CHERRYVILLE

A Happy New Year.

The top of the morning and the balance of the year to everybody.

Now is the time to swear off. Cut out the booze and the cigarettes. If you have a grudge against yourself take a dose of poison. It is quicker and less painful.

Vincent Freil came home for a brief visit from Washington where he has been employed for some time.

Miss Viola Freil spent the week end up at Rowe and Welches visiting with friends.

Wm. Allen and family moved back to Marmot this week where they will remain a couple of months. Mr. Allen will haul ties for the saw mill of Mickle-son & Nelson.

There will be a school meeting at the school house Saturday evening of this week for the purpose of voting on a proposition to levy a special school tax.

Mr. Wm. Tagram and family of Portland moved out on their R. R. claim this week near Alder Creek bridge two miles east of this place. Mrs. Treping of Portland also came out and will live on an adjoining claim. They are in hopes that these disputed lands will soon be settled in favor of the government as they ought to have been long ago. They are up against a hard combination though as the Southern Pacific hires able lawyers like Judge Cotton and Judge Fenton besides subsidizing the popular preachers and the big dailies to boost for them. Public opinion is however fast crystallizing against these combinations of robbers and thieves.

The Telegram in a late issue contains a sentence in a leading article in which the pronoun "who" in writing about the late Banker Bush is replaced for the adverb "which." If this had happened in the office where the writer once was employed the air would have been lurid with the profanity and abuse of the managing editor. This is a bad break in a leading editorial.

A new book entitled "The Calling of Dan Mathews," has appeared which is having a big run as nearly 1,000,000 copies have already been sold. It deals largely with the absurdities of our present popular theological system. Among other cutting things the author says "the popular preacher talks to please those who pay him." His description of a modern revival is a masterful bit of satire and true to life.

The writer received for a Christmas present reappointment as post master here under the democratic administration.

WELCHES

Happy New Year!

About fourteen Mazamas are spending a week at Government Camp and Rhododendron Inn. They are enjoying the beautiful snow scenes as well as the pleasurable sport of skiing. New Year's eve they gave a dance at the Inn, Osmon Royal furnishing the music.

Arle and Roy Mitchell spent Christmas and New Year's with home folks. Twenty-five attended the "Community dinner and dance" given at Welches hotel Christmas day and all reported a very enjoyable time.

Jack Koltzier of Portland is spending a few days with his friend, Tom Brown, at camp Zig Zag.

Oscar Rennie is spending the holidays with his mother and sister at Salem.

Mrs. J. W. Creighton returned to her home after spending two months with her mother, Mrs. J. T. Harper, of Portland.

Tom Brown spent Christmas with his mother.

George Williams is on the sick list this week. Al Emily has taken his place on the stage line for a few days.

John Marugg received word Saturday that his brother is very ill at the Good Samaritan hospital in Portland.

Miss C. Murphy is spending the holidays with home folks at Illihee.

Several guests were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fabion Christmas eve, it being their wedding anniversary.

KELSO

The entertainment held at the school house Saturday night drew a full house and the proceeds amounted to a little over $34.00.

School closed Friday for a two weeks vacation. Miss Carrie Lamoreaux has gone to Gresham to spend the holidays with her mother who moved to that place a few weeks ago.

R. E. Jarl and Leo Roth have divided their 80 acre tract near Jarl's mill and Mr. Jarl is having one acre of this part cleared.

Albert Jonsrud and G. Johnson returned from College at Corvallis to spend the holidays at their respective homes.

Important reasons why the proposed railroad between Boring and Sandy should be built along the side instead of along the middle of the road.—

The proposed railroad between Boring and Sandy should be built along the side of the road as was unanimously agreed at the meeting at Sandy for the following reasons: As not all the horses in the country are used to trains, it is necessary to have as much room as possible to turn out, thus avoiding accidents. Passengers can always get on and off the safe side, whereas if the track is in the middle, autos and vehicles passing on both sides will be a constant source of danger as well as being inconvenient for all concerned. The company proposes to keep up a wagon road along the track if it is built along the middle of the road, but as everyone knows it is impossible to keep up a good wagon road on top of ties, as gravel will not pack over ties, and it would be almost impossible for a heavy load to turn out over rails four inches high, and a siding grade. Then there would be two narrow strips of road to keep up instead of one whole side. And does any one think a railroad company is going to keep up a good wagon road in opposition to itself? Should the road be electrified, the wires will be a constant source of danger directly above the road. If the track is built in the middle, the present road will be torn up and all traffic stopped for months, which would injure business of all kinds. As for mail boxes—they can be put outside of the track next to the road, making it easy for the mail-carrier to drive up to them. In answer to the argument that it is dangerous to be obliged to cross the track to get the mail, is it any more dangerous to cross a track of four feet than to travel along the track for seven miles? Every sensible argument as well as popular sentiment favors having the track on one side, leaving the other side free for traffic which will not be obliged to bother turning out of the way for cars.

Miss Stella Jonsrud, who has been employed as stenographer at Kenne- wick, Wash., was taken suddenly ill with appendicitis a few days before Christmas. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Jonsrud, on receiving the news went immediately to Kennewick, and in a few days were able to move their daughter to Portland, where she was to undergo an operation Tuesday. Her many friends hope for her speedy recovery.

