BREVITIES

J. H. Ridenour has returned from Montana, after a short season there in sheep-shearing.

Frank Price and family were among the Weston sojourners this week at Bingham Springs.

Mayor and Mrs. P. T. Harbour and children returned Monday from a few days of camping on Meacham creek.

Get your harness repaired for harvest at the Weston shoe and harness shop, Wheeler block. W. L. Cooper.

Sidney Warren left Friday for Franklin county to take charge of a wheat warehouse at Snake River station.

Mrs. C. G. King and family are preparing to move soon to Weston from Hermiston, and will occupy their cottage property on South Water street.

Neil NorDean, cable splice with the Pacific Telephone company, at present stationed in Walla Walla, was a recent visitor with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. NorDean.

Have you tried some of Zehm's Milk Bread? It's good—suf sed. Hot at 6 o'clock every morning. Help your own town and buy the bread that's made at home. Weston Bakery.

The Waltham Times, one of our most truthful exchanges, reports that "Al Brouillette is the possessor of a living curiosity—a calf six months old, which, though not weaned yet, gives a quart of milk per day."

Bud Anderson, once the pride of Vancouver, was beaten in the 14th round by George Ingle of Seattle at Pendleton Monday night. Anderson's seconds tossed a sponge into the ring in order to save him from further punishment.

Silas Carlie, a son of W. W. Carlie, former Westonian, is here from Everett, Wash., renewing acquaintance with the friends and scenes of his childhood. He expects to remain during harvest as a member of Iley Winn's crew.

Herbert and Fred March, well-known ranchers and stockmen of Basket mountain, accompanied by their sister, Mrs. Shelton, left yesterday in an Overland touring car for San Francisco to attend the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Mrs. B. G. Saling is expected home tomorrow from Portland, where for the past six weeks she has been receiving lessons in voice culture as a member of the class of Mr. Leo Sparks, one of the best known vocal instructors on the coast.

Nearly a cord of wood which he was stacking in a wood house fell and rolled the other day upon W. H. Beathe, but he escaped with a slight scalp wound. It takes more than this to faze a veteran of Gettysburg, Antietam and the Wilderness.

A few days ago Ed. Tucker stood in front of a team of young colts to keep them from running away. Evidently resenting his interference, they knocked him down and ran over him, with the result that he has since been nursing a damaged hand and other injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Howard came up Monday from Portland for a few days' visit with their daughter, Mrs. George L. Horseman, and will go from here to Astoria. Mr. Howard is a retired Morrow county sheep-grower, who is now quite largely interested in Portland real estate.

The following hours have been set for lawn irrigation by the Weston city council: Normal Heights, 6 to 7 p. m.; remainder of the city, 7 to 8 p. m. Irrigation is unlawful at any other hour, and in case this rule is broken the water will be turned off at the mains. R. L. Wilson, superintendent.

The report of the condition of The First National Bank of Athens as published in last week's Press shows that the deposits had reached the unprecedented sum of $420,642.50 at the close of business June 22. Cash and exchange amounted to $224,175.53 and loans and discounts to $196,467.07.

Candy Special for Ten Days Only—50c per pound chocolates at 20c; 50c per lb caramels at 20c; 30c per lb cream candy at 20c; 25c per lb gum drops at 15c; home-made peanut butter at 20c; mixed candy at 20c; real sugar stick at 15c sticks for 5c. Fresh roasted peanuts at 5c per quart. All goods strictly fresh. Weston Bakery.

The funeral of the late William Tompkins was held Monday at the Methodist church in Athens, and was attended by a number of friends from Weston. Mr. Tompkins was a large land-owner and highly respected citizen of the Athens neighborhood. His death, at the age of 83 years, followed a protracted illness from cancer of the liver.

The July meeting of All Saints' Guild was held at the home of Mrs. G. L. Horseman, and was attended by the following guests: Mrs. L. R. Van Winkle, Mrs. M. J. NorDean, Mrs. G. DeGraw. During a social hour at the close of the business session, ice cream and cake were served. The date and place of the next meeting were left open, and will be announced later.

