How to Be Happy Though Chicagoam

A Chicago couple celebrated their fitty-ninth wedding anniversary some time ago. Believing their long years of wedlock have qualified them as experts on the subject, they have drawn up the following recipe for marital happiness—and the Chicago "Tribune" prints it:

2. Keep silent when she wants to argue. 3. Keep silent when he wants to argue. 4. Use good common sense in times of depression. 5. Don't blame your husband when he's doing his best. 6. Don't scold. 7. Have a few children playing around the

This married couple have lived up to the seventh of their commandments and now that their own youngsters have grown up they have seven grandhave grown up they have seven grand-children and four great-grandchildren. And we notice this detail of the re-cipe: these rules are applied to both parties, not just to one of them. We haven't yet arrived at that stage of civilization wherein we honestly apply the Golden Rule in all life's everyday here has gone on record as being not only opposed to the change of China's form of government from a republic to a monarchy, but determined to fight the proposed charge in the sifairs of the Flowery Kingdom.

A mass meeting to protest against Yuan Shi Kai's decision to accept the crown was called by Tong King Chong, president of the Chinese Republic association and a former member of the Chinese senate. The time for the meeting found the Chinese quarter ablaze, the meeting place througed and hundreds outside chattering excitedly and pressing in a vain effort to enter the overflowing hall.

Olympia, Wash. — The state prison board will hold its special "Christmas meeting" at Walla Walla next week to enable prisoners eligible for parole to obtain releases before the Christmas holidays. Mrs. Linda Burfield Hazzard, fasting practitioner, sentenced to two to 20 years for manulauphter, following conviction for beslaughter, following conviction for be-ing responsible for the death of one of her patients, is the most noted prisoner before the board. Her n sentence expires December 26.

Hamburg — The prize court which has before it the case of the American ship Pass of Balmaha has decided to treat her as "an enemy vessel." It is announced that the evidence has established that the ship was under the British flag until the end of 1914 and was sold to an American company after the outbreak of the war. The Pass of Balmaha was captured while on her way to Archangel, Russia, with a cargo of cotton.

Hog Raiser Raps Prices.

Spokane-Packers in the northwest have virtually cornered the pork market and are holding down prices, with the result that farmers who produce bogs are going to be forced to pass up northwestern markets and sell in the east, according to I. H. Jorgens, president of the Union State bank of Nes Perce, and a hog raiser. Mr. Jorgens says hog raising is becoming an important industry in the Nes Perce

"Our section ships three to five care of hogs every Tuesday from Nez Perce, and they go mostly to Seattle and Spokane," said Mr. Jorgens. "Packers though they had seen many plunge in- now are paying only five cents a to the ditch at right angles to the pound, which we regard as much too low, the present high prices of grain considered. We must have $5.75 to a similar advance in the Puget Sound fully except for occasional interrup-tions and outbursts of laughter from the Socialist, Dr. Liebknecht, who has market. The rise occasioned by the strength and higher price of wheat.

A year ago the patent flour market stood at $6. Influenced by the war flights of the wheat market, flour prices climbed rapidly until February 6, 1915, when they touched $7.20, the record quotation for the Portland market. The extreme price was not held long and the market began to fall steadily until September 21, when it reached $4.80, which price has been maintained up to this time.

The Imperial Chancellor in his first speech, lasting half an hour, explained the military situation on all the front and declared emphatically that Germany could not be starved out. The country had enough food, if properly distributed. Germany's enemies, he said, were suffering more than the Germans, and paying higher prices for food.

The fight in the North Hea began twelve miles away. When the fluecher was struck, she was ten miles from her English enemy. When ven Spee and Craddock fought off Chile, they opened fire at a distance of 12,000 yards; and Craddock had old-fashloned obsolete ships. If old-fashloned obsolete ships open fire at 12,000 yards, what the superdreadnoushis can do, may be guessed. What they can do, experts say frankly, is throw a 2000-pound projectile twenty-five miles with such accurate range finders that the deflection will be only twenty yards for six miles. In fact, the improvement and change in naval equipment has been so swift and revolutionary that the life of a battleship has been rated first rank for only five years. In speed, in size, in armor proof, and big gun fire, the changes have come so fast since 1965 that the nations had either to fight it out or cripple themselves financially building bigger and bigger monsters of the sea; and oddly enough, the changes all date from a little "cheese box on a floating saucepan," the Monitor of Civil Warfame. From the time the Monitor and the Merrimac spat out their fire-cracker shots at each other, it has been a race among the natious for speed, armor proof, big guns, and long range. Those best informed declare that the big gun and speed have rendered secondary both armor proof and submarine; but these are disputes that will be finally settled in the present war. Neither side has had any monopoly of courage. The courage of both sides has been magnificent,—almost terrible, but speed and the big gun have won.—From "What Sea Power Means to England," by A. C.
