George Walden came down Saturday from the Snake River branch of the O.W. R. & N. for a few days' visit with his father and friends. He is serving with a bridge crew.

The Athena Press reports that twin fawns born several days ago at the Pambrun deer park south of Athens increase Mr. Pambrun's herd of deer to seven. Five are mule deer and two belong to the smaller blacktail family.

With the true cowboy's idea of embellishment, Jim Lieuallen has garnished his saddle with the hide of a rattlesnake four feet in length. He killed the snake not long ago while riding on the Buck creek range with Ralph Tucker.

Mr. J. S. Lieuallen continues to improve since the operation which she sustained at Pendleton, and will be able to return before long to her home in Weston. She was able to leave the hospital, and is now at the home of her brother in Pendleton, F. E. King.

According to the Pendleton Bulldogger, "Clark Nelson and Bill Wyck have provisioned a mountain cave with enough supplies to last them three years and at the first indication that their country will resort to conscription to secure war recruits they will take up their abode there."

F. J. Beale, formerly a well-known rancher and stockman of this county, lately shipped two cars of registered Shorthorn cattle from Walla Walla to his extensive new holdings near Hartland, Alberta, Alta. Beale has 890 acres in wheat, and reports a very promising crop outlook in his neighborhood.

The McCormick combined harvester exhibited here by Watts & Rogers has been bought by Fred McCreary. This machine is made by the International Harvester people, and for several years has been used in South America and Australia. Last year it was sold in this country and was used in certain Montana and Idaho counties, where it was found to be satisfactory. It is designed for small farms, and drawn by from eight to twelve horses will cut and thresh about 18 acres daily. Watts & Rogers also sold this week a New Racine Junior threshing outfit to A. W. Rogers and Albert O'Hara.

E. E. Zehm of this city was for three years a soldier in the regular army, and afterward enlisted in the Washington National Guard, in which he held a commission as second lieutenant. He received orders Monday to report at American Lake, but sent proof showing that he was unable to do so because of a crippled foot. Able to show that his wife and three small children are dependent upon him as their means of livelihood, Mr. Zehm thinks that he will later be released from service. He does not wish to leave his family.

V. E. Smith, Helix baseball magnate, and Mr. Griswold and Mr. Smith, leading business men of that prosperous and growing burg, were callers at The Leader office Tuesday. Helix loves sport, and they were out boasting for a ten-round boxing exhibition in that little city tomorrow evening between Jack Root of Pilot Rock and Pete Jose of Pendleton—both of whom are heavyweight performers of recognized ability. The proceeds will apply on the cost of the new public natatorium at Helix.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Turner, former residents of Weston, have written to relatives here that their son Charles has left for the front with a Grangeville, Idaho, company of the National Guard. He is quartermaster sergeant of the company. Weston people who remember Charles as a small boy will find it difficult to realize that he has grown into a stalwart young soldier, and although only 18 years old is six feet two in height.

The first message from Bingham Springs was received Wednesday morning at Weston over the newly-constructed government telephone line connecting the Wenaha ranger stations with the "high line" here. The wire was afterward kept quite hot, as people from all over the country are now seeking accommodations at the Bingham Springs resort and every conversation must be handled through the Weston office.

Cot. F. G. Lucas, local realty operator, is back from another business trip into Montana. It is supposed that "Luke" turned one of his usual deals while absent, but so if it is too modest to tell about it. He contents himself with saying that Montana is a wonderfully lively and thriving commonwealth, and that Butte's payroll from the mining industry is no less than two and one-half millions per month.

The last will and testament of David N. Van Shiver was admitted Saturday to probate. He bequeathed all of his property to his widow, Amy A. Van Shiver, who is named as executrix. The estate consists of 120 acres of land valued approximately at $16,000 and about $500 worth of personal property. Sam Barnes, George Staggs and Joe Blomgren are named as appraisers.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Saling motored Sunday to Pendleton, where Mrs. Saling sang a sacred solo, "Beyond the Dawn," during the morning service at the Presbyterian church. She received not a few warm compliments upon the power and beauty of her offering. The R. G. Salinga were accompanied on the trip by Mrs. I. E. Saling and Miss Marjorie Bufflinch.

