BREVITIES

My paints are going fast, and I've ordered more. A Phillips.

Fred Phillips is here from Washtucna, visiting at the old family homestead on Dry creek.

Roy Tompkins has improved his Dry creek farm with a new barn, and has also constructed a garage for his Apperson "Jackrabbit."

R. L. Reynaud has partitioned off a cleaning room in the rear of the Weston Baths and Tailor Shop, in order to facilitate his work.

G. W. Johnson was here Wednesday getting his stock out of the mountains. Mr. Johnson is now farming in the neighborhood of Holdman.

William MacKenzie left Wednesday on a trip of country-seeing in Montana and expects to go over a good share of the state. He will also visit his son, Kenneth, who is located at Lewistown.

The jury in the case of Frank Rogers vs. J. W. Maloney, resulting from a dispute over reservation land, took only 15 minutes Monday to arrive at their verdict. It was in favor of Maloney.

The Athena Press reports that Byron Hawks has been critically ill for some time at his home in Astoria as the result of blood poisoning contracted from an ulcerated tooth, but is now gradually improving.

Mrs. Myrtle Read is quite ill with appendicitis at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hodgson. It is thought, however, that she will recover from the attack without submitting to an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Knudson and little son, of Washtucna, Wash., were guests during the first of the week of Mrs. D. N. Van Skiver. They left Wednesday for Athens, to visit Mrs. Knudson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hargett.

The residence of Mrs. D. N. Van Skiver is glowing in a new coat of white paint, with trimmings of black, lately applied by W. S. Payne. In making this improvement, Mrs. Van Skiver carried out the wishes of her late husband.

The November meeting of the Ladies' Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Marvin Price. A large number of members and the following guests were present: Mrs. D. F. Lavender, Mrs. R. Morrison, Mrs. J. H. Price and Miss Edna Banister. Miss Banister became a member of the guild. The hostess was assisted in serving an appetizing collation by Mrs. D. F. Lavender and Mrs. R. G. Saling. The ladies were busily employed during the meeting in working for a righteous cause. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. H. Smith, the first Thursday afternoon in November.

Next Sunday at 2 p. m., Robert Reynolds will have to roll a peanut across the Main street bridge with the end of his nose, and the exhibition promises to attract a large and enthusiastic audience. Robert guessed wrong in an election bet with Marvin Adkins—whose nose, we will make so bold as to remark, would have been better suited for the performance than Robert's.

The date of the next W. C. T. U. meeting has been changed to Tuesday, November 21, when the local union will hold a Thanksgiving celebration at the home of Mrs. S. L. Kennard. Quite an elaborate affair is planned and the public is invited to attend. The program of exercises will begin at four o'clock, and refreshments will be served later.

Mrs. Margaret Rabb has accepted a position in the dry goods department of the Weston Mercantile Company and will remain with the company until the first of the year. Next spring Mrs. Rabb will resume her former work as the representative of Miss Moore, the Walla Walla milliner.

The 60th birthday anniversary of George L. Horsman was pleasantly celebrated with a birthday dinner Monday at his home on south Water street. Aside from Mr. and Mrs. Horsman, those present were W. F. McKinney and Miss Lillian McKinney, of Oakland, Calif., and Dr. A. F. Sempert.

Bud Read, former Westonite, writes to a local friend that he is just starting from Lewiston, Idaho, on a hunting trip up the north fork of the Clearwater river. He expects to spend the Christmas holidays in Weston.

Jack Calder, the Weston plumber, has been busy of late at Athens, where he has several good contracts.

Grady Herndon has followed the example of a number of his upland neighbors by buying a Ford car. The sale was made by H. L. Hedrick, of the Weston garage.

Donning mackinaws and chaperojos, Weston cattlemen rode into the mountains this week to get their stock out of the snow. The cattle will be wintered in lowland stubblefields.

Born—Tuesday morning, November 7, to Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Rogers, at their home in Weston, a son. We understand that the proud father has changed his mind about naming the youngster for the successful presidential candidate.

Miss Hazel Dowd returned Wednesday morning to her home near Washtucna, Wash., after a pleasant visit with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Richal. During her stay she had some dental work done at the office of Dr. Sempert.

They Found the Car

A few nights ago a theater party consisting of Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Smith, Mrs. Sim J. Culley, Miss Edna Banister and Miss Gladys Banister, motored from Weston to Walla Walla. Leaving their car on a side street and their wraps in the car, they attended the theater and afterward walked to the business district for lunch. Walking back to where the car ought to be, a considerable distance from Main street, they were sadly surprised to find it missing. One of them suggested that they report to the police, and forthwith they walked to Main street again and told their troubles. They found their car, all right, and also that they had violated only four of Walla Walla regulations. They had left it too far from the curb, too close to a water hydrant, the lights were undimmed and they had but one license tag when two were needed. Trembling in fear and despair, and expecting to be shot on the spot, they were overjoyed to be released with a reprimand and to have their car restored to them. The station officer explained that as Dr. Smith had contributed a fine not long before for a similar lapse, he would not mule him again but would wait for the third offense. It is a safe bet, however, that it is "never again" with Weston's popular physician. When he goes to Walla Walla he will be more familiar with its motor car ordinance than with the constitution of the United States.
