

Another Carload of Those Fine American Beds and Springs

AMERICAN BEDS are made of smooth, light steel tubes—dent-proof, strong and yet light to handle. From the cheapest at $3.50 to the best at $52.50 they all have the celebrated American malleable legs, guaranteed for 25 years. The rails are reversible and interchangeable, yet fit so perfectly that they always stand straight and rigid. Any style of springs may be used with them.

American beds have an unusually smooth, hard finish—handsomer, more easily cared for and more durable than ordinary beds. A big assortment of styles is here in all the popular finishes—Mahogany, Circassian Walnut, Old Ivory, Two-Tone, Oxidized, Brass Bronze, Venetian Marble and White Enamel.

One of the most popular beds in this line is our No. 851 in Brass Bronze finish at $14.50.

Also see our No. 915 American Twin Beds in White and Venetian Marble at each $8.50.

These have 1 1/4 inch posts and 1 inch filler tubes with smooth joints.

Here is also a good line of the popular Parlor or Book House Beds, complete with spring at $8.75 for 3-4 and $9.50 for full size.

American All-Steel Springs, 3-4 and full size at $4.25 and $4.50.

No. 5 American Coil Springs, 96 extra quality, large, single cone coils, with interlocking top, mounted on strong steel flat base and with braced ends—the best coil spring of this type we know of, a lifetime spring. Price: 3-4 size, $7.50; full size, $8.50.

The Wonder Spring, a suspended coil spring on a tubular frame with 4-inch elevation and wide band edge. Has 24 helical spring supports at each end. Price $8.00.

HEATERS and RANGES

WATTS & ROGERS

A few days ago Frank Price, manager of the Weston Warehouse company, paid $1.50 per bushel for 10,350 bushels of wheat—which transaction practically cleaned up the crop of the Weston district. The sellers are said to have been G. W. Staggs and J. C. Turner, who thus achieved the distinction of getting the top price paid for wheat in the local market. In Portland Tuesday December bluestem to the amount of 10,000 bushels was sold to millers at $1.09 a bushel—a price which the Journal declares to have broken all previous records for all time.

Harve Driskell, of Covello, Wash., accompanied by Mrs. Driskell, is visiting relatives and friends at Weston. Harve lately returned from the harvest fields of Conrad, Montana, where he had been tending separator. Thrashing is not yet finished there, but the snows were driven out by a temperature of 28 degrees below zero. Crops of wheat and flax in that section are good, he says. He helped to thresh a 60-acre field which averaged 38 bushels to the acre of flax, worth $2.50 per bushel. This, however, was an exceptional yield.

Since last week the following good friends have, by kindly renewing their subscriptions, helped the Leader man to meet the exactions of the paper trust: E. J. Saling, Joe Hodgson, B. F. Winn, Mrs. D. N. Van Skiver, Emory Staggs, Messrs. Wyatt and Drew, Joe Luedden, R. H. King, J. W. Porter, R. Prouditt, T. A. Luedden, C. F. Bullfinch, Will Burkhardt, Dr. Elmer Hill.

J. T. Baker, a brother of Mrs. Z. C. Price, died Monday at Pasco, Wash., at the age of 51 years. Mr. Baker formerly resided at Dayton, but in recent years had been engaged in farming in Franklin county. The funeral services were held Wednesday at Dayton. Relatives present from Weston were Mrs. Ella Lavender, James, Marvin and Claud Price.

Robert Prouditt has produced some excellent enlarged photographs of the Weston Normal school's principal building. They are about 9x14 inches in size and very suitable for framing. The pictures may be had of Mr. Prouditt at a nominal figure. He furnished the views for Weston's campaign against the Pendleton bill, donating his work.

Arrested in Portland, Charles Cross, an 18-year-old incorrigible from Pendleton, confessed to five hold-ups in ten days. He also robbed a branch post-office, taking some stamps, and the government will prosecute him. Cross had been an inmate of the reform school, having been sent from Pendleton 15 months ago for robbing box cars.

Extreme cold has put a stop to the government survey which J. R. English has been conducting in Montana, and it will be resumed in the spring. Jimmie Kirkpatrick has returned, and will assist his sister during the winter at the O. K. candy shop. Mr. English will remain in Helena until the first of the year, making out his field notes.

Just to make sure that their subscriptions might not expire at a leaner time, Emory Staggs and Messrs. Wyatt & Drew paid two years' subscriptions to the Leader man this week, instead of one. Not a bad idea—not at all—now that we have some new equipment to pay for.
