The demand for houses at Kelso exceeds the supply. Robert Jonsrud is having a house built to rent. John Jonsrud and Mr. Turner, contractors of Boring, are doing the work.

The residence of W. Guldenzop is nearly completed.

Ned Nelson and Robert Jonsrud are having a fence row cleared preparatory to having a line fence built. W. H. Hutchinson and Frank Patterson are doing the work.

Mrs. W. H. Hutchinson is expected home this week from the hospital. She is much improved in health.

Gilbert Jonsrud went to Oregon City Monday to serve as jurymen.

Miss Angela Canning is spending a week's vacation at her home here. She will graduate from the Portland Trade school next June.

CHERRYVILLE

Get your valentine! Thursday is Lincoln's birthday.

It is a credit to the American people that they admire and hold in high regard such characters as Washington or Lincoln more—far more—than they do those money monsters, Morgan or Rockefeller.

Glenn Rugh is seriously ill with pneumonia at this writing.

Dr. Botkins received a shipment of Indian Runner Ducks from a friend in Washington. The original owner stated that from a pair of these ducks and a drake he raised 135 ducks last year. They are wonderfully prolific.

The President seems to be in wrong on this Panama canal business. The Democratic platform at Baltimore, which he said was his guide in the equal suffrage business, flatly declares for free tolls for American coast wise vessels and if it is a guide in one case it ought to be equally binding in the other cases. There is a streak of old fogeyism in him as witness his John Calvinism but on the whole his work so far has been most excellent.

People send off for blood medicine and other cure-alls for spring remedies when the best spring medicine is right at our doors; to-wit Oregon grape root.

A person in this vicinity upon calling for their taxes found them to be $10.00 higher than last year. Having made no improvements it was a source of mystery why they should be penalized when they concluded as they had contemplated making improvements—that the intents of the heart, according to the old theology was as bad as the overt action. The poor must be taxed to the uttermost as the rich must be assisted in every way.

Plenty of candidates for Governor are already in the field ready for the primaries. All of them promise very much for the common people who certainly by this time ought to get something else than the red-hot end of the poker, but if the truth was known most of these self-selected candidates first, last, and all of the time, are figuring for themselves and you and I can go hang.

GRESHAM

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Reed have rented Dr. A. Thompson's house on Roberts Ave.

Harry Woods, who died suddenly last Saturday at his home in Montavilla, was buried in the Gresham cemetery Monday afternoon. The funeral was held from Carlson's Chapel. Mr. Wood is survived by his widow, and one son, Gurney Wood, besides his father, W. E. Wood, his grandmother, Mrs. E. B. Wood, both of Gresham and also several brothers.

Mrs. Robert Lansdown returned from the hospital last week much improved.

Mrs. D. A. Hart, a former resident of Gresham, died suddenly of heart disease last week at her home at Brightwood.

Miss Grace Burnett, of Portland, spent the week end visiting at the home of Mrs. Chas. Merrill. Both Miss Burnett and Birdine Merrill are teachers in the Thompson school in Portland.

Albert Beers, who came up from Medford to attend his grandfather Beers' funeral, has left for California.

The Queen Esther Circle will meet at the home of Miss Cleo Mathews next Friday evening.

Miss Bessie Howitt, is spending her vacation at her home in Gresham.

Saving the Wrecks.

A large manufacturer, who was also governor of his state, recently visited the state prison. When he came out he said that no big business pays so little attention to its "scrap heap" as society pays to the human wrecks. Business men sort out and use all that is usable, but society is indifferent, and assumes that every one who gets into prison is irredeemable.

Of course that was an extreme statement. For a hundred years philanthropists have been thinking about the human scrap heap, and as a result, we have prison reform associations, and organizations to prevent young men from getting into prison, and societies to help the discharged prisoners to find a honorable place in life.

The State of Washington, moreover, has begun to sort the scrap heap before it units get into prison. In every community there is at least one human wreck who lets his wife support him by taking in washing, while he loaf about the saloons or the grocery store. Under the new Washington law the police arrest such men, and take them before a magistrate. If the fellow has fallen so low that he has no self-respect left, the magistrate sentences him to a stockade, where he has to chop wood all day out doors; the dollar and a half a day that he earns is paid to his family. After a time, the physical exercise and the forced abstinence from drink bring about a change; the man promises to do his duty to the family outside the stockade, and is discharged. Other men need only the threat of a similar sentence to bring them to a sense of their responsibilities.

The law has not been in force long, but half a hundred families in Seattle are already receiving support from men who used to squander their money or earn none at all. So the Seattle scrap heap is not so big as it was a few months ago. Besides helping the men, the new plan solves the problem of the dependent mother; and it is certainly a better solution for the husband to take care of his wife and children than to have the state support them under a system of mothers' pensions.—Youth's Companion.

WORTH READING TWICE.

Not all blowhards are to be despised. There is the silage blower, for instance.

Make your farm look like yours. 'Twill be worth money to you to have a farm that's unlike every one else's—in the right way.

The best thing to bring home from the country fair besides a blue ribbon is the determination to win one.

There's quite some variety of poor judgments. Some farmers always take care to keep their horses fresh and never knock off themselves for a good time, and some are always knocking off themselves, but never rest up their horses.—Robert W. Neal in Farm and Fireside.

GROWING OF SEASONINGS.

Green Herbs Should Be Gathered Before Day Becomes Very Warm.

Green herbs if freshly and properly gathered are richest in flavoring substances and when added to sauces, fricassees, stews, etc., reveal their freshness by their particles as well as by their decidedly finer flavor. In salads they almost entirely supplant both the dried and the decocted herbs since their fresh colors are pleasing to the eye and their crispness to the palate, whereas the specks of the dried herbs would be objectionable, and both these and the decoctions impart a somewhat inferior flavor to such dishes.

No matter in what condition or for what purpose they are to be used the flavors of foliage herbs are invariably best in well developed leaves and shoots still in full vigor of growth. With respect to the plant as a whole these flavors are most abundant and pleasant just before the flowers appear. Since they are generally due to essential oils which are quickly dissipated by heat they are more abundant in the morning than after the sun has reached the zenith.

As a general rule, therefore, best results with foliage herbs, especially those to be used for drying and infusing, may be secured when the plants seem ready to flower, the harvest being made as soon as the dew has dried and before the day has become very warm. The leaves of parsley, however, may be gathered as soon as they attain that deep green characteristic of the mature leaf. Since the leaves are produced continuously for many weeks the mature ones may be removed every week or so, a process which encourages the further production of foliage and postpones the appearance of the flowering stem.—American Agriculturist.

The dullness of a majority of stupid pupils in school is due chiefly to adenoid growths in their nasal cavities or the fact that they are allowed or compelled to sleep with windows closed and a kerosene lamp still further fouling the air. In the name of decency and good health put up the windows and give the boys and girls a chance at some fresh air nights. It won't cost a cent.

The Pennsylvania department of agriculture has been investigating a new method of combating the San Jose scale by means of a parasite which is said to destroy it. The parasite was discovered by Dr. J. S. Grim, instructor in the Keystone State normal college, who notified Professor Surface, state geologist. The latter propagated the parasite and found that it destroyed the scale insects. If the new method can be applied on a commercial scale it would mean the saving of millions of dollars to the fruit growers of the country.
