WARE THE PROMOTER

The amount invested in worthless securities by the American public since the United States entered the war is variously estimated at from one-quarter to one-half billion dollars.

This is a serious matter at a time when patriotism as well as prudence dictates that every surplus dollar not needed in industries essential to successful prosecution of the war, be invested in war bonds or war stamps.

Never was the siren song of the promoter heard so insidiously. Never has it been so dangerous alike to the investor and the government—since in these times money is plentiful, and much of it has been rather easily earned.

It is a favorite practice of the promoters to offer to exchange their gold and green certificates for Liberty Bonds. Millions of dollars worth of bonds have been wheeled away from the holders in this manner.

In a modest yet more or less expensive familiarity with the stock market covering a period of more than twenty years, the present writer has never known of a single instance wherein an issue of promotion or treasury stock could not have been bought later through brokers at a figure far less than the promotion price.

The price of paper and all materials used in producing a newspaper or a job of printing is steadily going higher, the last two weeks having seen greater advances than at any previous time.

Two pounds of sugar per month means six teaspoons full to the person each day—and this six teaspoons must include the sugar he eats in his cooked foods as well as that he uses for table needs.

Although a positive genius in the Tin Liz biz, Henry Ford would be a political freak in the United States Senate—if we are to judge from his pre-war utterances.

The report that Lenine died of his wound was unfortunately exaggerated. We would timidly suggest to Director Jim Estes that he organize a battalion of veteran war gardeners for his Westward Ho parade.

Germany's only prospect is for peace with dishonor.

industrials and utilities—the best gamble in listed mining and oils. But the best policy—at the present time—is to buy Liberty Bonds with your surplus cash, and to hold them.

A DAILY DUTY

Each day every American soldier is confronted by a great duty, says the Treasury Department. Our Army there has a great task to perform for our country, for the world, for civilization and for humanity.

Each day every American citizen at home is confronted by a great duty—a duty as imperative upon him or her as the duty of our soldiers is upon them.

perform. It is to support to the limit of their ability our Army, our Navy, our country at war.

To work with increased energy and efficiency so that our national production may be increased; to economize in consumption so that more material and labor and transportation may be left free for the uses of the Government; and with the resultant savings to support the Government financially is the daily duty of every American.

LIBERTY LOAN STATISTICS

To the first Liberty Loan there were four and a-half million subscribers.

To the second there were nine million.

To the third there were seventeen million.

The fourth Liberty Loan campaign starts September 28, and it is confidently expected that at least twenty millions of his people will lend their money to Uncle Sam.

Of the nine billion, nine hundred seventy-eight million, seven hundred eighty-five thousand and eight hundred dollars raised by the three loans, six billion four hundred ninety-two million and forty thousand has been loaned to our allies, leaving $3,486,745,800 for the use of our government.

When the Leader uses the personal pronoun in this instance, it does so with a delightful feeling of unbounded wealth.
