behaved at times in similar fashion, until the civilized nations joined suppressing them, and the pirates who were outcasts from among the civilized nations also at one time perpetrated similar deeds, until they were sunk or hung. But none of these old-time pirates committed murder on so vast a scale as in the case of the Lusitania.

The loss of more than 100 American lives in this grim ocean tragedy is a serious matter. The United States made war on Spain for less, since the destruction of the Maine was never traced to the Spanish government, while the German government does not deny responsibility for the destruction of the Lusitania and the German press and people rejoice in it. From their point of view it was not only legitimate and necessary, but a glorious feat of naval arms. Their expression of regret for the loss of innocent lives is perfunctory and hollow.

Nevertheless, peace between the United States and Germany may yet prevail. Much depends upon Germany's answer to President Wilson's firm demand that there be no further attacks by submarines on merchant ships carrying non-combatants.

Mountain Teacher is Honored.

A very pleasant party was given the afternoon of May 5 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Faust on Weston mountain in observance of the birthday anniversary of H. W. Copeland, teacher of the mountain school. Diverging games were played on the lawn, and the refreshments met with much appreciation. Birthday cakes were baked for the affair by the Raymond and Dowd girls. Mrs. Faust made popcorn balls and laffy, and the guests of honor amicably furnished the bon bons. The list of guests included the pupils of Mr. Copeland, as follows:

Walter, Miller, Pauline and Allen Rayborn; Pearl, Maggie and Rhenamy Dowd; Noreal and Myrtle Ferguson; Paul, Gene and Ruth Schneider; Paul, Millard and Elmer Hopkins; Max and Dale Nell; Terrence Terhune, Ray Jones, Glenn Compton, Freddie Allyn, Clark Stamper, and the three children of Mr. Randall.

All present, including the teacher, enjoyed the occasion to the full, and it was voted a pronounced success. We are reliably informed that no switch or rule was in evidence, and that school discipline was conspicuously relaxed.

THE LUSITANIA TRAGEDY.

Whether the sinking of the Lusitania with hundreds of non-combatants was or was not a legitimate act of war, it will bring discredit upon the German cause in the minds of neutral peoples. Destruction of the Lusitania without warning, without giving its passengers a chance for their lives, shows that Germany will stop at nothing in the ruthless scheme of warfare which she is pursuing. Blame attaches to the Lusitania owners for carrying munitions of war on a passenger vessel, but this will not absolve Germany from an indictment of wholesale slaughter.

Assuming that Germany is technically in the right—that her submarine blockade of the British Isles may be regarded as a genuine and effective blockade and the Lusitania as an armed and hostile ship—this sea horror is nevertheless the fruit of a mistaken policy if she still seeks the friendship of the United States. It has undone in a day the patient and effective work of weeks on the part of the German press bureau. The following statement by Theodore Roosevelt, which we could wish might have been written in calmer vein, will undoubtedly set many minds aflame:

"The German submarines have established no effective blockade of the British and French coast lines. They have endeavored to prevent the access of French, British and neutral ships to Britain and France by attacks on them which defy every principle of international law as laid down in innumerable existing treaties, including The Hague conventions. Many of these attacks have represented pure piracy and not a few of them have been accompanied by murder on an extended scale. In the case of the Lusitania the scale was so vast that the murder became wholesale.

"A number of American ships had already been torpedoed in similar fashion. In one case the lives lost included those not only of the American captain, but of his wife and little daughter. When the Lusitania sank, some 1300 non-combatants, men, women and children, were drowned, and more than a hundred of these were Americans. Centuries have passed since any war vessel of a civilized power has shown such ruthless brutality toward non-combatants, and especially toward women and children.

Next Sunday's Games

Weston at Athens.
Milton-Freewater at Helix.

By playing better ball and swatting the sphere when swats were needed, the Helix Bunnies took another game Sunday from the Weston Mountaineers, on the local grounds.

Farmer O'Harra had an off day. While he allowed no more hits than the opposing pitchers, several of them went for extra bases and one of the Thorne boys rounded the circuit. These holdman recruits of the Helix aggregation were "thorns in the flesh" of our home talent and a source of unbounded joy to the visitors. The wonder is how such marvelous thorns can grow in the baseball bushes.

Weston took an early lead, as in its delightful custom, but lost it later on, as is likewise its disappointing habit. The locals had a chance to tie up the score and perhaps win out in the ninth, but their hopes went glimmering. With two down, Blomgren hit safely and Fulford walked. The alert Swede soon reached the third station and Fulford took second. Kennard came up and tried hard to score them, but could locate nothing but atmosphere. This faithful young player, however, registered two blows earlier in the matinee that figured largely in Weston's scoring.

Blomgren, who is a versatile ball-tosser, worked Sunday in the left garden, where he proved to be as much at home as in the infield. His neat acceptance of four chances helped much in holding down the score. Fulford, at third, played errorless ball, as follows:

Athens has protested the game which it lost in the last inning Sunday at Milton-Freewater, on the ground that the Twin Cityites imported a player from Walla Walla for the occasion. In view of the well-known desire of President Richards to enforce the amateur rule, it is likely that Milton-Freewater may yet lose the game, unless it is able to prove that the player was eligible. He was Rich, a middle gardener.

PEOPLE'S EXPRESS CO.

That Saturday Night Line of Men at the Express Office

THERE'S a strong story in that, Williams—a story of what prohibition is doing for your town. Those men are spending a lot of money because you've tried to deprive them of their honest right to drink beer. That money's going to dealers just twenty miles from your town—not a cent of it ever comes back. It's a sure thing, too, that the express companies don't spend those heavy shipping receipts in your city.

It's the old story of prohibition, Williams. Close the respectable, well-conducted beer saloon and seek by legislation to rob men of their liberty, and you have a problem that never works out in favor of a town. You don't keep men from drinking. Refuse to sell them beer, which heretofore they have drunk moderately because they know it's the drink of True Temperance and beneficial and stimulating, and the stronger drink line boke up. You send thousands of dollars out of the town that ought to be spent right there, and you encourage drunkenness and law-breaking.

Your town will wake up some day, Williams, like many another town that has been disillusioned.
