"BUY UNTIL IT HELPS"

"Buy until it hurts" and "Give until it hurts" are two expressions often used—the one referring to the purchase of Liberty Bonds and the other to contributions to the Red Cross or the Y. M. C. A. or kindred work.

Both are fundamentally false in meaning. They should be sent to the scrap-heap of verbal rubbish and supplanted with "Buy until it helps" and "Give until it helps."

Do not for one moment vaingloriously think that this means until it helps the country or the Red Cross or the Y. M. C. A. organizations. It means buy or give until it helps YOU and gives YOU a clearer understanding of your responsibility.

"Buy until it helps" you by broadening your vision of the war and the struggle to save civilization.

Buy Liberty Bonds, but not because you have a surplus which you can spare without inconvenience.

Buy not merely because the purchase of Liberty Bonds is strengthening the nation's power to fight.

But buy because your soul needs the quickening influence of a wider conception of liberty and humanity and civilization. And the more freely you buy the greater will be the ennobling of your own soul. You will be helping yourself, and in that way you will at the same time be helping the nation and civilization.

It is no act of charity to buy Liberty Bonds. It is merely contributing a moiety out of your ability, now called upon for something approaching an effort, and we will see if it appreciates its own responsibility in a war for human liberty and for the virtual protection of America against Hun encroachment. The credit due it will be in proportion to the difficulty of the service it performs.

The fact that the average sheepherder is getting more pay than the average country editor leads to the suspicion that the country ed. is not performing so useful a service.

The war has developed no famous men in Germany, but the infamous are legion.

The allied offensive is considerably more so, thank you, is what Hashimura Togo would probably say.

Our idea of the tax notice and legal rate issues is that much journalistic powder is being wasted on pretty small game.

The Hun soldiers are evidently beginning to realize that they are not fighting for the Fatherland but for the Hohenzollern family.

Weston may get the normal school again if the present bill carries; and also, it may get the moon as a football for the school's students.

The allies have not only taken Ham, but are bringing home the bacon.

The Weston country has as yet made no sacrifice worthy of the name, toward winning the war. Perhaps it is just as well, therefore, that the community will have to suffer a little financial stress in raising its quota for the Fourth Liberty Loan. This will be twice as large as its quota of the third loan, and perhaps more than double. To raise the sum required by the government would have been easy here except for the failure of the barley crop. But in that event, also, the community would have deprived itself of nothing. It is

To the Editor:—
 If the optimist develops by living with the pessimist, the humorist develops by living in a country town where there are many cows.

The cow is a desirable animal in her place—which to the prosaic, matter-of-fact individual means a corral. But to the humorist her place is tramping up and down the sidewalks, breaking the boards; or, tied to one's fence, she pulls out the posts and destroys that fence in her endeavor to enter the enclosure; or, having cruel horns, she is tied near one's garden gate, in and out of which one must enter and exit, or starve. The exit especially is difficult—for to be laden with green vegetables and have a hungry, cruel, horned cow behind, takes all of one's courage, and then some that one hasn't got.

Several posts in my garden fence are now held by the wire only, which is so bent and twisted from the protruding heads of hungry cows that it would be nonsense to consider it a hog-tight fence any longer, and the sidewalk has almost every board broken.

One lovely autumn afternoon I invited three neighbors for a cup of tea, to celebrate—but I am getting ahead of my story. One of the guests came early, and we were on my back porch, for she was initiating me into the mystery of making sour kroust. The cake was baked; the sour kroust nearly finished, and my spirits were soaring high, when the city marshal appeared with a paper ordering me to mend that sidewalk, which had been almost if not entirely destroyed by town cows. It did indeed need repairing, for a leg—or for that matter, two dozen legs—might be broken any day. I might find myself involved in one or two dozen lawsuits and be muled accordingly.

Recently I found a cow tied to my fence on that very sidewalk, near a city bridge—and being a humorist I untied the cow and retied her to the bridge; for, you see, the city has a man while I—have none.

VACHE HAINE.

We are hopeful that the Weston country will prove to be as liberal a buyer of the fourth issue of war bonds as it is of automobiles.

The spectacle of Jews, Catholics and Protestants uniting in a war drive constitutes a severe blow to bigotry.

The Hun war lord is far more persistent than versatile in his falsehoods—as shown by the fact that he still drags out the decrepit lie to the effect that the poor Fatherland was forced to fight.

The supreme court having annulled the Federal Child Labor Law by a vote of five to four, one is disposed to regret that this court is so superlatively supreme.

That the Leader is by no means a false war prophet is indicated by the fact that Black Jack Pershing and his doughboys are attacking heavily in Lorraine.
