MEXICAN BANDITS WRECK TRAIN, BURN TRESTLE AND KILL TWO

Brownsville, Tex.—Mexican bandits early Wednesday held up and robbed a St. Louis & San Francisco passenger train, killing two persons and wounding three others, near Olimite, seven miles north of here.

The dead: H. H. Kendall, engineer, United States cavalryman, name unknown.

The injured: Dr. E. S. McCain, Cameron county physician, probably fatally shot. Harry Wallis, seriously wounded in abdomen. Conductor F. E. Morgan, slightly wounded.

Trestle is Burned. A long trestle half a mile south of the wreck was set afire half an hour after the train was held up and almost destroyed.

This hindered the progress of the first detachment of troops which was sent in pursuit so that the bandits had ample time to flee into the brush.

Passengers who reached here on a relief train said that the train was derailed, that Mexicans poured into the coaches shouting "Viva Pisana" and commenced to shoot at the passengers.

Pisana, the man the bandits were cheering, is supposed to be the leader of the so-called "Texas revolution" nurtured under the "plan of San Diego," which last year contemplated the seizure of border states and returning them to Mexican rule.

A negro reached his home four miles from Brownsville and gave the first report of the wreck and killings.

Four companies of United States infantry were rushed to the scene by special trains, followed by two troops of cavalry.

The bandits were passengers and set fire to the train. The Mexicans severed the telephone line between Brownsville and Villa Nueva, five miles from here, which resulted not only in delaying information reaching Brownsville, but also interfered with communication with troop B, of the Thirtieth Cavalry, on duty near the scene of the holdup.

Strange Tragedy Comes to Light

Canyonville, Or.—How an old trapper, with his leg caught in a big bear trap, perished alone and miserably in the forest 17 years ago, was revealed by the finding of a skeleton in a bone held in the rusted trap, on the Fortune Branch Creek, and reported here Wednesday.

The skeleton is believed to be that of a once well-known character named Blyan, who had a cabin at the head of the creek, about a mile from where the skeleton was found. The place is about half way between here and Glendale.

Churchman Bars Hatred

London.—"The wall of a church is not an appropriate place to perpetuate hatred," was the reason given by Sir Philip Wilbraham, chancellor of the diocese of Chester, when refusing to permit a memorial tablet to a victim of the Lusitania in a Holyoke church to bear the inscription, "who was murdered on the Lusitania by the Germans." The chancellor then suggested that the inscription should read, "Who lost his life when the Lusitania was torpedoed by the Germans." This was agreed to.

300 Tins of Opium Seized

Seattle, Wash.—Eight hundred pounds of smoking opium, valued at $75,000, was seized here by customs officers on board the blue funnel liner Calchas. The opium was contained in 900 hermetically sealed tins which were secreted in an airshaft. The Calchas, bound from Vancouver to Seattle, went aground 10 days ago at Point Wilson. After being pulled off, she was towed to Seattle and placed in drydock for extensive repairs.

OREGON STATE NEWS $400,000,000 FOR ARMY AND NAVY

Declares Oregon Loganberries Are the Genuine Logans

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis.—That the famous loganberry juice as produced in Oregon is made from the loganberry and not from the phenomenal berry, is the declaration of Professor C. L. Lewis, chief of the agricultural college department of horticulture. This declaration is substantiated by the men chiefly instrumental in propagating the loganberry and the phenomenal berry in this state.

It has been widely reported that Luther Burbank, the originator of the phenomenal berry, has said that the Oregon berry grown and marketed as the loganberry is not the loganberry at all, but is the phenomenal. He is further reported to have said that the real loganberry is a greatly inferior berry, being small and of little account, and that in some manner the phenomenal became known as the loganberry.

According to Professor Lewis and other authorities the difference between the berries is not very great, but there is enough difference, especially in the vines, to make the two readily distinguishable.

College Bred Beef Cattle Bring Highest Market Prices

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis.—Kansas City market reports mention the unusually fine quality of three carloads of Shorthorn steers, finished for market on the Oregon Agricultural branch station farm at Union, marketed this fall. "The three carloads of steers received in the local markets averaged 197 pounds and sold at a lump rate of $8.50. Considering the length of time they were on the road and the distance traveled they were in remarkably fine condition." Robert Withycombe was in charge of the shipment, which numbered sixty animals.

For 115 days one carload was fed on alfalfa hay straight through, the second carload on alfalfa and five pounds a day to the head of rolled barley, and the third alfalfa the first half of the feeding period and an addition of 10 pounds of rolled barley a day to the head the last half. The second lot showed the best gain in weight, slightly more than two pounds a day, while the others gained just two pounds a day.

Women Raise Cash for Girls' Hall

University of Oregon, Eugene.—A "Progressive dinner" at 50 cents a person, served by student university students to campus folk and townspeople in Eugene, has just netted about $200, which makes about $1,700 that university women have already collected for the memorial building that is to rise at the University of Oregon as soon as $125,000 has been accumulated. "Progressive dinners" are not expected of course, to provide a building fund that would require 500 such affairs netting $200 each. A "progressive dinner" is served in courses, with one course to a house. The dinners start at one table, then journey to a second perhaps a quarter of a mile distant for the salad, then to a third for the entree, and so on down to nuts. Nearly 1000 persons tried the novelty at the university.

State May Aid Road Work

Salem.—That the state highway commission probably will allot $10,000 for repairing the six miles of road between Hillsboro and Forest Grove in Washington county seems probable, following a conference with a delegation from Washington county. It was decided to have Engineer Cantine make an inspection of the road soon. Members of the Washington county court advised the board that if the state would contribute $10,000, the county would make a levy and obtain additional funds for the road. It is estimated that the cost of the improvement will be about $30,000.