The Leader learns with regret that Weston will be unable to number Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGrew, newly married at Portland, among its future residents. Last week it fell into the same error as one of the Portland dailies in saying that they would reside at Weston—which pretty burg they merely intend to visit before they have completed their honeymoon.

The Liberty Bell will stop at Pendleton from 5:30 p. m. to 5:45 p. m. next Monday, July 15, during its triumphant progress from Philadelphia to the Panama-Pacific exposition. At Walla Walla the same evening it will be an exhibition for two and one-half hours, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, and Governor Leter will speak. The round trip rate by rail from Weston to either city will be one dollar.

The batting averages of the Athens team, champions of the East End league, show that Brooks is the real leader with .40. Tuercik and Karmein are listed above him with .300 each, while Brooks played throughout the season. E. Williams is second with .288. This afternoon at Athens Doc Osburn's prizes will play their first game with Pilot Rock for the Umatilla county championship.

OREGON SOCIAL HYGIENE SOCIETY

Women's and Men's Meetings at Weston Today.

The Oregon Social Hygiene Society is in town today. A committee of prominent local women have visited every home in Weston with an urgent invitation to hear Mr. Snyder at a mass meeting of women this afternoon at 3 p. m. in Weston opera house.

Invitations have also been sent out over the names of a local committee of men to the men folk to attend a conference on social and moral hygiene at 8 p. m. at the same place. At this time Dr. W. D. McNary, superintendent of the Eastern Oregon State Hospital, and Mr. J. E. Snyder, both of Pendleton, assisted by local speakers, are to talk.

Many of our citizens already know the work of this organization. It is a body of serious and earnest business men, professional men, educators, clergymen and others organized in an educational campaign to prevent the further spread of venereal disease, to teach in a clean and decent manner the laws of sex life, and to improve the moral and social conditions of the state's inhabitants, especially its children and young people.

Such men as Dr. Wm. T. Foster, president of Reed college; Dr. Calvin E. White, secretary of the State Board of Health; A. P. Fiesgel, attorney at law; W. F. Woodward of the Clark-Woodward Drug Co.; Adolph Wolfe of Lipman-Wolfe & Co., Portland; Dr. W. J. Kerr, president of O. A. C. Cervalls; Judge Gilbert W. Phelps, Pendleton, are actively interested in conducting its affairs.

The Oregon Social Hygiene Society gained nation-wide prominence in its successful campaign against the old-time "lost manhood" quacks and advertising specialists in supposed sexual ailments of men. The state is practically free of these charlatans today in the Union. Furthermore, Oregon is the only state yet to support this kind of work by legislative appropriation and is setting the pace for the whole country in these important matters.

The society has helped thousands of mothers and fathers in Oregon and other states as well, in the matter of instructing their girls and boys regarding the vital facts of physical development, reproduction and sex life. Its permanent object is to reach the parents and through them their children.

No man or woman can afford to miss hearing Dr. McNary and Mr. Snyder at these meetings in the opera house. They are both men of prominence in the state. It is Weston's opportunity to make the most of its share of the state's appropriation for this work.

The program for the men's conference this evening follows:
8:00 p. m.—"The Extent and Results of Sexual Vice. The Prevalence and General Significance of Venereal Disease and Their Effect Upon the Individual and the Home," W. D. McNary, M. D.
8:50 p. m.—"Causes and Remedies. The Four Sex Lies and Other Causes Remedies," J. E. Snyder, Pendleton, member of Executive Board, Oregon Social Hygiene Society.
9:30 p. m.—"What Can We Do for Weston?" G. R. Robinson.

WESTON MOUNTAIN HOLDS DELIGHTFUL CELEBRATION

A delightful celebration of Independence Day was held last Saturday in the sylvan shades of Bryson's grove in Weston, Oregon. It was a sane Fourth, too, entirely free from turbulence or booze, although the small boy and his firecrackers were to some extent in evidence.

