BREVITIES

J. A. King and family are among the Weston campers at Bingham.

Miss Virginia Funk of Walla Walla is the guest of Miss Marjorie Bullfinch.

Lost—In town, a pair of bi-focal glasses, gold-mounted. Reward, Dr. Kennard.

Mrs. N. R. McVay of Goldendale, Wash., arrived Tuesday for a visit with her sister, Mrs. A. W. Lundell.

Mrs. Sarah McDougal left Saturday for her camp in the mountains. She was accompanied by Mrs. Rebecca Culley of Walla Walla and Mrs. L. C. Harder of Dry creek.

Owing to unfavorable weather conditions the strawberry crop in the upland regions near Weston is much below the average. A few berries are coming to market and are snapped up at $2.50 to $3.00 per crate. Lew Van Winkle, who raises berries on Pine creek above Weston, finds that his crop this year is only about a third of what he usually grows.

The family of J. E. Jones in the Weston uplands are dining on veal. They were going to Bingham Springs the other day, when Ray Jones, a boy of sixteen, tried to drive the calf into the corral. Ray was in a hurry to join his folks for the trip, but the calf was in no hurry to enter the corral, and frisked around as calves will. Ray picked up a small stick and struck the animal a light blow behind the ear. Much to everyone's astonishment, it fell over dead.

James R. Brown died yesterday at Pendleton, following the amputation of a leg which was seized and crushed by a vicious jack while Mr. Brown was visiting relatives at Lexington two weeks ago. Mr. Brown was a member of a pioneer Weston family, his parents having located on Pine creek below town in early years. He was a retired farmer, and lived in Pendleton. He was a brother of William Brown and Mrs. Williams of Weston and the remains were brought here today for interment. Funeral services will be conducted at the United Brethren church at one o'clock this afternoon by Rev. W. S. Payne.

As in other sections of the Inland Empire the wheat outlook around Weston is not now especially promising, according to the reports of different observers. While fall grain will come through and make a crop in any event, the yield will be cut by the protracted hot weather. What will become of the spring grain, however, in the event that there is no rainfall soon, is problematical. Especially on the uplands is rain needed. While there is moisture underneath, the soil crust is baked and hard. One upland farmer reports that his barley is heading out, although scarcely six inches high.

In accordance with an order issued Tuesday from the county court, Osa Leo Coverdale, a little boy about three years old, was seized upon for delivery to the court by Mrs. Olive Nevin. The youngster's parents are separated, and he has been cared for by his aunt, Mrs. Mary Bradfield, upon whom the papers in the case were caused to be served by Mrs. Nevin. It is said that custody of the boy is desired by his father.

The proposed change in the Pine creek road above Weston is reported to be nearing realization. Of the $1000 required to be raised by Weston and the upland farmers to be served by the road, it is said that $800 is subscribed or in sight and the balance will be forthcoming. Among the larger town subscriptions secured by J. P. Lieualten were $50 from Watts & Rogers and $50 from the Weston Mercantile Co.

East Oregonian: Alleging cruel and inhuman treatment, Hulda M. Allyn has filed suit for divorce against Thomas Albert Allyn, a Weston mountain farmer. She asks the privilege of visiting their 13 year old son and having him visit her. They were married in 1903, and she alleges her husband's conduct became such that she left him last August. W. M. Peterson is her attorney.

OLD CLOTH IS WANTED BY THE WESTON W. C. T. U.

The W. C. T. U. met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Rauson Ljeualten. The program was dispensed with and a general discussion of the patriotic department of union work took up all the time of the meeting.

A basket will be placed in the Weston Mercantile Company store to collect the material, and every lady of the neighborhood is appealed to for this needy department.

Says a W. C. T. U. leader: "Any worn out table cloth or sheet or white muslin garment of any kind will be acceptable. Material of this sort is badly needed for the wounded soldiers and cannot be bought at the stores. Our housewives can help in this good work in a way not possible for anyone else, by sending these goods to fill this basket many times. A committee will tear the material according to the directions given out by the Red Cross and after hemming and making it will be sent to our local Red Cross for distribution.

"Some of our young ladies have already made 'housewives' and sent them to the soldier boys and we hope that many others will do so. We ask that the report of the number sent be given to our president.

"Our next meeting will be held at the United Brethren parsonage July 31. It is missionary day and a special program will be given. Come one and all to these good meetings."

John Adams Was a Poor Loser.

John Adams, second president of the United States, was not a good loser. He wanted another term and worked hard for it. None of the candidates received a majority of the electoral votes, and the election was thrown into the house of representatives. But Adams had no chance there, for he was not in the race, and only the two having the highest number of electoral votes could be voted for. Thus the choice lay between Jefferson and Burr, and Jefferson won. Adams was very much disgruntled and did everything in his power to make things unpleasant for his successor. He filled every vacant office he could lay his hands on, so as to leave as little patronage as possible for Jefferson. Not only so, but in the closing hours of his administration he and his party associates created twenty-three new judgeships, for which there was no necessity, and worked till the stroke of midnight on March 3 filling out and signing commissions for these "midnight judges," as they were called.—Argonaut.
