100 CARS OF WHEAT TO GO EAST DAILY

Portland, Ore.—For a time about 100 carloads of wheat will leave the northwest each day for the Atlantic seaboard, destined for the allies in Europe, the initial railroad lines having agreed to give foodstuffs right of way and the quickest possible dispatch.

It is said the unprecedented action on the part of the railroads was brought about by influence of the British and American governments, the former having demonstrated to authorities at Washington the imperative need of hurrying wheat supplies without delay.

It is estimated that fully 15,000,000 bushels of wheat remain in the northwest, distributed among the several roads as follows: O. W. R. & N. system, 9,000,000; Northern Pacific, 4,000,000; Great Northern, 1,500,000; North Bank, 500,000; Milwaukee, 500,000. As to the price of northwest wheat, it is said the value delivered on the Atlantic seaboard, is $2.50 a bushel.
