

The Dinnerware Store

Always remember the Dinnerware Store, whether you need a fine table service or just a few dishes for the cook house or the camp—hotel dishes, too. In the ordinary wares we aim to keep a good assortment and at bottom prices, but it is in the medium and better grade that the dinnerware store stands out like a beacon light. Here you will find six patterns in white, six in white and gold treatment and six on other decorations.

You will find four patterns in Haviland & Co., China, three in Bavarian, four in the celebrated made-in-America, Pope-Gosser china and seven in various other makes, all in open stock, to be had in single pieces or full sets, as wanted. Just now, too, we show two styles in 42-piece sets only, made of a good grade of Domestic Semi-porcelain at $5.00 and $5.50 the set. One of these is in white with gold lines, the other has an added floral spray, both being in a tasteful, plain shape, splendidly glazed and guaranteed not to craze.

Lovers of nice dishes should see these lines—we're always glad to show them. If unable to come, write for sample and prices, stating about style and price you are interested in.

BREVITIES

Miss Alice Barnes of Weston has been elected to a position in the Blufffield schools.

Mrs. Ellen Fisher of Harland, Missouri, arrived last Saturday for an extended visit with her sister, Mrs. E. C. Price.

Mrs. C. H. Walker and daughters of Republic, Wash., are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Davis, at the Culley ranch.

If you haven't had time heretofore to settle your account with me, I would be pleased to receive you now. L. I. O'Hara.

Mrs. Vern Bell visited Walla Walla last week to take part in the public recital given at the Whitman Conservatory of Music.

Pendleton has elected a woman, Mrs. Stephen A. Lowell, as a member of its school board. She received 161 votes to 144 for Dr. I. U. Temple.

Mrs. Emma Ailyn of Iona, Oregon, after visiting for a week with the George Carmichaels in Walla Walla, is spending a few days with friends here.

Pete McPadden left Wednesday for Clackamas to join the Oregon national guardsmen, having enlisted while a student of the Oregon Agricultural College.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. R. Hanna and son and Mrs. P. M. Edwards were in Weston Sunday to attend the funeral of their grandmother, the late Mrs. Elizabeth Hall.

The Weekly Bulldogger quite weakly remarks that its idea of fitness is "Walter Rose singing at a floral show." By any other name, however, Walter could still sing as sweetly as a martingale.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Porter went to Walla Walla Sunday to say good-bye to their boy, who was summoned to the colors as a member of the National Guard of Washington for service on the Mexican border.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Funk and little daughter of Walla Walla were guests Sunday at the C. F. Duffin residence. They were accompanied to Weston by Olney Funk, who motored on to Bingham Springs.

Master Melvin Moore came up from Portland Monday evening to join his mother, Mrs. Charles Moore, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beamer, and other relatives in the Weston neighborhood.

The esteemed Athena Press promulgates the following bit of baseball wisdom: "The proper place for the Blue Mountain league, and where it belongs, is within the shadow of the mountains that give the name."

At the annual school meeting Monday Geo. W. Stagg was elected school director to succeed William MacKenzie, who retires after eight years of service. Frank Price was re-elected clerk. The clerk's annual report was read and accepted.

Favorable reports are received from Chicago as to the condition of Miss Thelma Anderson, who submitted to a recent operation there for the relief of her crippled ankle. The plaster cast has been removed from her ankle, and good results are indicated.

The Husky Hen Club consisting of Hope Henke and her seven music pupils—Emma Thorny, Genevieve Rogers, Mary Proudie, Lois Maling, Dick DeHorne, Raymond Vanister and Juanita King—entertained a large number of their friends at the Henke residence Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Flora McConaughy of the Fischer School of Music. The rooms were prettily decorated in the club colors, pink and green, and with masses of flowers and vines. The afternoon was spent in playing games and the delightful surprise intended for Miss McConaughy, who arrived on the afternoon train, was complete when the little music class gave their recital for her. A delicious luncheon ended the afternoon for the little people.