The Neighborhood Club will have a debate at the school house Saturday evening, Jan. 3, 1914. Subject, "Resolved that the Monroe Doctrine should be discontinued as part of our Permanent Foreign Policy." A large attendance is expected.

GRESHAM

Miss L. Squires, of Chicago, will arrive this week to make her home at her father's, M. M. Squires, of Gresham.

Miss Ada Honey, is entertaining Miss Harriet Davidson, of Tacoma.

Miss Ivey Lusted visited friends in Portland last week.

Hope Meyers is home from Eugene to spend his vacation with his parents.

Frank Metzger moved his family over from Damascus Tuesday.

Mrs. H. A. Darnall, of Lents, called on Gresham friends Monday.

Mrs. Reta Lantz, of Molalla, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Pullen.

Eugene Smith and family, of Grants Pass, are visiting the former's father and brother.

Dr. W. C. Belt, of Clatskanie, came up Monday for a short stay.

Miss Clarissa Haile entertained the Industrious Girls club, at her rooms in the Emery home, Monday afternoon.

Mrs. E. A. Leonard visited the first of the week with relatives in St. Johns.

Miss Blanche Ross, of Portland, visited one day this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Ross.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Sunday are visiting relatives in Gresham.

W. E. Morgan, of Melrose, died last Sunday in Portland. Mr. Morgan was the father of Mrs. Frank Gibbs, of Gresham. Funeral took place Tuesday afternoon from Carlson's chapel. Interment in Gresham cemetery.

The County Commissioners have signed an order to close the saloons in Gresham Jan. 1, 1914.

MILKING SHORTHORNS LIKED IN ENGLAND

It is claimed by high authority that from 80 to 90 per cent of the milk used in England comes from dual types of cattle, writes Thomas Shaw in the National Stockman. The great preponderance comes from the Short horns, in fact very much more than from all the other breeds combined. There are some Shorthorn herds in England that are maintained only for beef. But the proportion of these to that of the Shorthorns that are milked is very small indeed.

It would also be correct to say that nearly as large a proportion of the beef consumed comes from Shorthorns, pure and in the graded form, and yet in the face of these facts some of the While dairymen as a rule pin their faith to cattle of dairy breeding, many farmers like the milking strain of Shorthorns. A Kansas farmer says of this breed: "Three Shorthorn cows of mine are all good milkers, giving about five to six gallons per day when fresh and holding up with their milk very well. Sometimes they are giving about a gallon and a half a day within two weeks of the time they come fresh again. They do not keep fat on the best of feed when giving milk. Their milk is good and rich, and I consider they pay well for their feed and milking." The bull shown is of the milking Shorthorn strain.

wise teachers at our colleges have said that dual qualities could not be maintained.

An annual was issued in 1912 by the English Dairy Shorthorn association giving the milk records of 243 cows for that year. The cows were in milk on the average 294½ days. The lactation periods in many instances were not completed, and quite a number of the animals were heifers. The average production in milk was 7,518.88 pounds. The males, the progeny of these, when grown into beef invariably do well. The steers grown on skim milk and adjuncts during the milk period are positive favorites with the butchers. They attain to a large development, especially during the second year of growth, and it is claimed that the beef produced by those animals is better marbled than when the calves are reared upon the dam. In the latter instances the maturity is frequently premature, and the external fat is excessive.

LUMPY JAW IN CATTLE.
Two Methods of Treating This Dangerous Disease.
Lumpy jaw is the common name for the disease of the head, jaw and neck of cattle. The scientific name is derived from the fungous spore which gives rise to the disease and which is technically known as actinomycetes, writes Dr. A. S. Alexander in the Farm Journal.

There are two ways of treating the disease, either of which must be resorted to at once. In many cases the tumor when first noticed is not attached to the bone and may be cut out with little difficulty or danger. After the operation, which is best performed by a veterinarian who is familiar with the anatomy of the part, the walls of the cavity made by the knife should be cauterized with the hot iron or some caustic solution such as bichloride of mercury and hydrochloric acid in water.

This solution should consist of at least half an ounce of bichloride to the pint of water with sufficient of the acid to make it dissolve. It may be introduced by means of a swab of cotton on a stick. There are many other effective solutions.

If the operation and application are thoroughly done the first time there is rarely need of a second operation, but the solution may have to be used several times while the wound is healing. If the bone is involved it will have to be scraped and the swab used as before.

The other method of treatment consists in giving iodide of potash internally, and it is very effective, especially in cases of actinomycosis of the tongue (wooden tongue). The dose for an adult steer is one dram two or three times daily in a little water, according to the severity of the case, and it is to be continued until the disease seems to be lessening, when the dose may be reduced one-half and continued for a few days longer. As a rule, fair progress toward recovery is made in from eight to ten days.

Profit in Sheep Farming.
Although I have bought and sold and kept many thousands of cattle and sheep, I have never lost one by disease, writes a correspondent of the Farm Journal. This shows that live stock is much healthier than man. I have rarely or never dosed a sick animal. Sheep have paid better than any animals I have ever handled. On no other class of stock have I been able to double my money so easily as in the case of sheep.