The road is considered to be a part of the system of state highways mapped out during ex-Highway Commissioner Bowby administration.

Milk Bulletin is Coming

A bulletin that will show the economic features of milk and milk by-products throughout the world will soon be issued by the state university at Eugene. Comparative costs between Oregon and other great milk producing regions will be shown. The purpose will be to indicate whether an outside market exists that would justify great expansion of the dairy industry in this state.

The bulletin is expected to perform the service for dairymen that last year's bulletin entitled "Markets for potatoes" did for potato growers.

Orchards Traded for Wheat Land

Medford.—Buckeye Orchards, owned by Houston Brothers, which won the Spokane Apple Show in 1911, was traded to C. H. Owen, of Stockton, Cal. for 790 acres of wheat and alfalfa land. Buckeye Orchards consist of 35 acres of pears and apples and 46 acres of dairy land and is one of the best fruit properties in this section of the state. Houston Brothers will raise cattle and hogs on a larger scale than is possible in the Rogue river valley.

Late Election Law Rules

Salem.—Although chapter 225 of the 1915 session laws provides for a voters' list for election boards, Attorney General Brown has held that chapter 209 of the last session laws, which also defines the voters' list, should govern. The opinion was given in response to a request by District Attorney Evans, of Multnomah county. Chapter 225, the attorney general points out, primarily intends to provide for permanent registration of voters.

$400,000,000 FOR ARMY AND NAVY

President to Ask Congress for Immediate Action.

GAIN MUCH TIME IN CONSTRUCTION

Would Increase Army to 120,000—400,000 Reserve and Increased Navy Included in Plans.

Washington, D. C.—Four hundred million dollars for national defense, an increase of approximately $140,000,000 over last year, constitutes the amount which President Wilson and his advisers say should be appropriated by the next congress for the army and navy.

As the time for the completion of annual estimates draws near, the President is giving preliminary consideration to the national defense budget, out of which it is hoped to lay down a stronger naval program than the United States has ever authorized, and similarly a larger provision for the military establishment than has been customary in time of peace.

The president has had before him for several weeks the outlines of a military policy of a continuing character.

FRANK L. POLK

Frank L. Polk, corporation counsel of New York City, has been appointed counselor of the state department. He is a graduate of Yale and of Columbia law school and a veteran of the Spanish-American war.

framed by Secretary Garrison after more than a year's study with officers of the general staff. With it the president is in hearty accord, regarding it as a conservative, well-balanced program.

While the details have not been revealed a substantial increase in the regular army, probably from 80,000 to at least 120,000 men, and the creation of a reserve of perhaps 400,000 men through short-term enlistment service of citizens in military training, are said to be parts of the plan.

Wives for Heroes Sought

London.—The Rev. Ernest Houghton, a Bristol rector, has started an appeal to patriotic women of the nation to give their lives to ameliorate the condition of maimed heroes of the war by marrying them. He has launched a "League for the Marrying of Broken Heroes."

The rector contends that the example of France shows that unions thus arranged promise a greater percentage of happiness than is customary from the methods in England, because they are based on a high degree of unselfishness.

Watch is Bullet Stop

Roseburg, Or.—Jamie W. Pickett, of Glendale, while deer hunting in the forest, was struck over the heart by a bullet, his life being saved by his watch, which was smashed. A hunting license carried in the pocket was torn to shreds. Mr. Pickett had been in the timber only a short time when the incident occurred. He believes he was either mistaken for a deer and fired at, or was struck by a bullet fired from a distance. He saw no one.

Embargo on Powder Enforced

El Paso.—Customs officials refused to permit a shipment of powder to cross the border Thursday. This was the first indication that an embargo on the exportation of arms and ammunition is in effect. It is understood the shipment was stopped by order of General J. J. Pershing, commanding at Fort Bliss, co-operating with the customs authorities.

More British Gold Arrives

Bangor, Me.—Another shipment of British gold from London to New York, by way of Halifax, passed through here in a special armed baggage car attached to a regular train. The value of the shipment was estimated at from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000.

It was lent by Secretary of the Navy Daniels to the American Defense society to be used as an exhibit in the preparedness campaign. The torpedo is 17 feet long and weighs 1,700 pounds. It could sink the largest ship afloat.

FRENCH WOMEN MAKE AMMUNITION

This photograph shows a scene now common in France, where the women have largely taken the place of men in the ammunition factories. They are seen filling shells with shrapnel.

Mackensen No Scot

The idea current in the Scottish press that General von Mackensen is a Highlander gone astray is quite erroneous. One finds on the continent occasional traces of Scottish names slightly transformed to fit their surroundings. They are common enough in Holland, thanks to the famous eighteenth century regiment of the Scots-Dutch, and we have an example in the Norwegian pianist, Grieg, whose ancestors, Gregis of Arbooth, settled in Bergen, in Norway. Von Mackensen is no sort of a Mackenzie. He takes his name from the village of Mackensen, on the Solling, a small agricultural spot in Hanover, not far from the once pleasant town of Hildesheim. Like most families who derive their names from the soil, General von Mackensen comes from a very old family, though its patent of nobility is entirely modern. — Manchester Guardian.

Mineral Waters

According to the annual statement on the production of mineral waters in 1914, now available for distribution by the geological survey, 64,257,486 gallons of mineral water were sold during the year. This quantity came from 829 commercial springs and had a value of $4,592,236.
