

Davis-Kaser's JANUARY SALE

This great sale will open Saturday morning, Jan. 11. It will mean more to our customers than any sale we have put on in a long time. Price reductions will be more general—everything except "contract goods"—and in no case less than 10 percent; then up to 50—half-price. Remember, please, that every sale reduction at Davis-Kaser's means a real saving of amount indicated, for our prices are never deviated from between sales.

Our stocks are practically complete in spite of the shortage of goods in many lines. While not true of all things, the bulk of our stock cost us about 20 percent less than present market prices. All will need goods soon, therefore should take advantage of this sale. Those who should know, claim there will be more price advances than declines this year.

Remember too, please, it's to be a regular Davis-Kaser Sale—straight goods; plain figures; reductions in Yellow Tags; Satisfaction or Your Money Back. If you don't know us, ask your neighbors.

Come. Read the the Yellow Tags. See the goods. Bring your check book—you'll neeq it.

BREVITIES

Joe Liouallen was here this week from Rieth for a visit with his family.

J. E. Walden and family have moved into their cottage residence on Normal Heights.

Conrad C. Cokerline of Estacada, Oregon, a former Weston boy, is mentioned as missing in action, in Thursday's casualty list.

Sergeant Sid Barnes wired his parents recently that he had arrived safely from overseas. He expects to be sent to Camp Lewis.

The neighborhood report that C. M. Schneider's family were flu sufferers is incorrect. They have so far been fortunate enough to escape a visitation.

Tom Diggins has gone to the stubble fields beyond Walla Walla to look after his cattle herds. He lately disposed of 40 head of steers at nine cents per pound.

Mrs. Delta Winn returned this week from Portland accompanied by her son, Lynn Neild, who is convalescing from typhoid fever. Lynn expects soon to go back to the metropolis.

Claron Rhea has gone to Winona, Wash., to trap coyotes. His father, who lives at Winona, wrote him to come—saying that the critters are thick in that neighborhood. Trapping coyotes is Claron's long suit.

After sailing the ocean blue on U. S. S. Wyoming, Ruford Price is again with kindred and friends in the Weston neighborhood. He witnessed the surrender of the German fleet. Seaman Price has a month's furlough.

Miss Grace Enyart, a prominent senior of the University of Washington, Seattle, and Ensign J. J. Lungenback, U. S. N. R. F., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Carmichael. Miss Enyart and Mrs. Carmichael are sisters.

Lost—Red and white spotted muley cow, both ears cropped, circle cleaver on right hip, accompanied by red and white spotted calf; also 9-months calf, branded circle L on left side, one ear cropped, other split; color red and white. Reward. Leave word at Leader office.

In a letter to a Weston friend "Sarge" Ernie Blomgren writes that he has never seen No Man's Land, but has sure done his bit in the war. The Sarge has long been working nights in Service of Supply at St. Nazaire, France—and incidentally kicking himself because he wasn't permitted to go the front.

Edwin Simpson, well known Oregon pioneer and for many years a Weston resident, is seriously ill at his home in Tacoma. Mrs. J. E. Scrimsher, one of his daughters, left for Tacoma Tuesday to be at his bedside, and the other children are either there or will be summoned should he grow worse. Mr. Simpson is now 87 years old.

That Weston goes in strongly for sport is shown by the number of licenses issued from the store of Watts & Rogers. To hunters 118 of these permits were issued for $177, and to anglers 189 for $208.50—a total of $388.50. Population considered, this showing of receipts is regarded as better than that of any other town in the county.

After stealing a Mitchell Six from the C. L. Whitney ranch near Walla Walla Charles Greene, 22, and Lynn Ayers, 21, were pursued by Sheriff Lee Barnes and a posse, with whom they had a rifle fight. Greene was killed and Ayers is in jail. Greene fired three shots at Barnes. One of the bullets blistered the sheriff's left cheek and spun him around.

While out on his route the other day Mail Carrier Jim Jones casually touched up one of his government mules with the whip. The animal immediately resented this attention as superfluous. It kicked itself a-straddle of the tongue and broke one line. Then both mules ran away. Jones sidetracked them into a rail fence and after repairing damages went on his way, with a resolution to make a more careful study of mule character.

Mrs. Minnie R. Hessel, mother of Herman Hessel, died January 8, 1919, of acute indigestion, at her home in Connell, Washington. The remains were brought to Weston for burial beside the grave of her late husband in I. O. O. F. cemetery, Sunday. Services were conducted at the grave by Rev. S. E. Powell. Mrs. Hessel was born 89 years ago in Germany. She was the mother of five children, of whom only one, Herman Hessel, is now living.

The flu situation in Weston is clearing again, with but two cases reported. These patients are the daughters, Pearl and Francis, of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Davis, who came down yesterday with the prevailing disease, in light form. Mr. Davis himself kept away from the house until the nature of the ailment could be determined—thinking he would thus be in better position to aid his family—and is not under quarantine. All the patients reported last week, including Superintendent Fitzpatrick of the Weston schools, are now convalescent. However, a current report that the schools will open next Monday has not been officially confirmed.

It almost makes the lowlander envious to hear the uplander talk about mountain weather. On Weston mountain the temperature has been ranging from 30 degrees above at night to 55 and 58 above at midday. The days are bright with sunshine, and W. L. Rayborn, who was in town yesterday, says that the lucky mountaineer looks down upon a vast sea of smoky cloud. Upon going down the mountain and entering this cloud he plunges at once into the temperature which congeals the lowland blood.

Miss Colvin has returned from Haines and Miss Hollenbeck from Portland to be in readiness to resume their school work. They are keeping house in the NorDean cottage on the Heights.

R. G. Saling expects to leave for Portland on this evening's train for a few days visit with his family.
