THE State Game Warden is as busy as ever trying to prevent some one from getting hurt, or from having a good time, or hatching up some new fangled ideas about how the country people ought to protect the poor birds which feed on the farm products all year and well into the fall before the city fellows are turned loose to clean them all up within a couple of weeks of good sporting. But then what are the farmers to expect. If the farmers were permitted to shoot the birds and other game as they needed it or when they wanted a little sport the town fellows would have no sport at all, or practically none. By some very effective game laws the game is all preserved until some convenient time in the fall and then when the city sport goes after game there is sure to be some good shooting. He will get as much in a day or so as the farmer would in a whole season and the fact that the farmer has been feeding a good portion of this game is no argument for him. He has to pay for a license to get to take a shot at his own chickens, rabbits, squirrels, and an occasional bear or mountain goat. Whenever we get done sending town sports only, to the legislature this will be changed.

ONE of the main causes for meat shortage in this country has been the tick pest of the South. This prevails from Texas eastward and is costing the country millions each year. That is, cattle raising is so unprofitable in many sections of the South that counties where two or three millions of dollars worth could easily be produced for shipment, are not now raising enough to supply their own needs. The Government is now waging a warfare on ticks and it is believed that with the eradication of the ticks of the South that the meat problem will be largely settled. One of the outcomes of the tick pest is the "Texas Fever" which is contagious and to prevent the spread of which infected cattle are not permitted to be shipped. Since the infected cattle could not be shipped, and most of the cattle of the South were infected, it can readily be seen how the stock business of this section of the country has been destroyed.

There is considerable complaint about the recent determination of Commissioner Daily to put the water consumers on a quarterly payment basis. Many of them think this will be a hardship on people who are living on a close basis. They say it will be an inconvenience when people are renting or are otherwise not permanently located. It will be considerable inconvenience to have to look for a refund on payments which have been made when one is leaving a place, which has been paid in advance. It will be an advantage in some ways, for instance if the consumer must go to the city hall to make his payments he would probably prefer to go annually.

Oregon is coming in for her share of Cabinet notice from this administration. Secretaries of Navy and War have already been to see us. Now we are informed that the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Lane, and of Agriculture, Mr. Houston, are expected next month. This administration seems to be looking into things pretty generally, but not every visit means a new irrigation scheme, or another experiment station or two.

BEGGS, OKLA. MISS IS A STAR MAKER OF BREAD AND BUTTER

After Winning State Prizes, Miss Ruth Soule, 17 Years Old, Is a Noted Housekeeper.

Beggs, Okla. is just as proud of its 17-year-old miss, who is a star in the art of bread making and butter making, as any city which has given the world a grand opera voice of a famous actress. And who shall say that Beggs, Okla. does not see the relationship of things with a broad sweep of the horizon, out there in the open country of Okmulgee County?

Miss Ruth Soule, who gives Beggs its claim to distinction, was the prize bread maker at 14 years of age in the Oklahoma Boys and Girls Clubs, an extensive organization which now has a membership of thirty thousand. She won prizes in butter making and in dressmaking also, and now, at 17 years of age, she is the housekeeper for her father, Phi Soule, on a 160-acre farm. Her love for farm life and joy in its domestic accomplishments led her through courses in home economics at the agricultural schools, and a year ago, upon the death of her mother, she became a farm housekeeper of the highest order.

Miss Soule does all her own housework, including the tending of a garden. The family consists of her two brothers, one 9, the other 15 years of age, and her father. In attending school last term the 9-year-old brother was neither absent nor tardy.

A Breadmaker at 12.

Miss Soule began making bread when she was 12 years old. Then she went into contests in breadmaking, butter making and dressmaking and won prizes that gave her free tuition in district and state agricultural schools. Of course, Beggs always was strong for its household prize winner and now that she is a notable success as a full fledged housekeeper it is prouder of her than ever.

Her butter sells at a premium on the Beggs market and she cannot supply the demand. At picnics there is always a general feminine interest in the bread that comes from her basket. The artists in music and dramatic life have nothing over the domestic scientist of Beggs in the temperament line, either. Miss Beggs is musical, loves outdoor life and does her own dressmaking.

WONDROUS VALUE OF APPLES

Do you know what you are eating when you eat an apple? You are eating gallic acid, one of the most necessary elements in human economy. You are eating sugar in the most assimilable form, combined carbon, hydrogen and oxygen caught and imprisoned from the sunshine. You are eating albumen in its most available state. You are eating a gum allied to the "fragrant medicinal gums of Araby." And you are eating phosphorous in the only form in which it is available as the source of all brain and nerve energy. In addition to all these, you are drinking the purest of water and eating the most healthful and desirable fiber for the required "roughness" in food elements. The acids of the apple diminish the acidity of the stomach and prevent and cure dyspepsia. They drive out the obnoxious matters that cause skin eruptions and thus are nature's most glorious complexion makers. They neutralize in the blood the deleterious elements that poison the brain and make it sluggish. The contained phosphorous is not only greater than in any other form of food, but it is presented in a shape for immediate use by the brain and nerves where it may flash into great thoughts and great deeds. The ancients assigned the apple as the food for the gods, and its juices the ambrosial nectar to which they resorted to renew their youth. Men are the gods of today, and the apple is their royal food, the magic renewer of youth. Eat a rich ripe apple every day and you have disarmed all diseases of half their terror.

The Best Pain Killer

The Best Light At The Lowest Cost

ELECTRIC LIGHT is the most suitable for homes, offices, shops and other places needing light. Electricity can be used in any quantity, large or small, thereby furnishing any required amount of light. Furthermore, electric lamps can be located in any place, thus affording any desired distribution of light.

No other lamps possess these qualifications, therefore it is not surprising that electric lamps are rapidly replacing all others in modern establishments.
