The infant child, eight months old, of Mrs. Ida Sunneria died Monday morning at the Peter Narkaus residence on Reed and Hawley mountain. The remains were brought to Weston, and services were conducted at the grave in Masonic cemetery Wednesday by Rev. S. E. Powell.

His many Weston friends were delighted to welcome Roy Read, who is with us again after five months of service with the railroad artillery—the branch that handles the monster cannon. He received his training principally at Camp Upton and Fort George, but was also at many other camps on this side. He was two days out on the ocean going across when hostilities ceased and the transport was ordered back. Roy says he had fine treatment in the army, and the experience was of great value to him. The flu attacked but could not vanquish him.

Ed. L. Wood, who has been serving in the Fifteenth U. S. Infantry at Tientsin, China, writes home that he expects to be sent to the Philippines on the next government transport leaving Tientsin. He says that the section of China in which he is located has so far escaped the flu. Tientsin celebrated the victory of the allies in grand style, and then celebrated the redemption of Alsace-Lorraine. Great military and civic parades were a feature.

It is related that Tom Booher has finally sent to the chief forester for some coyote bait. It seems he tried strychnine and got his dog, but the unlucky animal was three hours in dying. Tom figured that if he had to follow every poisoned coyote three hours through brush and timber the trapping game would not be very profitable—and hence he is looking for more up-to-date methods.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Barnes are in receipt of the following joyful tidings from Sergeant Sid: "Dear Dad and Mother:—I'm on my way home. I don't know when, where or how; but 'tres bien.' Possibly by New Year's, so have the goose fattened. Don't worry about anything, because I'm fine and dandy every way. Will get word to you from New York."

After imbibing a popular brand of medicinal bitters said to have been obtained in a neighboring town, a bunch of roystering young blades went joy riding on Weston's sidewalks Wednesday night. They have been cited to appear before the recorder.

A rather coldsnappy week began Monday night in the Weston neighborhood—the government instrument registering eleven above zero. Since then the night temperature has been even colder, with zero weather in sight.

Sam Key kept his family flock and himself at home in the Basket uplands in the hope of sidestepping the flu, but found this commendable precaution all in vain. Sam was in town the other day and reported that there had been eight patients in his household, all of whom were out of danger.

While premature in announcing the departure of J. E. McDaniel for Connell, the Leader is now enabled to say authoritatively that Mr. McDaniel has gone. He accompanied Mrs. McDaniel upon her return to her school work from a holiday visit. (Although Jim doesn't care much for publicity, we always insist upon printing his peregrinations.)

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Scrimsher entertained the following guests at a recent holiday dinner at their home in this city: Mr. Oscar Scrimsher and Miss Alice Scrimsher of Free-water; Mrs. Hattie Rogers and daughters, Thelma and Dorothy, of Milton; Mrs. Sabina Morton of Athena and her mother, Mrs. F. E. Page of Seattle; Miss Ella Smedley of Milton. Fifteen plates were laid.

The flu has taken fresh hold at Athena, where 54 cases were reported up to Wednesday night. It now has a start among the school pupils, a teacher who came down with the epidemic having exposed all the children in her grade. The situation at Athena is worse than at any time since the epidemic began, and shows no improvement throughout the county in general.

The 1919 council of the City of Weston lost no time in getting to work. It met New Year's night, and the formality of swearing in was duly gone through with. The administration now consists of J. M. Banister, mayor; E. C. Rogers, Marvin Price, Frank Snider, Herman Goodwin, Frank Price and B. G. Saling, councilmen; J. W. Porter, recorder; S. A. Barnes, treasurer. It is said that one of the city dads tried pretty hard to desert his offspring, but was persuaded by the others to stand pat on the threat that if he quit they would to and Weston would be an orphan.

The Wandering Wurzers

The Joe Wurzers are now at San Pedro, Calif., and Joe has this to say in a letter to the Leader man:

"We have finally drifted here and expect to stay for awhile.

"We camped at Pasadena for about a month. That is where all the millionaires live. It got too rich for our blood, so we moved on.

"We have followed the citrus belt, passing through the towns of Glendora, Uplands, Rio'to, San Bernardino, Highland, Colton, Riverside and Pomona. It's great to see acres and acres of oranges and lemons.

"Venice is the playground of Southern California. They have everything there from Noah's Ark to the latest wrinkles for amusing and hoodwinking the public.

"The weather is ideal. We have had a few light frosts. All kinds of vegetables are in the open, as green as in the summer. Geraniums are in bloom.

"We have taken in the alligator farm and have seen thousands of the reptiles from babies six inches long up to weazened patriarchs 250 years old. We also visited the ostrich farm. One's pocket book is the only limit to seeing things here."

Water Users Must Pay

Complaint having been made by the City Marshal that water users are not prompt in the payment of their dues, he is therefore authorized to shut off the water of all those who are in arrears after the 10th of each month.

J. M. BANISTER, Mayor.
J. W. PORTER, Recorder.