About 500 people were in attendance, many of them from Weston, and the latter ever that a splendid time was provided by the mountain's hospitable people. They had gone to considerable trouble to prepare for the event, and the beautiful grove was gay with flags and bunting. A platform and seats were arranged beneath the trees, and here the exercises were held after the procession had arrived from the school house. Pretty little mountain maidens, clad in white, graced the Liberty car, and the parade was led by a Confederate veteran, W. H. Beathe, bearing the Stars and Stripes. The immortal Declaration of Independence was read by Miss Maggie Dowd, and Rev. N. D. Wood gave an able and thoughtful address in keeping with the day. A song was sung by Miss Joyce Wood, and Zane Lansdale gave two of his characteristic readings. Since of "America" by all present concluded the exercises. C. K. Bryson presided.

A grand picnic dinner was then enjoyed upon improvised tables in the shade of the pines. The mountain hosts saw that all their A towns who had brought no lunch baskets had a chance to eat to repletion. A leader representative was especially fortunate in attracting the kindly eye of W. L. Rayborn, whose better half had provided a truly admirable picnic feast. The scribe did his eager best to empty a big basket of beautiful mountain strawberries which, with rich cream and lovely layer cake, constituted the dessert. With a sigh of regret as well as of satisfaction, he found that his capacity was not quite limitless.

A young fat beef had been barbecued for the event under the expert supervision of Ed. May, and its juicy and tender meat was distributed among the picnickers. Enthusiastic praise was bestowed by all upon this feature of the feast.

A game of ball was played among the hay cocks in Rayborn's field, which a Weston team won from the mountaineers. Races were then run in the grove along an avenue of trees, and a greased pole was duly climbed, amid much merriment. Walter O'Hara did a noble and generous act in transferring the grease from the pole to his garments, after which Ralph Tucker swarmed nimbly to the top and copped the prize.

John English was apparently the presiding genius of the celebration, and he and his faithful co-workers are entitled to and do hereby receive a tribute of praise from the Weston folk who profited by their enterprise.

GRAIN ON THE BEST LANDS ONLY SLIGHTLY DAMAGED

While there has admittedly been some damage to grain in the Weston district, the general prospect for the season in this respect will be nearly normal, both as to yield and quality.

But for the recent untimely hot wave which caught some of the wheat while passing from the milk into the dough, Weston would have had a bumper crop this year. As it stands, the yield will only be reduced five to ten bushels from what it would have been had the weather continued propitious. In the opinion of close observers, this means that Weston will come to bat with its usual good crop.

A party of local citizens accompanied Hyman Cohen, market editor of the Oregon Journal, on a recent trip from Weston through the Lamar gulch district, the Wild Horse district and the Spring Hollow district on the reservation. Mr. Cohen went into numerous fields after samples and found no poor wheat. Much of it looked like 40 bushels per acre or better. To be sure, the drive was taken through the best wheat lands in the county, "where crops never fail." Mr. Cohen expressed his pleasure at seeing such good wheat, having lately made a tour through some of the ham counties, where he estimates that the yield will be reduced about 25 per cent by the drying winds.

Around Weston some fields are "spotted," and will not yield up to their normal production. White spots in the field indicate the places where the damage is greatest, and where the straw is found to be lifeless and the berry shrunken. Such places, however, are the exception rather than the rule, and may not cause as much loss as is at present feared by the farmers. Thick sowing seems to be the rule this year and the heads everywhere seen are quite small, although filled with plump and healthy looking berries.

Reports of damage come from Dry creek and Couse creek ridges and from certain localities on Pine creek. It is also said that some grain in the Couse and Thorn Hollow sections on the reservation will not pay for cutting. From reports received by the East Oregonian that paper estimates that Umatilla county's crop as a whole will be cut down one-third from the prospective yield earlier in the season.

Late sown grain seems to have suffered the most damage, having been caught in a rank condition from the excessive spring moisture. The earlier wheat had gotten past the critical stage and withstood the curing winds to better purpose. The few re-seeded fields throughout the county show the greatest loss.

Franklin county's crop, in eastern Washington, seems to have "beaten out" the streak of bad weather. Snake river exchanges say that threshing is already in progress in some localities. One field is reported to have averaged 27 bushels per acre and another 32 bushels—which is a good showing for Franklin county.
