

AFTER-THE-WAR BUILDING BOOM HAS COMMENCED

A. M. Jensen & Co., Walla Walla, Start Work on Fine New Store Building.

As predicted early in the year, when several announcements of proposed new structures were made, the after-the-war building boom in Walla Walla actually commenced the past week, when ground was broken by the A. M. Jensen Company for the erection of a magnificent new store building on the lot which it acquired some months ago, situated on East Main street just east of the American theatre.

Condemnation proceedings to open Colville street from Main to Alder were filed in the superior court by City Attorney H. B. Noland, the city commission having previously decided to make this improvement in the business district. This will place the new Jensen building on the southwest corner of Main and Colville, giving it a fine frontage on two important streets in the heart of the business district.

Will Be Big Asset.

Plans for the new building show that it will be a big asset for Walla Walla, and that when completed it will be the largest and most modern department-store building between Spokane and Portland.

It will have a frontage of 170 feet on Colville street and will have a full basement, for which 6500 cubic yards of earth must be removed. This will make it the biggest basement ever dug in Walla Walla. The basement will be 12 feet in height and the foundation will be constructed sufficiently strong for the addition of more stories as time and business conditions may require.

The other construction will be of terra cotta and there will be continuous glass window frontage of the most modern and up-to-date design for the display of merchandise both on Main and Colville streets. The display windows will be one of the notable features of the big establishment. A feature of the store will be a marquee extending full length on Main and Colville streets, affording protection for the merchandise as well as the window gazers.

The main store will have a much larger floor space than now used by the company.

Beezer Bros., Architects.

Beezer Bros., architects, of Walla Walla and Seattle, have drawn the plans and will supervise the construction of the building. They planned and supervised construction of St. Mary's hospital, the Baker-Boyer bank and the Peoples' State Bank in Walla Walla.

The new A. M. Jensen Company store will have two entrances on Main street and one on Colville. It will be equipped with offices, lavatories, rest rooms, children's play rooms and several new departments will be added, while others will be enlarged.

Work will be rushed so that the building will be ready for occupancy by September 1st. It will cost completed in the neighborhood of $100,000.

The A. M. Jensen Company acquired this new site in this rapidly growing part of the city about a year ago as a business safeguard, and found it most convenient when the First National Bank purchased the Jones building, where its store is now located.

The empty beer kegs that were formerly wont to decorate Weston sidewalks after a picnic have been replaced by ice cream freezers.

While it may be unseemly for Uncle Sam to cry over the h. c. of l., we wouldn't mind if he would drop a profiteer or two.

From the confident look of the young government bugologist who came up from Corvallis, we fancy that he will soon take all the hop out of the grasshoppers.

This week's Leader is long on ads and short on editorial. There is nothing remarkable about it otherwise save that it is strictly a one-man product—the product of a country printer of the old school. Anyone who knows the country newspaper game also knows that when one man gets out, a paper of this character and at the same time takes care of the general run of office business he most surely has had to "go some"—in the expressive parlance of the day.

There was never a more glorious Fourth to celebrate than comes this year, and Pendleton will certainly have a chance to "spread itself" in its county-wide jubilee. We are satisfied that it will, and that it will likewise endanger its own laurels won as "Round-Up Town"—in which role it has become famous from ocean to ocean. Yea, yea—"let's go!"

In giving to the Salvation Army the donor knows that he is giving to an organization at which the finger of suspicion has never been pointed—a devoted body that won the hearts of the soldiers on the sanguined fields of France. True service was exemplified by the Salvation Army abroad—true charity will be exemplified at home. Its sponsors are that irresistible trio—the Salvation Army lassie, the doughboy and the doughnut.

The hole in the S. A. doughnut is wholly holy.

Read the ads in this week's Leader and you will be reading the business signs of the times. They are good ads—interesting, pertinent, timely. The careful ad reader learns how, when and where to buy, and in the course of a year saves many times the cost of his newspaper subscription.

Well, well—why didn't Wilson take the United States Senate across?

Twenty-Seventh Annual Reunion

Although cited five times in orders for courageous devotion to duty while an army surgeon in France—where he had a most unpleasant experience with mustard gas—Captain Fred Lieualen perhaps performed no more difficult feat at the front than that of "holding" a picnic crowd at Weston. More practiced speakers than he have failed in this ordeal, yet Fred was "there" to such an extent that he held the rapt attention of his big audience for more than an hour. Not even a baby voiced its disapproval during the entire speech—an unheard-of silence! The captain told many inside facts concerning the gallant battling of the American troops.

Saturday's speaker—Lieutenant Frederick W. Steiwer of Pendleton—was almost equally fortunate, but occupied less time and to that extent his task was less exacting. He paid feeling tribute to the pioneers, and also to Umatilla county war heroes—not a few of whom he mentioned by name.

Splendid programs were given both days of the reunion in the big pavilion. The soloists were Lela G. Salling of Weston, Bernice Richmond of Walla Walla, Sigurd B. Nelsen of Whitman Conservatory of Music. The readers were Laurel E. Davis of Echo, Mrs. W. C. Howard of Columbia College, Helen Keller of Weston and Miss Richmond. The accompanists were Mrs. F. D. Watts of Weston and Miss Meryl Kepler of Walla Walla. The Weston Glee Club sang choruses and the Weston Concert Band played throughout the reunion. President Henry J. Taylor presided.

Letah Koons, a wee and winsome performer from Freewater, gave a pleasing piano solo.

The sports were of surpassing interest. Novelty street races and automobile stunts and races were introduced.

Weston won both ball games—Friday against Athena, 4 to 2; Saturday against Pilot Rock, 9 to 8. Manager Nelson's young hopefuls made up in "pep" what they lacked in experience and delighted local fans. Rusty Shick was again seen on the mound, wearing a Weston uniform, and helped win both his games by lusty and timely clouting. Fuson was also there with the big stick, ably seconded by Pody Duncan et al. Bob Hodgson showed good form behind the bat—especially on Friday.

M. L. Watts of Athena was elected president of the Umatilla County Pioneer Association. R. Alexander of Pendleton was chosen vice president. S. A. Barnes and J. H. Price of Weston were re-elected as secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Corney Devine, an old soldier who has made his home in Weston for a number of years, has gone to Wisconsin to see if he can find his two sisters. He has seen neither for 40 years, and does not know whether they are living or dead.

A request has been sent to the state game commission by farmers living along the banks of the Luckiamute river in the southwestern part of Polk county, asking permission to kill a number of beavers which are seriously damaging lands along that stream.

A public building adequate to house the postoffice, customs service and other branches of the government located at Astoria, would require $400,000, according to an estimate received by Representative Hawley from the treasury department.