Eureka Assembly No. 24, United Artisans, held a very pleasant family evening in Society hall last Monday evening. The game of "progressive rummy" was played, in which the royal prize was won by Claud Price and the consolation prize by Frank Lavender. A pleasing program was rendered, and included a piano duet by Clara and Ruby Price, a reading by Marjorie Guilfinch, a piano solo by Genevieve Rogers and a vocal solo by Claud Price. An elaborate luncheon was served in the dining hall, and as an evidence of the culinary art of the caterers left nothing to be desired. The salads were especially delicious. The younger guests ended the evening with popular athletic games.

Charles Sams, a former resident of Dry creek near Weston, was murdered in his bed Wednesday night at his home at Valley Chapel, Wash., seven miles north of Milton. At about 11 o'clock two shots were fired into Sams' head by an unknown intruder, and he died three hours later. His wife was sleeping by his side and was awakened by the sound of the firing, but the murderer made his escape before she could see him. He left opened doors behind him. Walla Walla authorities have as yet found no clue, although the neighborhood is said to have its suspicions. Sams is known to have long feared a violent death.

Adams and Athena hooked up Sunday in one of the fastest ball games for seven innings ever seen in the business. In that many innings neither side scored a hit nor a run, with McGarrigle and Peterson working for Adams and Shick and King for Athena. Both sides then loosened up, and Adams took the long end of the scoring by six to four. Blomgren, Barnes and Kirkpatrick went to Adams from Weston for the occasion and played with Athena, Blomgren taking his old-time position at short. The other two local ball tossers cavorted in the outfield.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Smith arrived home Saturday from their vacation trip to Portland, Albany and Madras. Mr. Smith attended the bankers' convention at Portland and the Masonic grand lodge at Albany, and returned by way of central Oregon to look after his ranch interests. While wishing to reflect in no way upon the excellent character and sound judgment of Mr. Smith, we nevertheless feel it our duty to point out that he must have been neglectful of really important matters, as he took time while in Portland to attend only one ball game.

J. B. Hart and family motored into town last week from their farm near Walla Walla on a holiday excursion across the Blue mountains. They will visit the Fred Gerberdings at Halfway, Oregon, and a niece, Mrs. Wilbur Getting, at Elgin. They also expect to camp out on the shores of Wallowa lake. Mr. Hart invited ye editor to accompany them in promoting all kinds of fun, but Bill Powers promptly balked at the job of running the Weston Leader.

On the Weston uplands Sunday the little daughter of Joe Cannon fell from a hack, which passed over her body. She was taken home and a physician was at once summoned by her distressed parents, but much to everyone's relief, it was later found that her injuries would not prove to be of a serious nature. Her escape from death is considered remarkable, one wheel having struck her at the waist.

Miss Kathleen Tucker and Mr. James Orlando Wood were united in marriage Tuesday evening, June 20, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Susan Tucker. The ceremony was performed by Elder J. B. Bond. Both bride and groom are well known and popular young people of Weston, which will continue to be their home. The bridegroom is a son of Rev. and Mrs. N. D. Wood.

The government telephone line into Weston has now been completed, and is said to be about twenty miles in length. Three ranger stations on the Wapinitia reserve are thus given high line connection here, as is also Bingham Springs, Toll Gate and what is known as the mountain "settlers' line." Quite a few phones will thereby be added to the Weston exchange, which is constantly growing.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thompson and son Dewey, accompanied by Mrs. Thompson's aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Henkle, were over night guests Saturday at the J. B. Bond home. Mr. and Mrs. Henkle are the great uncle and aunt of Mrs. Beeler and in spite of their advanced age are on an auto trip from the Henkle home at Priest River, Idaho, to the Thompson farm at Monkland, Oregon.

W. E. Brock, president of the Pendleton Commercial association; E. B. Aldrich, editor of the East Oregonian; C. H. Marsh, county judge, and G. A. Hartman, cashier of the First National Bank, motored up from Pendleton Wednesday. Their mission had to do with explaining Pendleton's attitude with respect to its normal school proposition.