The cyclone descended upon Weston Monday afternoon, and bore all the earmarks of its bigger brothers in the Middle West. Lowering, funnel-shaped clouds rushed upon the town, but did far less damage than threatened by their angry appearance.

Singularly enough, while a fierce wind raged and frolicked in the upper part of town, the lower part was entirely calm, having escaped the baby cyclone's notice. Another curious feature is that while large branches were torn from the trees and one tree was uprooted, no houses or barns were blown down.

The cyclone was followed by an electric storm and a pouring rain.

Coming upon the heels of a preceding rain which fell in this section last Friday, abundant moisture is assured to mature and fill Weston crops.

From the foothills and the lowlands come reports to the effect that the rains were of great benefit, and have changed a doubtful prospect into a very positive promise of good crops. Some little damage was done, but the good far outweighed it.

Monday's storm was quite general throughout the Inland Empire. Great damage from floods is reported around Heppner. Helix had a genuine cloudburst, which flooded its streets and filled its cellars. A boy named Dick Reser was drowned by a cloudburst near Prescott, Wash., and the house and all farm improvements of his uncle, Dick Utter, were swept away. Ravines were filled with muddy torrents in the Pilot Rock, Echo and Hermiston neighborhoods. One man's automobile was washed down Stage gulch and ruined. Pendleton was only lightly touched by the storm.

More rain and in great amplitude fell here Wednesday afternoon and night and past of Thursday. Wednesday at 6 p. m. muddy water was running in the streets but did no particular damage. Everyone is thinking that Old Jup is now entitled to lay off a spell.

Mike Ryan, well known throughout the East End, has been hurt again, and is now in a Milton hospital.

He drove off a bridge below Freewater and was thrown from his wagon and seriously injured. Dr. C. W. Thomas took five stitches in Mike's left eye, two more just above, and one in the forehead.

Mayor and Mrs. J. M. Banister went to Spokane Saturday for a stay of several days. Mr. Banister's principal mission was the inspection of a new-fangled combined harvester which contains its own motive power, thus dispensing with horses or tractor.

Robert D. Compton of Milton was operated upon in Portland Monday for the removal of a supposed cancer, only to find that he was suffering from appendicitis. The surgeons excised the diseased appendix, and told the patient he would recover.

Having been granted his annual furlough of 15 days by Uncle Sam, Clay Smith was relieved as mail carrier this week by Selmer Thompson, and left for a visit with his family on their homestead in southern Idaho.

"Twenty-five Years Ago" in Wednesday's Oregonian: Mrs. Abigail Scott Dunivin of this city has accepted an invitation from the citizens of Athens to deliver the Fourth of July oration at that place this year.

A large machine shed has just been completed for housing the implements used on the DeGraw farm south of town. It is 22x80 feet in size, and "Dad" DeGraw himself was superintendant of construction.

Rev. Dr. George B. Van Waters of Portland will hold services at the Episcopal church next Sunday morning and evening, July 2. All are invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Rose Rowell and son Bonnie Blair of Gardena, Wash., visited Wednesday with the D. H. Willeyes while on their way to Sheridan, Oregon.

Miss Gladys Banister returned Tuesday from Portland, where she attended the wedding of her cousin, Miss Minnie Gross, and Mr. John Johnson.

Rev. W. S. Payne responded to a call from Walla Walla Monday to conduct the funeral services of the late Charles Sams.

After a night of agony Mat Riley, 25 years old, died at Umatilla Wednesday morning from an accidental dose of strychnine.

Superintendent Robinson of the Weston schools is attending the University of Oregon summer school at Eugene.

We have on exhibition the McCormick Combine for small or big farming. Watts & Rogers.
