the very kind of a horse you want and you have no assurance you will be benefited by a trade,—when all the other horses have one or more visible blemishes and the probability of colic, azaturia botts and broken wind. Besides hundreds of Democrats and thousands of progressives and "stand pat" Republicans feel that it is not only impractical, but that it is unjust and downright ingratitude to drop a man who has proven his quality, for uncertain candidates however well they may appear superficially. Within the last month the only parcels post law ever passed and the best that possibly could have been worked through under present conditions, and it is doubtful if a better and more rational one could have been put through, under any condition, a law that protects the local dealer and at the same time meets the demands of the local producer and consumer, has been put through by an Oregon Senator. A senator who was sobusy with acquiring all the data and preparing the arguments, which when finally presented were so tremendously forceful that the concluding vote was practically unanimous, that he did not have time to run back home to look after his political fences, trusting to the honesty of local venders of publicity, and the gratitude of the populace to penetrate the clouds of misrepresentation, uncertainty and ignorance. But people through the state are discovering that Mr. Bourne has been a loyal champion of their interests to a degree far in excess of their fondest hope or wildest imagination. Indeed they have been lead to believe that all the good things which should have been turned this way have been allowed to drift into distant channels. But a little comparison and computation develops an entirely different view point.

"During the years 1907, 1908 and 1909, when Oregon had no member on the Senate Committee on Commerce, the River and Harbor bill carried only the normal, ordinary appropriations for Oregon projects. Those appropriations would have been received in due course even if Oregon had no representative in either house of Congress. No new projects were recognized. In 1909 Senator Bourne became a member of the Commerce Committee, and the result is shown by the indisputable records which show that Bourne had the following amendments added in the Senate Committee and passed:

| jects and Oregon Slough..... | 407,000 |

| Dredges for 30 ft. channel in Columbia..... | $320,000 |

Is it to the interest of the citizens of Oregon to keep Jonathan Bourne on the Senate Committee on Commerce? An association for business men and farmers extending into all parts of the state maintains that it is. Before another week we will add another senatorial nominee to the November ballot.—Pacific Grange Bulletin.

THE Herald management has been receiving a number of complaints recently in regard to the delivery of the paper. While we regret these occurrences and have tried every way in our power to correct any cause for complaint, we find ourselves helpless to explain some of the conditions. Our mail list was never in better shape and we can only account for the irregularities as accidents, due to name tags getting knocked off or to carelessness in handling. We hope our friends who have these troubles will inform us and at the same time be patient with us. We have learned that in a few instances where complaint was made the parties had overlooked payment of subscription. We regret that we cannot conduct a paper on the donation plan, but it takes money to run a paper. The entire community is benefitted by the publicity it affords and it is no more than right that the individuals who comprise the community and are benefitted by it should contribute to its success morally and financially. Don't expect The Herald to come to you regularly for nothing.

The Men Who Succeed

as heads of large enterprises are men of great energy. Success, to-day, demands health. To all is to fail. It's utter folly for a man to endure a weak, run-down, half alive condition when Electric Bitters will put him right on his feet in short order. "Four bottles did me more real good than any other medicine I ever took," writes Chas. B. Allen, Sylvania, Ga. "After years of suffering with rheumatism, liver trouble, stomach disorders and deranged kidneys, I am again, thanks to Electric Bitters, sound and well." Try them. Only 50 cents at All Dealers.

Mothers who spend the night with a sick baby appreciate the help they get from McGEHE'S BABY ELIXIR,—especially in hot weather. It quiets fever and irritation, soothes the stomach, checks the bowels and helps both mother and child to obtain sleep and rest. Price 25c and 50c per bottle. Sold by Lents Pharmacy.

Imaginary.

"Father," said the little boy, "every now and then I hear you talking about somebody who was old enough to know better."

"Yes, my boy."
"What age is that, father?"
And the old gentleman after some thought replied:

"My son, there isn't any such thing. It's like the golden age—purely mythological."

Very Particular.

Mistress (engaging servant)—I hope you have nice print dresses, and I expect you always to wear caps. Mary—Yes, mum; I'm very particular to wear caps. I shouldn't like to be taken for one of the family, mum.—London Opinion.

He Couldn't.

De Anecdote—Though he was a great and famous artist, he once stooped to paint a kitchen floor. Cole Fax—How could he do it without stooping?—Exchange.

"TEN DEMANDMENTS" OF EMPLOYER TO EMPLOYEE

- FIRST—Don't lie. It wastes my time and yours. I am sure to catch you in the end, and that will be the wrong end.
- SECOND—Watch your work, not the clock. A long day's work makes a long day short, and a short day's work makes my face long.
- THIRD—Give me more than I expect, and I will give you more than you expect. I can afford to increase your pay if you increase my profits.
- FOURTH—You owe so much to yourself you cannot afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt, or keep out of my shops.
- FIFTH—Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good women, never see temptation when they meet it.
- SIXTH—Mind your own business, and in time you will have a business of your own to mind.
- SEVENTH—Don't do anything here which hurts your self respect. An employee who is willing to steal for me is willing to steal from me.
- EIGHTH—It is none of my business what you do at night, but if dissipation effects what you do the next day, and you do half as much as I demand, you'll last half as long as you hoped.
- NINTH—Don't tell what I would like to hear, but what I ought to hear. I don't want a lauge for my pride, but one for my purse.
- TENTH—Don't kuck if I kick. If you're worth while correcting, you're worth while keeping. I don't waste time cutting specks out of rotten apples.

English Fish Laws.

Fish, because of its tendency rapidly to decompose, holds a peculiar position among foods. In England it is the subject of a special act of parliament. So long ago as 1698 men knew the evil consequences resulting from eating mackerel of uncertain postmortem age, so they passed an act providing that except during the hours of divine service this fish could be sold on Sunday. That act has never been repealed.

Kingsley's Love For His Wife.
Even a brief holiday at the seaside was to Charles Kingsley too long an absence from his wife. "This place, 'tis perfect," he wrote on one occasion, "but it seems a dream and imperfect without you. Blessed be God for the rest, though I never before felt the loneliness of being without the beloved being whose every look and word and motion is the keynote of my life. People talk of love ending at the altar. Fools!"

OLD HICKORY CHIPS.

No bosses in the new party. "Bosses", you will note, is in the plural.

Parcels post advantage to the householder are another result of democratic efforts in Congress.

Miss Kahilaonapaopilliana of Hawaii, is to be married. No one can blame the girl with a name like that to change it.

Enough is now known to prove that the great Roosevelt campaign of 1904 was a scandal of corruption and a disgrace.

Rural mail carrier's pay has been raised. They earn it now but think of their labors when the parcels post is out into operation.

It takes a lot of trouble and worry in this life to make a man lose his optimism when apple dumpings are as fine as they are this season.

Mr. Taft says that the job of President "must have been a perfect hell", in Lincoln's time, and yet Old Abe made something of a success of it."

Those woman suffragists who expected the colonel to talk the cause in every speech note with some dismay and bewilderment that in the six speeches delivered in New England, last Friday and Saturday he did not refer to it once.

Took Himself Off.
Foote, the comedian, was once threatened with a whipping because he had caricatured a certain man. He apologized fervently, adding, "Why, I take myself off sometimes!" And, slipping through an opening in a fence, he illustrated the deed.

Presumption.
"What are you writing, old chap?"
"An article entitled 'Advice to Graduates.'"
"Eh! Advice to grad— Well, of all the presumption!"—Boston Transcript.