If you need a harvester. For particulars see or address me at Golden Rule Hotel, Pendleton, J. Arthur Hanford.

According to the Athena Press, two deer walked within a short distance of Fay Le Grow near Bingham Springs and casually surveyed him while he was fishing in the Umatilla river. It adds that "Mr. Le Grow lost a fine picture by not having his kodak with him."

A. P. (Bill) Woodard, an old pioneer, scout and Indian fighter and for many years a resident of the reserve, died recently at the residence of the soldiers' home at Roseburg. The remains were taken to Walla Walla for burial.

Superintendent Wilson was engaged this week in flushing the city reservoirs, which are now in tip-top shape.

The ladies of the Eastern Star announced a cooked food sale for tomorrow afternoon at the store of the Western Mercantile Co.

Mrs. Martha T. Morgan, widow of the late Ben Morgan and daughter of the late J. B. Keene, a Weston stage man in early years, died Sunday in Portland.

At Freewater on Cherry Day Master Gail Williams, one of Weston's recent acquisitions, made his first appearance before a Umatilla county audience. He pleased the crowd with two clever readings.

E. E. Zehn, without the aid of a pair of scales, is pretty well able to calculate the weight of a full keg of temperance lager. One fell yesterday on his right foot, putting it out of commission.

Mrs. Bob Fitzsimmons, formerly the Countess Temo Zellen, will tell the remarkable story of her life and conversion at the United Brethren church next Wednesday evening, June 28. The wife of the world's champion pugilist was at one time a celebrated prima donna, but has now renounced the stage for the pulpit.

FOURTH OF JULY ON THE WESTON UPLANDS

Clarence W. Avery has accepted an invitation to deliver the principal address at the Fourth of July celebration at Bryson's grove in the Weston uplands. While Mr. Avery is a bit out of practice as an orator, those who know his capabilities in that direction are confident that the American eagle and Old Glory will find in him a competent and eloquent exponent. There will be a grand parade to the grove, headed by the Liberty Car driven by Uncle Sam, and an appropriate program of music and exercises has been arranged. One of the notable numbers will be a burlesque in pantomime of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," which stirring poem will be recited by Zane Lansdale. A bountiful dinner will then be served in the shade of the pines, and those who know the hospitality of the upland people are well aware that the gastronomic wants of all who come will be satisfied—whether they bring baskets or not. Dinner will be followed by a program of novel and amusing sports, to close with a ball game between the Brush Monkeys and the Dry Creekers. Weston people are especially invited to go to the uplands on Tuesday, July 4, and give vent to their patriotism.

A PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN.

There is in Washington a studious, middle-aged gentleman whose doings since the fourth day of March, 1913, have affected the people of the United States in a very special fashion, says the Saturday Evening Post. With a more or less obedient congress, he has bound them in many ways that touch their relations to one another, and their relations, as a whole, to other great aggregations of people. It would be interesting, and perhaps rather important, to sit down now and study the influence of these doings in order to determine, if possible, which of them were good and which bad, and in what degree. Years hence some other studious gentleman, in his own particular line of trade, will do this. But between now and next November you cannot reasonably expect to hear much truth on the subject. The gentleman's partisans will allege that he banished industrial depression and evoked abounding prosperity; made greed in business essentially harmless and waffled back the advancing specter of war—thus excelling Luther by vanquishing three devils with the same ink bottle. Opposing partisans will declare that, but for a providential accident—presumably regretted by him—he would have utterly ruined the country materially, while, in spite of accident, he accomplished a diabolical purpose to thrust it into the lowest possible state of spiritual degradation. From now to November you will get the gentleman hily white or jet black. Some years after you have cast your vote you may make out his true color—only you will not be interested in it then. As a contrivance for distortion a presidential campaign exceeds even a lawsuit.
